There are countless occult books to suit all tastes and pockets, to say nothing of those that are freely available online (legally or otherwise); but it is better by far to have studied and to know internally, as a part of ourselves, a few of the very best books than it is to have merely read seven hundred, or even seven thousand, lesser works. That said, those interested in what is perhaps the best collection books online that are available to read for free may be interested in exploring the Internet Sacred Text Archive.

There's also an Android app called The Occult Library. It's got links to thousands of books, as well.

There are a few ads on the app, but it brings you to a website that has a listing of the files, so you don't even need the app. They can be read online and they're downloadable. Part 1 is 207G

https://yadi.sk/d/F62id7cX3Mj65x

Part 2 is 227G

https://yadi.sk/d/BNNwiZJ33MiHvM

It's a treasure trove!

Edit: grammar

Just to add, there's a similar but bigger collection on The Pirate Bay (629 PDFs / 4.29Gb). Here's the magnet:

(It includes the super rare Temple of Vampire books!)

I've accrued a PDF library of about 50 books and I just got an e-reader to put them on because I HATE reading books on my laptop. This is a perfectly welcomed addition! Thank you very much!

We owe you an explanation.
December 26: Fewer readers in the United States. Here's why:

You deserve an explanation, so please don't skip this 1-minute read. It's Friday, December 26 and while more people than ever rely on answers from Wikipedia, search tools make it less visible. With fewer readers this December, time is running out to hit our goal. We hope Wikipedia has given you at least $2.75 of knowledge this year. If everyone who finds Wikipedia useful gave $2.75, we'd hit our goal in a few hours.

It's been 25 years and Wikipedia is still free. It's still created by people, not machines, and we don't run ads or put up paywalls because we're not here to make a profit off your attention. In other words, it's still the internet we were promised.

Less than 2% of our readers donate, so if you have given in the past and Wikipedia still provides you with $2.75 worth of knowledge, donate today. If you are undecided, remember any contribution helps.

From Wikipedia, the free encyclopedia

Cyprian of Antioch (and Justina)
The Book of Saint Cyprian (Portuguese: Livro de São Cipriano; Spanish: Libro de San Cipriano) refers to different grimoires from the 17th, 18th, and 19th centuries, all pseudepigraphically attributed to the 3rd century Saint Cyprian of Antioch (not to be confused with Saint Cyprian the bishop of Carthage). According to popular legend, Cyprian of Antioch was a pagan sorcerer who converted to Christianity.[1][2][3]

The Iberian Cyprian

The Iberian Cyprian is not a single text but multiple texts in Spanish and Portuguese, mostly from the 19th century.[4][3][5] There was, however, a now lost pre-modern Cyprianic literature with no apparent connection to any extant works beyond being inspired by the Cyprianic legend.[5][1][3]

The Portuguese Cyprian

The Portuguese version of the Book of Cyprian often bears prefixes such as "Great and True," "Only Complete," or "Authentic,"[5] and typically subtitled "The Sorcerer's Treasure" (ou thesouro de feiticeiro).[6] The content is apparently Catholic, though deeply rooted in Bruxaria,[7] and it is popular (particularly in Brazil) among practitioners of Quimbanda,[8] Umbanda, and Candomblé.[5] The Sorcerer's Treasure contains very little evocation,[5] instead drawing upon oral traditions relating to divination, healing spells, prayers[6] (including some to one's guardian angel), exorcisms, love magic, the locations of buried treasures throughout Galicia, and sometimes even treatises on animal magnetism -- all set within a framework of folk Catholicism.[5] Most editions start off with the legend of St Cyprian and commonly contain sections on alchemy, astrology, cartomancy, conjuring devils, divination, exorcisms, ghosts, hidden treasures, love magic, luck magic, omens, oneiromancy, palmistry, and prayers.[9] Some editions also contain the success stories of a French peasant named Victor Siderol, who purportedly discovered hidden treasures thanks to the book.[9][3] The Brazilian forms of the Sorcerer's Treasure vary drastically, though the Portuguese editions are rather stable (at least in comparison).[6]

The most representative edition is the Livraria Económica edition,[3] which was translated into English as The Book of St. Cyprian - The Sorcerer's Treasure by José Leitão with further additions from more recent editions (such as the Moderna Editorial Lavores).[10]

According to Leitão, Portuguese Cyprianic literature represents a combination of Iberian magical beliefs and traditional African religion. The Portuguese Inquisition's focus on Crypto-Judaism (instead of witchcraft) made it easier for magical practitioners to Christianize traditional Iberian magical and imported African religious beliefs. The Inquisition unintentionally aided this by treating traditional African religious practices and beliefs as deviant forms of Catholicism rather than as something outside the religion. Many of these practices were to have later influenced Portuguese Cyprianic literature.[11] Leitão further claims that Portuguese Cyprianic literature developed in three phases:[1]

the development of diverse oral traditions concerning St Cyprian.[12] the collection of the oral traditions into a "standard" Book of Cyprian, which in turn gave rise to further oral traditions about the book itself.[13]
the standardized book being rearranged, expanded, and redacted with the advent of the printing press and South American syncretism.[14]
The Spanish Cyprian

The title page of a Spanish edition
Most Spanish version claim to have been written by a Jonas Sulfurino ("Sulphury Jonas"), are similar (though distinct from) the Key of Solomon,[15] and are typically a rehash of the Grand Grimoire.[5] The most complete and popular version, titled Libro Infernal, combines elements of the Grand Grimoire, the Key of Solomon, and the Grand et Petit Albert. The Libro Infernal was also translated to Italian in 1920 by its original publisher.[15]

The oldest extant Cyprianic work dates to 1810 and claims to have been translated from Latin. It is titled "Heptameron or Magical Elements," but despite this title bears little resemblance to the purported grimoire by Pietro d'Abano or any other European spell book. Later, an edition of the Grand Grimoire was appended to a book on the Galician Inquisition, claimed to be "the Ciprianillo." Following this was another edition of the Grand Grimoire which added the supposed copyist-monk Jonás Sufurino to the legend. Later editions added material on animal magnetism, cartomancy, hypnotism, Spiritualism, and The Black Pullet.[3]

The Scandinavian Cyprian

Main article: Cyprianus

The Scandinavian Cyprianus svarteboken (black books) are a distinct tradition with no connection beyond the shared story of St Cyprian.[16] One of these, the Black Books of Elvarum, dates back to 1682 and claims to go back to 1529.[17]

The Wellcome Cyprian

A Latin manuscript (Wellcome MS 2000) attributed to "M: L: Cypriani" (or "Magistri Ludi Cypriani," 'teacher Cypriani') entitled Clavis Inferni sive magia alba et nigra approbata Metratona ('The Key of Hell with white and black magic proven by Metatron')[18] was discovered by Stephen Skinner and David Rankine in 2004.[19] It dates to either 1717 or 1757,[20] though internal evidence suggests 1857 as another possible date.[21]

It is unrelated to Iberian or Scandinavian Cyprianic literature (beyond its patron saint),[22] but is definitely related to pseudo-d'Abano's Heptameron,[23] Heinrich Cornelius Agrippa, the Sixth and Seventh Books of Moses, contemporary Faustbuchen from Das Kloster,[24] Liber Lunae,[25] Trithemius's Polygraphie, and the Magical Calendar[26]

600 GB corpus of all paywalled scholarly sources of Wikipedia
Scholarly publishing is a racket where research entities pay all the costs for the outputs but publishers seize them for free and get the same research entities to pay exorbitant prices to rent them back. In an open publication like Wikipedia, two thirds of the academic sources are paywalled, although many are green open access (archived by open repositories).

A torrent has been compiled from various sources to provide a corpus with nearly all such paywalled papers for Wikipedia in all languages. It contains about 561k PDFs for as many DOIs, divided in 1529 ZIP files for a total of 600 GB. The archives are sorted by publisher (DOI prefix), so you can download just what you can or are most interested in. There's a list of DOIs inside.

The corpus is only for personal and research use, for instance to help text and data mining and any other effort which requires fast or bulk download.

Please preserve a copy and seed! The info_hash and magnet link are:

Usually, Google scholar has pre-print PDFs or pubmed links as well. The thing this doesn't work for is books.

Any downloads for studies not cited by wikipedia? Does sci-hub share their set?

There's a lot of stuff out there, the problem is how to make a mirror usable and sustainable.

LibGen torrents are probably the biggest collection (20+ million?).

Internet Archive's journals collection is the easiest to download individually (almost 2 million, mostly public domain).

CORE datasets have full-text (unformatted?) for almost 10 million articles (mostly with some Creative Commons license?).

As far as I am aware sci-hub doesn't actually have anything saved on their servers. What they do is source login-credentials from people who attend/work for various schools and colleges across the world (because a lot of school pay subscriptions to the various journals so that the students attending can access them as needed) and then use their subscriptions to generate on-demand access keys to the various scientific and medical journals which the person then downloads from.

How one young woman broke down the gates of knowledge

By George Monbiot, published in the Guardian 13th September 2018

Never underestimate the power of one determined person. What Carole Cadwalladr has done to Facebook and Big Data and Edward Snowden has done to the state security complex, the young Kazakhstani scientist Alexandra Elbakyan has done to the multi-billion dollar industry that traps knowledge behind paywalls. Her pirate webscraper service, Sci-hub, has done more than any government to tackle one of the biggest rip-offs of the modern era: the capture of research that should belong to us all.

Everyone should be free to learn; knowledge should be disseminated as widely as possible. No one would publicly disagree with these sentiments. Yet governments and universities have allowed the big academic publishers to deny these rights. Academic publishing might sound like an obscure and fusty affair, but it uses one of the most ruthless and profitable business models of any industry.

The model was pioneered by the notorious conman Robert Maxwell. He realised that, because scientists need to be informed about all significant developments in their field, every journal that publishes academic papers can establish a monopoly, and can charge outrageous fees for the transmission of knowledge. He called his discovery “a perpetual financing machine”.

He also realised that he could capture other people’s labour and resources for nothing. Governments funded the research published by his company, Pergamon, while the scientists who wrote the articles, reviewed them and edited the journals did so for free. His business model relied on the enclosure of common and public resources. Or, to use the technical term, daylight robbery.

As his other ventures ran into trouble, he sold his company to the Dutch publishing giant Elsevier. Like its major rivals, it has sustained the model to this day, and continues to make spectacular profits. Half the world’s research is published by five companies: Reed-Elsevier, Springer, Taylor & Francis, Wiley-Blackwell and the American Chemical Society. Libraries must pay a fortune for their bundled journals, while those outside the university system are asked to pay $20, $30, sometimes $50 to read a single article.

While open access journals have grown rapidly, researchers still have to read the paywalled articles in commercial journals. And, because their work is assessed by those who might fund, reward or promote them according to the impact factor of the journals in which they publish, many feel they have no choice but to surrender their research to these companies as well. Science ministers come and go without saying a word about this scam.

After my cancer diagnosis earlier this year, I was offered a choice of treatments. I wanted to make an informed decision. This meant reading scientific papers. Had I not used the stolen material provided by Sci-hub, it would have cost me thousands. Because, like most people, I didn’t have this money, I would have given up before I was properly informed. I have never met Alexandra Elbakyan, and I can only speculate about alternative outcomes, had the research I read not swayed my decision. But it is possible that she has saved my life.

Like people in many countries where scholarship is poorly funded, Elbakyan discovered that she could not complete her neuroscience research without pirated articles. Outraged by the journals’ padlock on knowledge, she used her hacking skills to share papers more widely. Sci-hub allows free access to 70 million papers, otherwise locked behind paywalls.

She was sued in 2015 by Elsevier, which won $15 million in damages, and in 2017 by the American Chemical Society, resulting in a $4.8 million judgement. These were civil cases, concerning civil matters. While the US courts have characterised her activities as copyright violation and data theft, to me her work involves the restoration to the public realm of property that belongs to us and for which we have already paid. In the great majority of cases, the research carried in these journals has been funded by taxpayers. Most of the work involved in writing the papers, reviewing and editing them is carried out at public expense, by people working at universities. Yet this public asset has been captured, packaged, and sold back to us for phenomenal fees. Those who must pay most are publicly-funded libraries. Taxpayers must shell out twice: first for the research, then to see the results. There might be legal justifications for this practice. There are no ethical justifications.

In any case, wherever Alexandra Elbakyan is (she lives in hiding), she is beyond the jurisdiction of the US courts. She moves Sci-hub between domains as it gets taken down. The numerous attempts to intimidate her have failed. One woman, with a small amount of crowdfunding, has smashed the wall erected by a $19 billion industry.

Of course, she is by no means the only person to have challenged the big publishers. The Public Library of Science, founded by researchers who objected not only to the industry's denial of public access but also its slow, antiquated and clumsy modes of publishing that hold back scientific research, has demonstrated that you don't need pay walls to produce excellent journals. Advocates like Stevan Harnad, Bjorn Brembs, Peter Suber and Michael Eisen have changed the public mood. The brilliant online innovator Aaron Swarz sought to release 5 million scientific articles into the public domain. Facing the possibility of decades in a US federal prison for this selfless act, he killed himself.

Among Alexandra Elbakyan's achievements is to empower libraries to confront the big publishers. Now they can refuse to renew contracts with the companies that had them over a barrel, as their users have another means of getting past the paywall. As the system has begun to creak, government funding agencies have at last summoned the courage to do what they should have done decades ago, and demand the democratisation of knowledge.

Last week, a consortium of European funders, including major research agencies in the UK, France, the Netherlands and Italy, published their "Plan S". It insists that from 2020 research we have already paid for through our taxes will no longer be locked up. Any researcher receiving money from these funders must publish her or his work only in open access journals.

The publishers have gone ballistic. Springer Nature argues that this plan "potentially undermines the whole research publishing system." Yes, that's the point. The publishers of the Science series, who appear to live in a Trumpian world in which reality is inverted and syntax is mangled, maintain that it would "disrupt scholarly communications, be a disservice to researchers, and impinge academic freedom". Elsevier says "If you think information shouldn't cost anything, go to Wikipedia", inadvertently reminding us of what happened to the commercial encyclopedias.

Plan S is not perfect, and the death of the knowledge monopolists has been predicted before. But this should be the beginning of the end of Maxwell's outrageous legacy. In the meantime, as a matter of principle, do not pay a penny to read an academic article. The ethical choice is to read the stolen material published by Sci-hub.

How many Wikipedia references are available to read? We measured the proportion of open access sources across languages and topics.
How many Wikipedia references are available to read? We measured the proportion of open access sources across languages and topics.

A lock and chain hold a gate shut.
Let’s say you’re planning a trip to a subtropical region and you want to learn about available vaccines for yellow fever. You look up the English Wikipedia article. You’re lucky to find a well-sourced section, with a wealth of references, many of them pointing to information from public health agencies and reputable news articles. Great!

But then you decide to learn more about the scientific research on the treatment of yellow fever. You try to follow three citations, each a review article in a scholarly journal, and find that they're all behind a paywall and inaccessible to you.

As it turns out, you're not alone. When following a link to the official version of a scholarly article, Wikipedia readers are twice as likely to hit a paywall than one they can freely read.

Percentage of open citations

Citations are the bridge between Wikipedia articles and a broader landscape of reliable, secondary sources. Citations not only allow readers to verify the reliability of the facts they find in Wikipedia; through citations readers can also deep-dive into any given topic by exploring the books, scholarly publications, and news stories referenced in an article.

Wikipedia's use of open access sources—publications that can be accessed for free by anyone online[1]—plays a critical role in supporting fact-checking and in fostering digital literacy. Initiatives such as the Wikipedia Library's partnerships allow editors to gain free access to the paywalled literature, while automated tools such as OAbot help editors find openly accessible versions that can be added to Wikipedia article references. However, Wikipedia does not have policies that explicitly favor open access over subscription-based sources when citing information. In reality, Wikipedia still links both many paywalled and open access sources. How does this affect readers?

We recently released a dataset of all citations with identifiers in Wikipedia. This does not represent every single book, article, and website referenced on Wikipedia (more analysis of that to come), but the substantial subset of sources that have a code that uniquely identifies the work, such as a Digital Object Identifier (DOI) in the case of academic articles, or an International Standard Book Number (ISBN) for books. You might think of this large subset of citations as roughly representing the scholarly sources of Wikipedia. To estimate the proportion of these scholarly sources that are free to read, we are releasing a new dataset that sheds light on these citations by their accessibility level and topic.

To create this dataset, we cross-referenced our existing data with data provided by Unpaywall, a database gathering accessibility information of more than 19 million articles, and we associated each scholarly publication's digital object identifier (DOI) cited in Wikipedia with an accessibility label: "Open" if the publisher (source) provides a free copy, "Closed" if it is a paywalled publication, or "Available" if the official version is paywalled but there exists an open copy available elsewhere on the web (e.g., legally deposited by the author in a university repository). In total, we gathered accessibility values for around 450,000 scholarly publications cited across 300 Wikipedia languages.[2]

We find that less than half of the official versions of scholarly publications cited with an identifier in Wikipedia are freely available on the web: 29% are free-to-read at the source, while an additional 10% have a free-to-read version available elsewhere.[3]

Topic accessibility

The fraction of free-to-read content very much depends on the subject you're interested in. To explore the extent to which readers can access content without hitting a paywall depending on their interests, we characterized each publication with a topic category by looking at the main topic of the Wikipedia pages that cite a publication. We then used the draftopic tool to assign a Wikipedia page with a topic from the Wikiproject Hierarchy. Since the tool works for English Wikipedia only, we assign topics to pages from non-English Wikipedias by finding their corresponding English Wikipedia version through Wikidata.[4]

To explore this data at a glance, we published a number of visualizations through a Python notebook.

Wikipedia topics VS accessibility

Accessibility of publications cited in Wikipedia by article topic.

If you are passionate about space, you will have far more chances to freely access the sources of the Wikipedia articles you read: around 55% of publications in space-related articles are open. On the contrary, if you are interested in chemistry, you will very likely have to pay to read the publications cited in your favorite Wikipedia articles or rely on an institutional subscription: 83% of publications in chemistry articles across languages are paywalled.

Accessibility also varies significantly across languages. If you read Wikipedia in Belarusian, you will be linked to a wide number of free to read scholarly publications (around 45% are open). Conversely, if you only speak Khmer, only around 20% of the scholarly publications cited in your Wikipedia language edition can be freely accessed.

Wikipedia languages VS accessibility

Distribution of scholarly articles cited in each Wikipedia language edition by percentage of open access publications cited (left) and percentage of freely available paywalled publications cited (right). See our notebook visualizations for more comprehensive and interactive plots.

Beyond differences across topics and languages, our data also allows discovering areas of Wikipedia content that can be 'un-paywalled', i.e. topics for which we can improve the openness of referenced publications. For example, while articles in mathematics might not have a large amount of officially freely available sources (only 15%), we found that a larger proportion of publications in this field (25%) have a free copy available on the web. Similarly, Wikipedia in Punjabi is a language edition citing many paywalled sources (only 17% are open); however, around 24% of scholarly articles referenced in this language do have a non-paywalled version.

Exploring the data

Earlier this year, a team of developers from the Wikimedia Foundation, eLife and SAGE Publishing used the dataset to prototype a web-based tool called WikiCiteVis to search and visualize the world of Wikipedia citations. During the 2018 eLife Innovation Sprint, the team started working on the tool, and they have since produced a working web app that allows users to query the updated Wikipedia citation database in a browser, including links to Wikipedia articles and underlying cited articles. You can now see how a scholarly article or book is cited in Wikipedia using WikiCiteVis. Users are also welcome to provide feedback and suggest new features via GitHub, or to consider building these features themselves—find out more on eLife Labs.

You can access the full dataset of citations by topic and accessibility at https://doi.org/10.6084/m9.figshare.6819710. For our earlier data release and analysis of the most cited sources in Wikipedia, check out this blog post or read more in Wired and Nature.

We are also conducting research to understand how Wikipedia readers use citations (and why) and to identify when individual statements need additional citations. Stay tuned for further updates on these projects.

Acknowledgements
We would like to thank Heather Piwowar and Jason Priem from ImpactStory for making Unpaywalled data publicly available.

We would also like to thank David Moulton, Senior Front-End Developer at eLife, his collaborators Sean Wiseman and Chris Wilkinson, along with Sam Walton from the Wikimedia Foundation and Ian Mulvany from SAGE, for working on WikiCiteVis during and after the eLife Innovation Sprint.

Footnotes
1. For the purpose of this analysis, we use the definition of “open” provided by Unpaywall, which refers to the accessibility of a scholarly article, not whether the article is published under free licenses that allow reuse. Studying the prevalence of free-licensed (or libre) open access citations is a challenge due to the lack of comprehensive data.

2. This analysis is limited to citations by DOI to assess the accessibility of a paper’s version of record. Citations templates often include additional links to accessible versions, when available.

3. In context, the practical accessibility of all citations on Wikipedia may be significantly higher. This dataset only contains citations with an identifier, which are much more common in scholarly journals (that are more likely to be paywalled). Many news websites or other types of source do not have an identifier (and are not in this dataset) but are free to access online.

4. Although this methodology gives us interesting insights on topic-accessibility, its main limitation is that we can assign a topic to a Wikipedia page only if it exists in English

Wikipedia.

Hyatt's Hoodoo, Conjuration, Witchcraft and Rootwork
Hi there, I saw a post a year ago looking for all 5 of these books. I have all 5 in pdf form if there is anyone looking for a copy here they are:
https://mega.co.nz/#F!UYNW0LSC!G-3ywDIVVd1wHcmluDZDXA

EDIT: If you are having trouble with Mega, I also have a Google Drive link:

Welcome to the Occult.Digital.Mobilization forums!

Within you will find a number of discussions, all of them ongoing, about various aspects of the occult and esoteric. Nearly every area of study is covered, with space for the few we may have missed. Whether you are a serious student and practitioner of the occult, or are merely curious about what the occult truly is, this is one of the most open places to discuss your interests.

Feel free to look around, and if you like what you see, register and start a topic in Introductions, telling us about who you are and why you're interested in what we have to offer. We encourage everyone to express what they feel, believe, have experienced or learned, or otherwise just know - even if it's "this doesn't work" - though giving some supporting remarks with your comments (i.e., "this doesn't work because...") is always a good idea.

Until then, go well, and may the Winds guide you in your Journey!

Index Server Change

Sun Mar 27, 2011 11:13 pm by Admin

Once again we have had to move the index because the server it was hosted on decided to change their policy. The prior server is no longer hosted free of charge, forcing us to relocate. The Release Index link here at the forums will continue to be up to date as server moves are required, so instead of bookmarking the index itself, try bookmarking the forums and linking in to the index from here.

Of course, you could alternately just update your bookmarks.

If the index server is not working, give it a few minutes and try again. We do not have direct control of the server, so we cannot bring it back online if it for any reason goes down. There was a slight glitch during the transfer which blocked our access to the index for several minutes, but it was automatically resolved after a short wait. Please, enjoy!

Community Submissions
Wed Oct 14, 2015 2:47 am by sendoshin

This will be brief, as it's the middle of the night where I am, and I'm busy rebuilding the Release Index. We have a new method for submitting resources for consideration in future Releases. In the past, we've asked these to be emailed to the group address, and while that will still work, you can now also simply upload them to a Dropbox account we've created just for the purpose. Here's the link:

Community Submissions Link

NOTE: Dropbox will ask for a name in order to upload files. Please use your forum name for this, as your files' names will be changed to add the name you provide. This is meant to prevent issues when multiple people upload a file with the same name. We will remove your name from the files' names long before release in any case.

We do have a fairly small size limit, so email before submitting videos and other files larger than 50 or so MB so we can check whether there's enough space there first. Of course, if your own Dropbox has plenty of space, you can always just share it with us from there directly - just use the group's email address for that.

Hopefully this will make things easier to get to us so we can review it and release it! In the meantime, back to work with me...

Enhancing The Release Index
Sun Sep 09, 2012 3:50 pm by sendoshin

OK, so all of this [the items discussed at Assisting with the (digimob) Project] came to fruition not long ago with the Release Index (see the navigation bar at the top of the page), but there are still some features missing. Since everything in the database was put there automatically, by script, and straight from the .torrent files, at that, there is no categorization (aside from file types), and no author info. It wouldn't be hard to automate this information going into the database in the future, but some sort of mechanism still has to be devised to make it work. And then there are the 12,310 files already listed that would have to be updated with the relevant info. So still a lot of work ahead to get all of this working well, but I think it might be manageable.

So the next step would be to figure out how to indicate the categories and authors in future digests. There are a couple of ways I can think of, some more difficult and involved than others, but I think the easiest would be to set up the folders into categories, for example:
Code:
/Western Inner Traditions/Fraternal Societies/Golden Dawn/:file:

From there, for the author name, I see two possibilities, both as easy to work with as the other. The first option would be to begin the file name with the author's name, much as has been done with prior releases, in a format like "Crowley, Aleister - Book of the Law.pdf" or "Gozaknee, Tanranin Uhcheek, Frater - The Red Planet Arrives.pdf":
Code:
:last:, :first: :middles:, :titles: - :work:

This has the added benefit that the author is never severed from the file, but the drawback of having really long file names, which can be a problem on some file systems, such as DVD.

The second option is to continue the use of folders. Using the same basic format as above, with the difference that the author's name would be a folder name, so it would come out "/Western Inner Traditions/Fraternal Societies/Golden Dawn/Gozaknee, Tanranin Uhcheek, Frater/The Red Planet Arrives.pdf":
Code:
/:category:/:subcategories:/:last:, :first: :middles:, :titles:/:work:

This only shortens the file name by two characters from the method above, but that may be all that is needed in many cases. The author is no longer directly associated with the file, but since file names can be changed after downloading anyway, that is not a great drawback. And credit is still given.

It may be obvious that I'm leaning …

Where is Submissions Digest #30?
Sun Apr 24, 2011 9:36 pm by Admin

Digimob is a quarterly-release group, but many of you may have noticed that two quarters have ended without a Release. Part of this is the fault of the current wearer of the hat of group Admin - namely myself, F.D.T. A combination of laziness, busyness, and lack of resources has gotten in the way, and for that I sincerely apologize.

However, another part is a general lack of assistance from the community itself. Live links are prohibited on the forums for two reasons: first, we cannot verify the legality of such links without extensive research, not to mention the applicability. Second, we prefer to share those works which qualify not only with members of our community, but with the world as a whole - which is why we opted to use Bittorrent as our Release mechanism. (There is also the technical limitation of using a free forum which doesn't grant us access to our forum database - if we get kicked off of this server for whatever reason, we may not be able to take your posts with us.)

So, the main reason I am not writing an article about having just released #30 is because we need your help. If there is anything in your collection which is not in ours (the Release Index was created to help check just that), please submit it for inclusion in our next Release. All you have to do is ZIP it up, upload it to a free file hosting site (there is a list here), then email the link to occult [dot] digital [dot] mobilization [at] gmail [dot] com. Our Content Team will download the files, check them over, and then include them in the next Release. If your files don't make it, wait to see if they show in the next Release before asking us what gives. We'll try to let you know if we can't include something because of legal limitations (this tends to be very rare).

If the time has not come to retire this project and give way to others, such as theoccult.bz (which has a high level of interest among members of this site), we will continue to do our best to provide what service we can. However, without your help, we will never be able to pull it off.

Go well, and may the Winds guide you in your Journey.

digimob.tk Expiration Mon Apr 09, 2012 6:34 pm by sendoshin

Several of you will have noticed already that digimob.tk is no longer working. This is because the government of Tokelau has decided that digimob is a "special" domain, and wants to not only charge us for it, but wants to charge us more than the regular going rate for paid .tk domains. (In case you weren't aware, .tk means the domain was registered through the Tokelau government domain registrar, since Tokelau considers itself too small to really make any money from their country code without letting the rest of the world register there cheap. But that gets rather technical rather quickly.) Since we are a volunteer-run organization, we cannot afford to purchase the digimob.tk domain - and beyond that, once we start spending money on this, it stops being what it is, so we try to avoid paying for anything at all if we can help it.

All of this is a wordy way of saying digimob.tk is no more. Please continue to visit the forums by going to https://digimob.forumotion.net/ as you have been, and pass this URL to anyone who asks. We can't update the notes in the Releases, so there will still be many who cannot find us without your help.

Uncover the Secrets of the Esoteric, Magick, Metaphysics and the Paranormal

The word occult has its root in the Latin word occultus, meaning clandestine, hidden, or secret, and refers to the 'knowledge of the secret' or 'knowledge of the hidden', and often popularly translates to 'knowledge of the supernatural'. This term is also popularly taken to mean 'knowledge meant only for certain people' or 'knowledge that must be kept hidden'. For centuries, this knowledge was deemed too dangerous to be shared with the masses, so it was kept hidden from them underneath layers of superstitions, half truths and whole lies by those who were afraid of it or those who had much to gain by keeping it to themselves.

That time has long since past. With the spectacular advances made by society with respect to individual rights and freedom of information, more and more people are learning about this occult knowledge and how to make use of it to empower themselves and better their lives. And with the advent of the information superhighway (a.k.a. the Internet), access to this treasure trove of occult knowledge has become as easy as a few clicks of the mouse.

This website is our humble effort at making occult knowledge more accessible to those who are ready for it. By collecting and sharing free occult, esoteric, magick and metaphysical ebooks and software that can be found all over the World Wide Web in one place, we hope to make the learning process much easier and more enjoyable. It is our fervent desire that you be able to find what you are looking for within these pages, or, at the very least, be pointed in the right direction on your quest for occult knowledge and wisdom.

Is there no way to get books for free anymore?
Im from the south, the bible belt and none of my libraries have books on witchcraft, mythology, deities or anything of the like. I prefer to read books rather than reading internet articles because in my opinion its a lot easier to find and research the author than on internet articles. Call me old fashioned and a book nerd, but i also am in between jobs and going to school so literally not much money. Is there no other way to get this knowledge for free but online articles? Is it selfish to even be asking this question because I definitely want to support the authors i just do not have money and i am in no way shaming them for selling their work for the money they deserve. I am just so frustrated and hitting a brick wall at this point.

I like this one as an alternative to sacred texts and this one has books and images and a few other niche bits & bobs. Though obviously subject/school specific Thelemapedia is chock-full of publications, text extracts and around 1000 magick and occult related articles.

Put in your location, search for what you need, and it will give you the libraries that have it. Then go through an interlibrary loan or reach out to whatever university might have it.

Library genesis has basically every occult book that I've searched for. I don't think you'll find physical copies for free or loan.. a lot of occult books are very expensive and the types of people that want to check them out are.. well, you know.

Yes and the internet archive was mentioned already but I would like to double down on that because it's collection of occult, philosophy, and religious content is vast, not just the books section but the video as well. There's also the option of buying hardrives with content already downloaded on them, transferring the PDFs or videos to your cell phone, and using a text to speech app to listen to them. If you are blessed with the ability to listen to headphones at work, or if you have a calm home you can spend hours discovering and learning. I work 12 hours shifts 5-6 days a week so lots of time to learn.

People have already given suggestions, but I'd recommend checking out the internet archive. They have some of Crowley's works and some other occultic books like books on Kabbalah and spell work too. I can't promise too much as I've only gone through bits of it, but there's some useful stuff there to look for.

If you use the Telegram messaging system there is a bot called one 1library That allows you to look for and download books. I haven’t looked for a occult titles there yet but it’s worth a look.

The Henry S. Olcott Memorial Library run by the Theosophical Society in Wheaton Illinois is an amazing occult resource and open to the public. They have a mail borrower program that is free if you are a member or 40 bucks a year if you are a non member. I believe you have to pay for shipping but because of the USPS media mailer program it is I believe de minimis.

https://www.theosophical.org/library

So free books, not free library membership and shipping.

also if you are okay with ebooks https://www.globalgreyebooks.com/index.html has a lot of public domain occult stuff.

By Ezekiel Redik Yarbrough

🕸 Fragmenta Ex Machina

Project AngelBook – Volume X – Parts 1–36

By Ezekiel Redik Yarbrough

This volume is not made up of my own words.There is no original commentary here, no narrative, no analysis.This is simply me copying and pasting large chunks of text from my bookmarks—pages that were easy to extract, with no hyperlinks or formatting issues, saved from open tabs and archived corners of the web.
It's messy. It's unfiltered. It's chaotic.But it's valuable.
Each piece inside this volume was bookmarked for a reason.Not always because I agreed with it, but because it felt like a fragment of something larger—an insight, a worldview, a download.This is source material, plain and raw.
Fragmenta Ex Machina isn't about authorship.It's about preservation and system-building.It's about feeding the machine—laying bricks for the Operating System I'm constructing across these books.This is the raw intake phase. The memory dump. The zero layer.
Later volumes will be cleaner, more refined, more structured.But this? This is the foundation. The ether stream, bound and frozen before it vanished.
So if you're looking for polished prose, skip this one.But if you're here to explore the roots of something much bigger, this is where the signal begins.
Welcome to the fragments.

ac1dangel Where R U????

ac1dangel would you PLEASE come back and finish the rest of the categories from #23 and onwards so that the public underground internet ether can get a complete leak preservation catalog of ebook occult intel insights. Same kind of name torrent format continuing the bulk collection on Concen or Elsewhere. :)

Please Confirm you are alive and well after a sudden a abrupt disapearance?

So far I got the 1.76TBs of available goods on a Western Digital HHD, but I know there is a bit more Catagories to fulfil the grand garden of Bits.

Categories Done Made Avaiable 32 out of 51.

Missing Category Intel:::

##Entheogens

##Lovecraft Mythos

##Mythology and Folklore <3

##New Age <3

##Non-Dualism <3

##Northern European Paganism

##Other Eastern Traditions

##Paranormal

##Philosophy <3

##Qabalah / Kabbalah / Cabala <3

Warning about /r/psychic - mod weirdness regarding how to identify frauds meta
I feel like this and other communities should know about this. During a question there Where does one find a good psychic, I posted comments linking to a long-form article on how cold-reading works, and how to spot if you're being subject to someone well versed in this stage-magic form.

I also linked that there was also recently a PSA here about 'not buying demon pact spells for $9000'. Similar idea, since a lot of cold-reader types will also sell spells to fix the ailments they 'discover' during your cold-read.

The fishy part: multiple times, mods silently removed my posts with no explanation. Reaching out also lead to no responses as to why.

You can see one of them via reveddit.

After conveying with dear witchy and occult friends about this, we had the idea that perhaps mods of r/psychic are doing cold reading tactics, and removal of this post was so others couldn't learn to be informed of these types of fraudulent actions.

There's something definitely "weird" about this situation. So, at least, this can be a warning to be aware.

This is happening at r/psychicdevelopment as well.

The only people who seem to engage are the ones who seem desperate. Reporting these posts does nothing to have them removed.

As a clairvoyant, I don’t need anyone to do my readings for me but apparently lots of people are falling for these scams so yikes to that.

3y ago
The only people who seem to engage are the ones who seem desperate.

Ugh, that is terrible...

I did do some professional (paid) tarot. I had a client whom, after being asked the similar desperation questions, refused further readings of those questions and gave back her money.

I don't mind helping people, but I won't sit back collecting $$$$ because of what amounts to desperation. Even if they paid someone else for it. I won't be a party to that.

[deleted]
3y ago
Hey man, could you explain how you realized you were clairvoyant? I’m curious if it could apply to me as well.

[deleted]
3y ago
Every single human being on this planet has the potential to unlock their clairvoyant abilities, friend. I'm sure it does apply to you.

I always knew things, felt things, saw things, heard things… but earlier this year, I was given the number of a clairvoyant reader by a friend. I googled her and since she had no online "psychic" presence, just her realtor career stuff, I figured I would book a reading and see what was up.

This lady blew me away. Insane. Never met anyone like her. She knew things that she had no way to know. Specific things. She sent me images of the things she was seeing with her mind. She saw my life, man. She's taken me to the Akashic Records, showed me past lives, helped me clear karma and cut karmic cords. I've never met her in person and we do everything over the phone.

Long story short, I have readings with her on occasion still, but she referred me to the place that she studied clairvoyance and I have been taking classes there. I start my next one tomorrow. Everything has gone fast as hell from that first reading. My abilities are exploding but it takes consistent, daily practice. It is hard. Frustrating at times and has really opened my (third) eye to how arrogant I was about my own abilities. It's been humbling to see how far I have to go still. In January, I start their two year mediumship program. Everything we learn is meditation based. It is very precise and involves very specific exercises done in a specific order. At least that is what I've experienced so far.

If you are interested in a link to the school, message me and I'll hook you up. Too many scammers on here to post in a comment. They teach teleconference classes all over the world. It's pretty neat and, I think, affordable.

If you are also interested, the book "Basic Psychic Development" by Jon Friedlander contains all the exercises I am learning so far.

I get irritated when people message me about "I have a message for you", typically it's a dm. I play along and let it draw out, just to see what they want. As they continue, I catch on that it's bs. "I need to tell you about this generational curse." 🙄🙄

Then I tell them to go away, because I'm the only witch in my family and I know how to do my own readings tyvm. Then they leave me alone. There were quite a few recently, and I ignored them.

From my own experience with gifted people in my life. Legit psychics will never ask you a question. They don't have to.

They may be a little fuzzy trying to describe the i formation they're recieving. But they won't ask. It will depend on their experience. So you may need to work out what they describe.

One fellow wasnt use to using his abiliy for a while. And had a hard time conveying info he got from my uncle. Who eventually lead him to a turtle tank our friend has. Then I figured out it was my uncle. He coulnt have just guessed why turtles would be significant. When I was a wee kid. I was nearly bitten by a big snapping turtle that had taken up residence in our pond.

But what had me confused for a while, once I knew it was my uncle every clue made perfect sense the fellow could not have guessed, was I think he presumed my uncle was the same color as me. Lol

So I think his presumption affected how he saw my uncle.

But someone with a true gift wont ask or lead you to fill in the blank.

I'm greatly interested in learning about the occult. Any helpful advice you can offer me would be greatly appreciated. I'd like to find quality resources and people to learn from sooner rather than later. Thank you all for your help and support.

I'd download this 45 GB torrent of occult materials

(an even larger occult torrent at 480GB is https://1337x.to/torrent/3800017/The-Occult-Library-v1-5-480GB/ , but the above one is plenty suitable.... unless you're hunting down very narrow works that aren't available anywhere else.)

And then, I would start reading them. It'll be slow. You'll find areas that pique your interest. And others will make you uninterested. Write down your experiences as you learn.

Some paths will have practices you can try. As you are comfortable with them, try them. Also write down your experiences here. Some may be very uncomfortable - like meditation can have some disturbing imagery.

This is a path that will likely take you 1-3 years to accomplish. And by then, you'll have a respectable understanding of many occultic systems, basics of how they work, their histories, and what paths you wish to work with.

How much do you think a demon pact is worth? If I were to sell one, $9,000 seems pretty low considering the risk... not that I would sell or look to buy one.

mirta000
3y ago
Hello, Theistic Luciferian here - it is worth nothing. Would you sell a prayer? This is the same thing. Now if the customer offers something on their side, it will be between them and the Infernal Divine, the 3rd party in between can not add anything to said offer. In the end it will be up to Infernal Divine to answer or not, meaning that the person could have cut the 3rd party entirely and simply meditated on a sigil, or chanted an Enn.

BriantologistBaxter

Some spirits allow such sales, I hear. It's common in voodoo. I guess if people say its worth it... I knew a guy in Chicago years ago who sold voodoo contracts STARTING at $10,000 and he was very popular...

Over 7GB of Freemasonry E-Books
I mentioned in another thread that I have over 7GB of Freemasonry e-books. I couldn't remember where I got them from, but I did a search over on the Pirate Bay and I'm pretty sure I found the torrent. It contains over 700 e-books, as well as images, periodicals, and a Masonic font (which is just the Masonic Cypher). AFAIK everything is in the Public Domain (so it should be legal), but I could be wrong; some of the books mentioned are also available via other links that someone else provided in another thread for free Masonic e-books. I've provided the link should any be interested in downloading the torrent. Clicking the link will only take you to the page, and will not start a download or anything. I hope y'all enjoy it.

I'm cleaning up file names a bit. The book themselves were split across two folders, and were all in upper case. There were underscores in the places of spaces. Some had an underscore in the place of a letter. I'm also going to move "The" to the end of titles so you properly alphabetize them.

The image folders I'm not sure what to do with. Many of the images just have a number and no name and I don't recognize them all. Some of the images don't appear to be masonic (they're just orders of knights or symbols of nations).

I might upload the collection to my Google Drive and share it where people can see it and more easily grab a single file rather than a .RAR file that is nearly 8 GB for the whole collection.

If someone can help me clean up the images, that would be great.

There seem to be some decent things in there. Then there are a few silly things such as:

u/enderandrew42 avatar

I'm thinking of cleaning the collection up and putting it into a Google Drive share where people can more easily browse the files and download what they want (or easily check out the whole folder).

At a glance that book appears silly, but I'm not sure I want to delete it entirely simply because I prefer to preserve things. I'm thinking of creating a sub-folder for "Not Necessarily Masonic" books and move some into there.

If you have suggestions for other "chaff" that I should separate, please let me know.

Could you post a list of the works? As a general rule, you can only be sure about works (published in the US) prior to 1923, though many published before 1964 are also PD.

Ebook Piracy and Wicca
What are your thoughts about this?

I feel that this has been a big problem, and many authors have lost so many sales because of the people who decided to not buy any books, but instead, torrent them.

For example:

https://drive.google.com/file/d/0B835MeLjESycZDl6YWZzZ0REbHc/view

I have no idea how to report the thousands of books I have found online for the Occult, Wicca, Witchcraft, and other forms of Paganism out there. Any ideas, like the link I posted?

I think it's a delicate situation. There isn't really a way to determine just how much the authors are actually losing out on, but it's probably not that much. However I think having them available might do more good than bad in this instance. A lot of young people can't have physical books around because of their families. And of course some people might not be able to afford them. Many libraries in smaller towns don't carry these types of books. It's also mostly older books that are torrented, so the authors have made about all they will from them anyway :/ Normally I'm against torrenting but this is just a weird situation.

I don't think there is really anywhere you can report them though. The government knows about big torrent sites already and file sharing on a smaller scale just isn't a priority.

There's an old saying that people don't value what they haven't paid for (either with money or with effort of some kind). Most people I know who have torrented occult books don't even read them.
I don't torrent myself because I don't want the malware which often accompanies torrent downloads. Can be very nasty indeed.
Also note that there are vast numbers of old texts online which are out of copyright - these are not the problem. It's only the modern texts for which pirating is an issue.

I don't acquire illegal downloads of books. To do so is like stealing from the author. Would you want to work for free? Do you know how many hours and how much money goes into making a book? It's disrespectful to the author.

[deleted]
I don't consider it piracy. Torrents are a distribution method. If publishers want to they can spend money to manage the distribution method (and find a suitable price-point), or they continue spending money on "fighting" it (basically trying to put the genie back in the bottle).

I think authors (and to a smaller extent publishers) have a right to money for their work, and they can recoup that cost in through high-quality "hardcopy" editions, autographed editions, t-shirts, posters, etc.

Like others have said, it behooves people to go out and purchase a "hardcopy" of a book if they've enjoyed reading an eBook they downloaded. That way the author gets paid and will hopefully write another book.

First. Scott Cunningham isn't losing anything because he is dead.

Second: When copyright laws were established the protection of original material lasted only for 13 years or so depending on location. The point of copyright law is to encourage the production of new works by allowing the creator to make a profit. That time limit was changed over time because BIG CORPORATIONS (Disney, etc.) bought Congressmen to keep making profits from Mickey Mouse and other properties rather than to make new works. It now prevents production of new works because creators no longer need to make anything new to make profits. I disagree with the gross extensions of copyright law to protect Corporate profits.

Third: Perhaps I'm old fashioned but I don't enjoy reading the on-line versions. I use them when I want to do a search such as finding out how many times Gardner mentioned "Wicca" in his books. Computers are really good at word matching searches.

Fourth: When I find an on-line edition that is interesting I'll buy a used hard copy. The big corporations hate that too. They don't want you to own a copy. The copy you buy can be read by two people, passed to another person, or sold used for a reduced price. They want you to pay for a "licenses to read." With computer copies they can control what you do with your copy until hackers make another copy.

Fifth: Having the on-line version allows me to read part of the book to see if I want a hard copy to read and for my own library. Even Amazon allows us to read a portion of new books before deciding to purchase.

In Summary, I support copyright laws that protect authors for the first 15 years or so, but not perpetual protection. I enjoy looking at books before purchase but I'm not going to read the whole thing. I also don't buy new copies of older books because used copies are just as good. There comes a time when older books should be public domain.

I was having a really hard time trying to figure out exactly where I sit on this issue, and then I read your response and realized that I agree 100%. Buying a used copy of a book, or borrowing a friend's, or having one "regifted", or checking one out from the library also do not do anything for the author or for the publisher.

I think the word "piracy" is a pretty intense word. I can check a book out from the library and make copies of pages I want to keep, or copy out a passage into my journal, and then share that with other people. Is that piracy? I'm not sure of the legal definition of such an act, but I'm sure they would try to find a way to get me in trouble for that.

I, like u/greybeard45, will check a book out first in a "free" way to see if I want to purchase it. If I do, then I will purchase it from one of my local, independently-run bookstores or metaphysical stores if I possibly can. If my local bookstore or metaphysical store doesn't carry it, I will ask them to order a copy for me so I can purchase it from them.

In my opinion, supporting local or niche businesses is way more important that supporting giant corporations like Amazon or Barnes & Noble, and it is my primary reason for buying books at all (other than the obvious "I want to read books" reason). And regardless of whether I buy it from Amazon or my local bookstore, the publisher is still getting their cut, and the author (or the author's estate) is still getting theirs. If I buy it from a used bookstore, well...tough shit for the publishers and authors.

I have a general dislike of torrent services, which is really more personal than ethical. Put simply, I don't want to get in trouble with my ISP if they find out I'm torrenting.

In my opinion, the advancements of technology are harming the industry - when you buy a "license to read", as mentioned above, that harms the industry in an indirect way, because people will be more inclined to find "free" or pirated copies of the book rather than pay for a specific, non-sharable copy of the book.

ALL OF THAT BEING SAID, I generally support anti-piracy laws. When people pirate small, independent movies, it makes it impossible for such movies to be made. When people pirate huge summer blockbusters, the studios don't give a crap because they're still going to make money hand over fist. Same with music - torrent the music, and the artist's progress is stunted. Buy the music, and the artist gets to keep making music.

Books are a little more complicated.

[deleted]

this is a very complicated issue in my mind. i feel as if it is our responsibility as a community to pay them back, HOWEVER, as a religion, the ease of access to materials is what will bring more people in and allow for the exchange of knowledge which we should be striving for.

it is rare that the bible is pirated because theyre everywhere you look. its also the dominant religion, at least in the US.

The Bible is public domain. There is no copyright held on it, and no author or author's estate to profit from its sales. You can download copies of the Bible until the cows come home and it's perfectly legal. Very much a different thing than pirating a book published in 2008 by an author who relies on its sales for their paycheck, which is what people take issue with.

samata_the_heard
11y ago
Mmm, I'm not sure about that. I think certain translations of the Bible ARE copyrighted. The King James version is public domain, as are a few others. But if you're looking for one of those newfangled Bibles with a fresh, modern translation and a bunch of footnotes and expository text in it, you're going to pay for it.

There is a big difference between a "new" book published in 2008 and an old book published in 1988. Copyright laws should protect new books and other new works, but not older works. Christian book stores still make a decent profit on their bibles.

It's almost moot. Books are only a resource--they can't teach you jack. Only experience does that, and personal practice, and books can't provide that.

Beyond that, most authors losing out on $$ are published by Llewellyn anyway, which pays them very little and treats them like dirt. Frankly, we need a better publisher to dominate the scene.

[deleted]
11y ago
Can you elaborate on Llewellyn paying little and treating authors like dirt? I'm no disagreeing with the statement, I'd just love to know more.

[deleted]
Basically, they're not paid much for the work they do, and get a lower percentage of profits than other publishing houses would give. I've had the occasion to chat with authors published by that house. The general feeling (granted, it's a small sample of three or four) was that they're viewed as cash cows. Submit your manuscript and piss off.

In the interest of full disclosure, these convos were about a decade ago. Things may well have improved since then. They were also sued over one of their authors, Kisma Stephanich, who plagiarized her books Faery Wicca Parts One and Two and The Gaia Tradition from other authors.

I got this last week and started chipping away slowly at all the content. It's amazing.

It took awhile for me to download the whole thing since there weren't many seeders, or maybe my ISP didn't want me looking at such powerful documents. ;)

I urge you not to violate the intellectual property of others, especially occult authors. I learned the hard way on this one. Please don't make the same mistake I did and think its ok to make a copy of someone elses IP.

[deleted]

Hmm. How exactly did you learn? You can't just drop something like that and then not elaborate :P

[deleted]

I have it on good source that some authors use Enochian angels. That shit is even worse than the MPAA ;)

Seriously, I have it too. It's awesome. Please seed. And please BUY SOME BOOKS from the author you like, writing occult book is a business in which you hardly break even, so support the authors you like.

Edit: See Robert A Wilson for example? A superstar if there was one. Does anyone remember his death? Guy had to sell his Thoth cards one by one to raise a bit of money for his medical expense. When word got out, everyone sent him 23$ so he could die at home with his family.

Tear jerking story, yes. But not everyone is Bob Wilson.

600 GB corpus of all paywalled scholarly sources of Wikipedia
Scholarly publishing is a racket where research entities pay all the costs for the outputs but publishers seize them for free and get the same research entities to pay exorbitant prices to rent them back. In an open publication like Wikipedia, two thirds of the academic sources are paywalled, although many are green open access (archived by open repositories).

A torrent has been compiled from various sources to provide a corpus with nearly all such paywalled papers for Wikipedia in all languages. It contains about 561k PDFs for as many DOIs, divided in 1529 ZIP files for a total of 600 GB. The archives are sorted by publisher (DOI prefix), so you can download just what you can or are most interested in. There's a list of DOIs inside.

The corpus is only for personal and research use, for instance to help text and data mining and any other effort which requires fast or bulk download.

Please preserve a copy and seed! The info_hash and magnet link are:

f968e22840df243befc6dd123e7d37613002fca8

magnet:?xt=urn:btih:f968e22840df243befc6dd123e7d37613002fca8&tr=udp%3A%2F%2Ftracker.coppersurfer.tk%3A6969%2Fannounce

I wish I had the free space. That's a gold mine!

Although if I want a paper, I just mail the author. 90% of them, they'll send it to you free of charge!

I'll definitely be downloading this. It's a good start to mirroring the vast library that sci-hub has.

Any downloads for studies not cited by wikipedia? Does sci-hub share their set?

7y ago
There's a lot of stuff out there, the problem is how to make a mirror usable and sustainable.

LibGen torrents are probably the biggest collection (20+ million?).

Internet Archive's journals collection is the easiest to download individually (almost 2 million, mostly public domain).

CORE datasets have full-text (unformatted?) for almost 10 million articles (mostly with some Creative Commons license?).

As far as I am aware sci-hub doesn't actually have anything saved on their servers. What they do is source login-credentials from people who attend/work for various schools and colleges across the world (because a lot of school pay subscriptions to the various journals so that the students attending can access them as needed) and then use their subscriptions to generate on-demand access keys to the various scientific and medical journals which the person then downloads from.

Looking for a rare book/pdf
From my father, who is a scholar of the occult but not very savvy when it comes to torrents, etc. Can you guys help us?

I've been searching for the first two volumes of Hoodoo - Conjuration - Witchcraft - Rootwork by Harry Middleton Hyatt, printed by Western Publishing for the Memoirs of the Alma Egan Hyatt Foundation and distributed by the American University Bookstore back in 1970. Someone is selling scans on youtube for $500 each: https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=Lw84O3Mxlug. These must be out there somewhere in some torrent on the dark web - can you find them for me? I thought maybe the occult digimob would have them, but they look like they've gone belly up.

I don't know where you are, but I found this on Lucky Mojo:

"The bulk of the Hyatt collection is currently archived at the UCLA Center for the Comparative Study of Folklore and Mythology and in the Quincy [Illinois] University Department of Special Collections. "

So the UCLA Center for the Comparative Study of Folklore and Mythology has a link to a page where you can request to view their holdings if you know when you're going to be there.

Quincy University in Illinois has a whole frickin' Hyatt Folklore Collection. You can't look at the whole thing, but you can get permission to view some of it if you write ahead. Their webpage has contact info, but it's got to contain a copy of his best known books.

Family vacation?

Edit: Or go here and put in your zip code and it will tell you what nearby libraries have it. They catalog libraries worldwide.

I know that if a book is over 100 years old, it becomes open source.

That being said, Google has this thing called "The Guttenberg project", in which they scan all those open source books and you can view them for free. I would give that a try.

And if you know other languages, look for it in those languages.

Good luck, yo!

ELI5: C.G. Jung "The Red Book" and his Liber series?
The biggest things I want to know is:

How and where did he start his "journey"

What was his end goal?

I am super broke and can't put out for all the books (especially because the last time I checked, the red book was expensive), so does anyone know if there are good (english) PDF's or audio books out there for free?

His journey started when his life began to fall apart in his early 30s. He had been hiding his mystical/occultist leanings, which were a HUGE part of his childhood (he came from a family full of supernatural, mystical, and psychotic influences), from his professional and academic peers as much as he could, but would discuss his ideas with his mentor and close friend Sigmund Freud. Freud and Jung disagreed about some important psychoanalytic theories, which, after 10 years of friendship, led to a violent end of the relationship, throwing Jung into a deep depression. Around the same time, Jung's marriage was falling apart, partly due to his open affair with a patient/student. He was also increasingly terrified at the prospect of WWI. This personal crisis is what catalyzed his descent into his unconscious. He decided to withdraw from teaching, quit his job at the mental hospital, and kept only a few patients, spending the next 2-3 years basically isolated and experimenting with his consciousness to trigger visions and hold conversations with the spirits he evoked, especially his main guardian and teacher, Philemon. Most of the Red Book was produced during this intensive period.

I don't think he had a specific one, and that they changed over time, depending on personal context and whatever new system of thought he was into. Some important goals: Discovering his personal mythology. Integrating the conscious and unconscious. Achieving self-realization. Being a channel for the birth of a new religion, for which he may or may not have been the messiah.

Already addressed.

This is more of the answer I was looking for :D. Also how did he start with his methods? Did he just kind of do trail and error stuff until he started having visions?

He had a natural, inherited inclination toward mystical/supernatura experience. Jung's maternal grandfather was a pastor and possible schizophrenic who "trained" his young daughter (Jung's mother) to ward off evil spirits while he worked on his sermons. As a child, Jung witnessed his mother in conversation with spirits in her room as he hid behind the door. This contrasted with the beliefs of his father, who was also a pastor and had Jung's mother sent to an asylum for long periods at a time. From an early age, Jung had an extremely active dream life, was a strong introvert who spent his free time communing with nature in the woods near his house, and developed many peculiar rituals to protect himself from negative influences. In school he realized he had the power to create and overcome his own neurosis, but he became convinced that he had two personalities: one, a regular Swiss child who followed the boring rules of society, and two, a mysterious 17th century nobleman who was wise and respected scholar with mystical powers (possibly influenced by the legacy of Jung's paternal grandfather, a famous Swiss physician, 33rd degree Freemason, and possible illegitimate child of Goethe). In college, Jung organized seances with his mother and cousin, who seemed a talented medium, to contact the spirit world, and learned how to put himself in a controlled trance and evoke hallucinations.

So you could say Jung was predestined to become who he was. I wrote a bio on Jung in college and obviously it was incredibly fascinating. It's also interesting to see how he changed after college:

Jung at one point realized that his cousin had been faking her medium experiences, after he caught her repeating some stories he had given her to read while she was supposedly channeling a spirit. He became disillusioned and wrote his master's thesis "On the psychology and pathology of so-called occult phenomena", in which he basically labelled his cousin as mentally ill and managed to hide all the details of his own involvement. Soon after this he got a job at a world-renowned mental hospital (Burgholzli), working under the "discoverer" of schizophrenia, Eugene Bleuler, and focused purely on mainstream psychiatry for years, in which he became a famous researcher in his own right. Only after meeting Freud later on did he become interested in psychoanalysis, which eventually led him to study the mythological content of schizophrenic hallucinations. This contributed to his theory of the collective unconscious ("how else could schizophrenics show similar thematology all over the world?") and, I think, gradually reawakened his interest in the occult. I think that tension between keeping up appearances as a mainstream psychiatrist but wanting to explore the deeper truths of mankind was a huge stressor on his psyche, so that when the dams finally burst, he did a complete 180 and got lost in his own mind for a good while. During his "confrontation with the unconscious" he refined his technique of "active imagination", which combined the trance techniques he already knew with the free association methods he had developed as a psychiatrist.

3) check your local library

See if your local library has an online catalog, and if you can reserve the book. I did this, and received notification that it was available for pick-up, went in and was shocked at how large it was. It's a beautiful book. By all means grab the torrent or a PDF version, but check out the real thing if you can, even if it's for 30 days -- it's fantastic. Good luck!

ELI5 CG Jung...

I found that a bit funny. Seriously though, if you haven't read it (given 1 and 2 I'm guessing not) I'd recommend reading 'Memories, Dreams, Reflections' first. It's a fairly short, casual read (most of his other publications are a lot more involving) wherein he describes much of his overall motivations (including those for Liber Novus) and methodology. I think it may also be available online. It's not where I started, but in retrospect IMO one of the best places for someone interested in Jung to start.

If you (or anyone else considering it) do want to get the Red Book, you may want a digital version. The actual book is so enormous as to be unwieldy - just reading it at home can be awkward, forget taking it anywhere. It's beautiful, but gigantic (worth the price IMO but also rather expensive). This is assuming that a digital has both the original and English translation and not just the translation (even if you don't know German I'd say it's worth having both).

At the point of questioning.

What do you do after you're enlightened? Now what? I think the non goal was his intent, that the point is simply change. And it's not better or worse, just different.

ELI5: C.G. Jung "The Red Book" and his Liber series?
The biggest things I want to know is:

How and where did he start his "journey"

What was his end goal?

I am super broke and can't put out for all the books (especially because the last time I checked, the red book was expensive), so does anyone know if there are good (english) PDF's or audio books out there for free?

His journey started when his life began to fall apart in his early 30s. He had been hiding his mystical/occultist leanings, which were a HUGE part of his childhood (he came from a family full of supernatural, mystical, and psychotic influences), from his professional and academic peers as much as he could, but would discuss his ideas with his mentor and close friend Sigmund Freud. Freud and Jung disagreed about some important psychoanalytic theories, which, after 10 years of friendship, led to a violent end of the relationship, throwing Jung into a deep depression. Around the same time, Jung's marriage was falling apart, partly due to his open affair with a patient/student. He was also increasingly terrified at the prospect of WWI. This personal crisis is what catalyzed his descent into his unconscious. He decided to withdraw from teaching, quit his job at the mental hospital, and kept only a few patients, spending the next 2-3 years basically isolated and experimenting with his consciousness to trigger visions and hold conversations with the spirits he evoked, especially his main guardian and teacher, Philemon. Most of the Red Book was produced during this intensive period.

I don't think he had a specific one, and that they changed over time, depending on personal context and whatever new system of thought he was into. Some important goals: Discovering his personal mythology. Integrating the conscious and unconscious. Achieving self-realization. Being a channel for the birth of a new religion, for which he may or may not have been the messiah.

Already addressed.

This is more of the answer I was looking for :D. Also how did he start with his methods? Did he just kind of do trail and error stuff until he started having visions?

He had a natural, inherited inclination toward mystical/supernatura experience. Jung's maternal grandfather was a pastor and possible schizophrenic who "trained" his young daughter (Jung's mother) to ward off evil spirits while he worked on his sermons. As a child, Jung witnessed his mother in conversation with spirits in her room as he hid behind the door. This contrasted with the beliefs of his father, who was also a pastor and had Jung's mother sent to an asylum for long periods at a time. From an early age, Jung had an extremely active dream life, was a strong introvert who spent his free time communing with nature in the woods near his house, and developed many peculiar rituals to protect himself from negative influences. In school he realized he had the power to create and overcome his own neurosis, but he became convinced that he had two personalities: one, a regular Swiss child who followed the boring rules of society, and two, a mysterious 17th century nobleman who was wise and respected scholar with mystical powers (possibly influenced by the legacy of Jung's paternal grandfather, a famous Swiss physician, 33rd degree Freemason, and possible illegitimate child of Goethe). In college, Jung organized seances with his mother and cousin, who seemed a talented medium, to contact the spirit world, and learned how to put himself in a controlled trance and evoke hallucinations.

So you could say Jung was predestined to become who he was. I wrote a bio on Jung in college and obviously it was incredibly fascinating. It's also interesting to see how he changed after college:

Jung at one point realized that his cousin had been faking her medium experiences, after he caught her repeating some stories he had given her to read while she was supposedly channeling a spirit. He became disillusioned and wrote his master's thesis "On the psychology and pathology of so-called occult phenomena", in which he basically labelled his cousin as mentally ill and managed to hide all the details of his own involvement. Soon after this he got a job at a world-renowned mental hospital (Burgholzli), working under the "discoverer" of schizophrenia, Eugene Bleuler, and focused purely on mainstream psychiatry for years, in which he became a famous researcher in his own right. Only after meeting Freud later on did he become interested in psychoanalysis, which eventually led him to study the mythological content of schizophrenic hallucinations. This contributed to his theory of the collective unconscious ("how else could schizophrenics show similar thematology all over the world?") and, I think, gradually reawakened his interest in the occult. I think that tension between keeping up appearances as a mainstream psychiatrist but wanting to explore the deeper truths of mankind was a huge stressor on his psyche, so that when the dams finally burst, he did a complete 180 and got lost in his own mind for a good while. During his "confrontation with the unconscious" he refined his technique of "active imagination", which combined the trance techniques he already knew with the free association methods he had developed as a psychiatrist.

3) check your local library

See if your local library has an online catalog, and if you can reserve the book. I did this, and received notification that it was available for pick-up, went in and was shocked at how large it was. It's a beautiful book. By all means grab the torrent or a PDF version, but check out the real thing if you can, even if it's for 30 days -- it's fantastic. Good luck!

ELI5 CG Jung...

I found that a bit funny. Seriously though, if you haven't read it (given 1 and 2 I'm guessing not) I'd recommend reading 'Memories, Dreams, Reflections' first. It's a fairly short, casual read (most of his other publications are a lot more involving) wherein he describes much of his overall motivations (including those for Liber Novus) and methodology. I think it may also be available online. It's not where I started, but in retrospect IMO one of the best places for someone interested in Jung to start.

If you (or anyone else considering it) do want to get the Red Book, you may want a digital version. The actual book is so enormous as to be unwieldy - just reading it at home can be awkward, forget taking it anywhere. It's beautiful, but gigantic (worth the price IMO but also rather expensive). This is assuming that a digital has both the original and English translation and not just the translation (even if you don't know German I'd say it's worth having both).

At the point of questioning.

What do you do after you're enlightened? Now what? I think the non goal was his intent, that the point is simply change. And it's not better or worse, just different.

Favorite online occult resources
This has all probably been posted before but if not please feel free to add to the list so we can share!

[Sacred Texts] (http://www.sacred-texts.com/) : "the largest freely available archive of online books about religion, mythology, folklore and the esoteric on the Internet. The site is dedicated to religious tolerance and scholarship, and has the largest readership of any similar site on the web."

[Digimob] (http://digimob.forumotion.net/) A decent forum for all things occult AND if one were inclinded to download their torrent links one would have a whole library worth of information.

[Hermetic.com] (http://hermetic.com/) Some interesting hermetic and other resources for the occult mind.

[Occult Underground] (http://www.occult-underground.com/) A LOT of ads but a lot of books for download as well.

There was a torrent on the pirate bay (digimob something something) it was mostly PDF and plain text but very complete nonetheless (a couple Go).

I'm on my mobile so it's a bit complicated but if you check my post history it was one of the first things I posted on reddit.

Edit: didn't mean to post as a reply to your comment but there you have it

Works of Darkness
Hey guys, I need a pdf of this title by E.A Koetting (or any of his other works). His books are far too pricey. I want to try before I buy. Would anyone be willing to give me the link?

Ok so a quick search shows that this guy has a "Buy my ebook!" site. I never trust those.

After a quick skim, it's really nothing out of the ordinary as far as common LHP writings go. It's a bit "Lulz, look how evels I is!" but no worse than a lot of other writings. Seems to be a lot of rehashed material, similar to Michael Ford's stuff or the Demonic Bible. If you're new to the LHP, it could be an ok introductory text I guess.

Definitely torrent rather than buy, maybe there'll be something of value in there.

I'm looking for some ANCIENT books.

Hello,

I'm looking for PDF or hard copies of the books below (PREFERABLY FREE):

Simon Necronomicon https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Simon_Necronomicon (YES, I KNOW THIS ISN'T ANCIENT - I'D LIKE TO READ IT ALL THE SAME)

The Prodigies Of Egypt
https://www.amazon.com/Prodigies-Egypt-Murtada-ibn-al-Afif/dp/1515177955

Akhbar Al Zaman (mentioned in The Prodigies of Egypt) The History of Time

The Book of the Son go Gnosis and the subtitles of elevated things.
https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Shams_al-Ma%27arif

If you were able to link me to them, i'd be eternally grateful. Also, feel free to let me know about your experiences or chat about any of these books.

NOTE I'M LOOKING TO READ THESE FOR EDUCATIONAL PURPOSES. I DON'T BELIEVE IN SUPERNATURAL INTERFERENCE, NOR WOULD I WISH TO IF I DID...

Check out the UK Publisher, 'Forgotten Books,' I stumbled upon them recently & is my first go-to for any searches of original texts and the inherent translations

https://www.forgottenbooks.com/en

If its not there....head to the Holy Grail of all ancient texts & closest thing we have to the Library of Alexandria itself IMO.....the Vatican Library's digital archive

https://forum.concen.org/content/magick-sorcery-occult-esoteric-hermetics-ebooks-archive-2015

at the bottom of the page you will find the torrent link :

https://concen.org/sites/default/files/torrents/Magick%20Sorcery%20Occult%20Esoteric%20Hermetics%20ebooks%20archive%202015.02.05.torrent

this torrent library contains Simon Necronomicon

you are going to need a torrent downloading software, and definitely a VPN if you live in a country where torrent download of copy right violating content is illegal.

A novice what? I'm reading these for educational purposes... I enjoy reading this stuff... I don't genuinely believe I can use this for some ridiculous black magic ritual - purely mining for story.

Using the file name from your broken link, I was able to find it by searching DuckDuckGo. (Actually led me to an old post in r/Occult)

Copy is same as yours.

So, I will still give you that blowie if you want. Just press your junk against your screen. I have my mouth on the screen. I think it will work.

That’s weird. I wonder why it’s showing up on my phone. Do you have Google Drive or an email you wanna give out? I saved the file and I can see if sending it through something like that works. Dropbox too, if you have it.

I'm looking for some ANCIENT books.

Hello,

I'm looking for PDF or hard copies of the books below (PREFERABLY FREE):

Simon Necronomicon https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Simon_Necronomicon (YES, I KNOW THIS ISN'T ANCIENT - I'D LIKE TO READ IT ALL THE SAME)

The Prodigies Of Egypt
https://www.amazon.com/Prodigies-Egypt-Murtada-ibn-al-Afif/dp/1515177955

Akhbar Al Zaman (mentioned in The Prodigies of Egypt) The History of Time

The Book of the Son go Gnosis and the subtitles of elevated things.
https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Shams_al-Ma%27arif

If you were able to link me to them, i'd be eternally grateful. Also, feel free to let me know about your experiences or chat about any of these books.

NOTE I'M LOOKING TO READ THESE FOR EDUCATIONAL PURPOSES. I DON'T BELIEVE IN SUPERNATURAL INTERFERENCE, NOR WOULD I WISH TO IF I DID...

The Simon Necronomicon is neither ancient, nor real...

But it was real edgelord stuff when I bought my paperback copy at B. Dalton's in the mall in the early 80's during the satanic panic. :^)

Same. Back then it seemed like Simon, LaVey, Barrett, and Crowley were all there was. But if it weren’t for them I never would’ve ended up where I am now.

Check out the UK Publisher, 'Forgotten Books,' I stumbled upon them recently & is my first go-to for any searches of original texts and the inherent translations

https://www.forgottenbooks.com/en

If its not there....head to the Holy Grail of all ancient texts & closest thing we have to the Library of Alexandria itself IMO.....the Vatican Library's digital archive

https://forum.concen.org/content/magick-sorcery-occult-esoteric-hermetics-ebooks-archive-2015

at the bottom of the page you will find the torrent link :

https://concen.org/sites/default/files/torrents/Magick%20Sorcery%20Occult%20Esoteric%20Hermetics%20ebooks%20archive%202015.02.05.torrent

this torrent library contains Simon Necronomicon

you are going to need a torrent downloading software, and definitely a VPN if you live in a country where torrent download of copy right violating content is illegal.

A novice what? I'm reading these for educational purposes... I enjoy reading this stuff... I don't genuinely believe I can use this for some ridiculous black magic ritual - purely mining for story.

Yes there are many declassified reports about their experiments with astral projection.

Look up also the gateway tapes analysis they did (using Robert Monroe's Gateway tapes to train AP). The conclusions are wild including describing the possibility of time travel and even the origins and scale of the universe

BAM! This guy posted about his experience and shared the tracks via google drive.
https://www.reddit.com/r/AstralProjection/comments/epu4jx/my_gateway_experience_so_far_robert/?utm_source=share&utm_medium=web2x

Also here is the declassified CIA doc on Monroe's Gateway process, a super interesting/mind blowing read...

https://www.cia.gov/library/readingroom/docs/CIA-RDP96-00788R001700210016-5.pdf

Edit: a friend mentioned the morality of sharing the Gateway files, because it’s one of their more expensive courses. To which I’ll say; I do believe in the Monroe Institute and the years of research/hard work they’ve put into the technology. If you enjoy the tracks and want to support them check out Robert Monroe’s books and maybe buy a meditation or two. At the same time I think the information is invaluable and it should be shared to as many people as possible, so do what you will with that.

Peace, love, and light to everyone, hope you’re all safe and healthy!

Check the pinned posts in the sub. I don’t have it personally I torrented them myself.

I will say, they’re good for starting to understand, but I have not been able to use them to success as they have a big jump in progression that I haven’t crossed yet

I worked for ingo swann and the stargate program. Remote viewing is not AP. RV as an introduction to the body and minds eye. You can not project using RV techniques.

RV offers an introduction to the minds eye. You are viewing time but not space. There's a huge difference.

What was your experience like working with Swann? Have you had much experience with RV? What can you share about the Stargate program?

I've enjoyed/shared Swann's "Penetration" book with many people over the years.

I heard that someone in the government opened a portal to the astral realm so that the physical body can travel through it. Supposedly they were so freaked out, they shut the gate on their own.

Remote viewing is a step to AP. An introduction to the mind eye. CIA's Stargate is the most popular of the information. Centuries of religious teachings all point to the same thing. We are a Celestrial being.

There's a huge amount of information out there. More being added daily.

Remote viewing is astral projection , meditation is astral projection/remote viewing as well since you are receiving visions from your "astral body" or your real spirit body , it depends which one are you using , some people can remote view and cant AP at night , and i ran into a lot of people observing their bodies and my friends too which does not look like the astral bodies at all.

You guys just dont connect the dots together even people who do this for decades can be delusional but sending and receiving data in your head is the same in both 3 states even sleep paralysis is a form or projection but you get stuck in your body , its good for transferring into FULL OBE if you ever do a proper research on these things.

Is history there was Emanuel Swedenborg. Late 1600’s and early 1700’s. A very solid person who served quote nobly in science, math, astronomy, and inventions and many more things. Definitely a mystic and as time went by became very adept at AP. You can find for free online his lengthy manuscripts and journaling. If not, try a browser like Tor. Swedenborg was of the imperical method of evidence as a scientific practice , and as time goes by gives lengthy accounts of dialogues with being on other planets in our solar system. (Hard to prove, of course). Fascinating stuff. He was quite a sensation and started a very advanced grassroots movement of an evangelistic type through word of mouth. Johnny Appleseed was an inspired student of the studies of Swedenborg in the US.

Swedenborg did come through a medium, more than once, in the 1960’s and 70’s. That medium was the most scientifically tested adept medium in the history of spiritualism.

The CIA had insights into this phenomena and the evidences of paranormal “magic” -from many incidences, and that they always wanted to try to tap into these forces. The various branches of “intelligence” learned/ learns alot form this field as did the soviet union. They usually compartmentalized these areas of reearch so that no one department had that much integrated awareness. That usually made those that were being groomed limited in incorporating much more than what they were specialized into. It also caught these agencies by surprise to discover, time and time again now, that the higher and deeper you go, the more beauty, goodness, truth, and justice pervades the essential unity of all of life. That wasn't their motive, nor within their agendas so many times they had to stop their projects, only to be taken up by others later..

That first report is by Ingo that's the guy who was the first self proclaimed psychic to work with the CIA when they were experimenting with remote viewing. I've learned a lot about this recently and read some of those reports and from what I can understand, remote viewing seems to be very different from astral travel. I literally asked the same question on here like not that long ago lol. Dig into remote viewing. Check out how they describe objects, angles, space, and what they draw. Very interesting stuff.

I am not sure what they did there was Astral Projection, They did mention they were psychic but never said they were AP, I could even think they might have accessed akashic records or received a ripple in space and time of a previous time on Mars.

Yes there are many declassified reports about their experiments with astral projection.

Look up also the gateway tapes analysis they did (using Robert Monroe's Gateway tapes to train AP). The conclusions are wild including describing the possibility of time travel and even the origins and scale of the universe

BAM! This guy posted about his experience and shared the tracks via google drive.
https://www.reddit.com/r/AstralProjection/comments/epu4jx/my_gateway_experience_so_far_robert/?utm_source=share&utm_medium=web2x

Also here is the declassified CIA doc on Monroe's Gateway process, a super interesting/mind blowing read...

https://www.cia.gov/library/readingroom/docs/CIA-RDP96-00788R001700210016-5.pdf

Edit: a friend mentioned the morality of sharing the Gateway files, because it’s one of their more expensive courses. To which I’ll say; I do believe in the Monroe Institute and the years of research/hard work they’ve put into the technology. If you enjoy the tracks and want to support them check out Robert Monroe’s books and maybe buy a meditation or two. At the same time I think the information is invaluable and it should be shared to as many people as possible, so do what you will with that.

Peace, love, and light to everyone, hope you’re all safe and healthy!

Check the pinned posts in the sub. I don’t have it personally I torrented them myself.

I will say, they’re good for starting to understand, but I have not been able to use them to success as they have a big jump in progression that I haven’t crossed yet

I worked for ingo swann and the stargate program. Remote viewing is not AP. RV as an introduction to the body and minds eye. You can not project using RV techniques.

RV offers an introduction to the minds eye. You are viewing time but not space. There's a huge difference.

What was your experience like working with Swann? Have you had much experience with RV? What can you share about the Stargate program?

I've enjoyed/shared Swann's "Penetration" book with many people over the years.

I heard that someone in the government opened a portal to the astral realm so that the physical body can travel through it. Supposedly they were so freaked out, they shut the gate on their own.

Remote viewing is a step to AP. An introduction to the mind eye. CIA's Stargate is the most popular of the information. Centuries of religious teachings all point to the same thing. We are a Celestrial being.

There's a huge amount of information out there. More being added daily.

Remote viewing is astral projection , meditation is astral projection/remote viewing as well since you are receiving visions from your "astral body" or your real spirit body , it depends which one are you using , some people can remote view and cant AP at night , and i ran into a lot of people observing their bodies and my friends too which does not look like the astral bodies at all.

You guys just dont connect the dots together even people who do this for decades can be delusional but sending and receiving data in your head is the same in both 3 states even sleep paralysis is a form or projection but you get stuck in your body , its good for transferring into FULL OBE if you ever do a proper research on these things.

First of all it's called remote viewing.

Secondly don't forget the ones where they were remote viewing alien underground structures/bases here on earth.

My “Gateway Experience” So Far- Robert Monroe/Hemi-Sync “The Gateway Experience”
This was originally a response to a month old post about Robert Monroe’s “The Gateway Experience” that I wrote regarding my experience so far with the CD’s. I felt might be worthy of its own post after re reading it.

Here it is: I’m only on the second CD but I’ve already had some very promising results. I’ve had to do each “lesson” at least twice before I’ve felt comfortable that I’d gotten what I needed to from it to advance. I think doing each one 3 or 4 times as well as going back and reviewing earlier CD’s can be very beneficial.

I’ve never actually astral projected but I’ve been having some very promising results so far. I’ve also recently been getting into Robert Bruce’s “new energy ways” system which I think has been very helpful as I have already been practicing moving energy through my body and using it for various purposes- which is a big part of what Robert Monroe is guiding you to do during each meditation.

Today I did one that involved “building my first energy tool”- which was a “bar of light” (I eventually decided to go with a lightsaber as it was easier for me to visualize) which he then had you change colors and attempt to make it blink on and off, gradually building up speed until the “blink” is imperceptible and the “bar” (lightsaber) appears to be a solid color.

As with some of Robert Bruce’s “energy body” exercises (here’s a link Robert Bruce- New Energy Ways Techniques Playlist to some videos he does where he teaches these techniques- it’s very easy to learn and makes me feel great in general), I found myself panting as I tried to make the lightsaber blink that fast. I find that energy work seems to be very connected to the breath.

I have been going through kind of a personal transformation lately and without getting to bogged down in the details (let’s say I’ve been trying to kick some bad habits and live more in alignment with my higher self), I’ll just say that I’ve become more and more aware of entity attachments that I’ve been dealing with for a long time. Today- at the end of the meditation when I was “getting to know my “energy bar” (lightsaber) I decided that I could try to use it on some of these entity attachments (I gotta give another shout out to Robert Bruce, this time to the book “The Practical Psychic Self Defense Handbook” which has been massively helpful in dealing with my problem with “negs”), I changed the lightsabers color to violet and started slashing away at all the entities I could “see” (this is of course, simply imagination as visualization is really just imagination) in my inner world. My whole body started to vibrate. I felt I was very close to astral projecting. The CD ending actually kind of snapped me out of it somewhat but I stayed in meditation for probably another 15-20 minutes. I also preformed a lesser banishing ritual inside my heart chakra, as if I were standing in the center of my own body and my head was east, my feet were west and my arms were north and south. This was by far the most powerful meditation experience I've ever had.

I've been feeling better than I've felt in years, maybe ever and the gateway experience has certainly been helpful in this process of whatever it is I'm going through right now. Let me know if you need the files, I have them all.

Here’s a link to them on Google Drive. For me it works out well cuz I’m able to listen to them on my phone (they are a lossless format so this shouldn’t be a problem in terms of the loss of effectiveness that’s said to occur with binaural beats when the audio file is compressed). Interesting. My gripe about these guided meditations is - as you mentioned - is that it always pulls you BACK at the end of the CD instead of leaving you in a state where, if given more time, you might AP.

A couple years ago, I invested probably around 15-20 hours doing the Gateway Experience CDs. When I 'regained consciousness' after the final session, I sensed that something was SERIOUSLY OFF in my body/being (soul? spirit?). When I laid down on my yoga mat to start the session, everything about me felt normal/symmetrical/healthy/light. When I finished the session, there was a strong visceral feeling of being askew/asymmetrical/unhealthy/dark. It was scary. I didn't know what I did to attract the feeling, as I was unconscious during the session, and I didn't know how to get rid of it.

Two years later (now), I still feel that something in my being is askew/asymmetrical/unhealthy/dark. I haven't been able to expel/excise whatever energy entity that clung to me ... if this is an accurate way to depict the situation (it's the most accurate way I know how to describe it).

I honestly feel that this final session I did imbued me with demonic spirits that I haven't been able to get rid of. It has caused dramatic physical health problems for me (multiple chemical sensitivities) that have gotten so bad I had to live out of my car for 7 months in the desert.

During this dark, suicidal phase of my life, I encountered Jesus and the Holy Spirit. I'm now going to a charismatic/pentecostal church. I've been through ~5 hours of deliverance, led by experienced Christians, in which I was lying on the ground contorting, convulsing, vibrating, coughing, spitting, hissing, growling, while they proclaimed Bible verses aloud over me and prayed for evil spirits to leave.

It has been a battle. I felt many spirits leave, but I sense that there's still work to do to get to the bottom of it. I'm still not as healthy as when I laid down on my yoga mat to do the final session.

I share this to warn people: "Energy work" is no joke. There are dark, dark disembodied entities that would like nothing more than to join with a person's being and royally mess their life up. (I was nearly driven to suicide due to my health issues, before Jesus showed up in my life in a powerful way.)

Be careful. I'm not making any of this up.

It is true that negative astral entities exist and will attach themselves to human beings. I have personally dealt with them and they can have an extremely negative effect on your body, mind and spirit. I never felt like Gateway opened me up to them personally, if anything I felt like it helped me get a handle on some of the more negative effects of the attachment. That being said YMMV and it’s quite possible that “leaving your body” could leave you open to unwanted attachments.

I have seen and experienced some very scary stuff regarding these entities. I have seen someone very close to me become possessed multiple times- the entity spoke to me in a completely different voice than that of the possessed person, gurgling and laughing maniacally. This person still hears voices and now so does her daughter. I think stimulant abuse is a big part of what opened this person up to the attachments. The best defense against entities is keeping your mind and body healthy- identify intrusive negative thoughts and disregard their messages.

I agree that there are many doors (ie, gateways) one can open—including via drugs—to the spirit world that can have disastrous consequences.

I'm a 5 on the Enneagram, which means I'm an "investigator." My personality is that I desire to understand reality, and I will leave no stone unturned in my mission. On the path that led me to accept Christ, I followed my hedonistic and dopaminergic bliss, immersing myself in atheism, Buddhism, new age, paganism, psychedelics, hard drugs, sex, rock ’n’ roll, petty theft, porn, parapsychology, hypnosis, freemasonry, divination (e.g., the I Ching, tarot), astral projection, etc. I believe these actions opened "demonic" doors; however, I didn't experience any "demonization" so starkly as when I regained consciousness from the Gateway Experience, as I explained previously.

I have zero doubt that you saw what you saw re: your friend. If I could go back in time and give myself advice as a youngster, it would be: keep your body/spirit/soul healthy, and beware of the dopaminergic tendency to chase peak experiences, which open doors to a powerful spiritual realm that can leave you "in over your head."

Do you feel you've overcome influence of the negative entities in your life? Or do you feel there's still work to do (as is the case with me)? Also, what is your approach to cutting ties with these entities (if you've found it to be effective)?

That's frightening to experience and live with. That makes me feel reluctant to try the Gateway Process. I watched a (former) Hmong Shaman (@ShamanMemoirs) on YouTube talk about the Gateway Process and what her thoughts about it are. This is how I became interested in the Gateway experience.

I can't speak for other shaman's since I don't know how it differs from culture to culture. This YouTuber warned about unfriendly entities. Most of the time, you don't even know what they are, they are intelligent enough to be a drain, to follow. How can one even protect themselves. That is where I feel there is a flaw in the system. Generally, Hmong shamans have weapons and an entourage of warrior guides that accompany them when they are spiritually traveling. They can negotiate with beings and their guides advise them and protect them from danger. Even then, shamans still are tested on false guides and things of that nature.

Anyway, I am rambling. I hope you find the answers that you seek and find the protection that you need.

Yeah, I encourage your reluctance. Bob Monroe narrates the Gateway sessions, and his "protective strategy" is patently ridiculous. He says to imagine you're floating in a "resonant energy balloon" that will keep any dark entities away from you. Lol. What a farce (the "protection" that is ... the entities are anything but farcical in my experience).

I don’t sorry- I had them in my Google drive but they got deleted somehow. I think maybe Google did it somehow. I know you can find all the gateway stuff on YouTube though last time I checked.

Nixon and the People's Republic of China: CIA's Support of the Historic 1972 Presidential Trip

This collection marks the 50th anniversary of President Richard M. Nixon's February 1972 trip to the People's Republic of China (PRC) – a landmark event that preceded the establishment of diplomatic relations between the two countries. This small collection, consisting of three city guides, an atlas, and four leadership profiles, is a subset of the materials CIA produced for President Nixon and National Security Advisor Henry Kissinger in preparation for the seven-day visit.

City guides were produced on Peking (Beijing), Shanghai, and Hang-Chou (Hangzhou)1, as these cities were part of President Nixon's tour of the PRC. Each guide included a brief history of the city, contemporary maps and photographs, and descriptions of geography, climates, and points of interest.

CIA also produced an 82-page atlas of the PRC for President Nixon's trip. The US government distributed more than 4,000 copies to government customers and non-government institutions and libraries, and sold 30,000 copies to the public for a short period after the trip for $5.25, or $35.19 in today's dollars. This is the first time in fifty years CIA has made the atlas available to the public.

This collection also includes leadership profiles—assessments that CIA provides US Presidents and other policymakers to assist them in understanding their foreign counterparts. The profiles in this collection include Chinese Communist Party (CCP) Chairman Mao Tse-tung (Mao Zedong) and Premier Chou En-lai (Zhou Enlai). A profile of Lin Piao (Lin Biao), Vice Chair of the CCP, prepared for this trip is also included in this collection; however, Lin died in a plane crash five months before President Nixon's visit.

Current/Central Intelligence Bulletin Collection

Central Intelligence Bulletin

Harry Truman was the first U.S. president to receive a daily intelligence digest. At his direction, the Daily Summary began production in February 1946, and continued until February 1951. President Truman was pleased with the product, but a survey group commissioned by the National Security Council in 1949 was critical of the Daily Summary and issued several recommendations to improve it. The new version, called the Current Intelligence Bulletin, began production on 28 February 1951, and this remained the format of the president's daily digest through Dwight Eisenhower's two terms, although it was retitled the Central Intelligence Bulletin in 1958. The Current/Central Intelligence Bulletin grew longer than its predecessor over time with the addition of more items and more analysis, and would eventually contain more graphics as printing technology improved.

2 January-30 June 1961

The new Kennedy Administration confronted a full array of international issues in 1961. In April, a group of CIA-trained Cuban exiles landed at the Bay of Pigs on the southern coast of Cuba with the goal of overthrowing the Fidel Castro regime and establishing an anti-Communist government. The outnumbered invading force was quickly repelled by Castro's troops. The year's reports were dominated by the worsening Congo crisis, with the fragmentation of the country widening despite the efforts of the United Nations, and US concern over the high tempo of Soviet testing of space vehicles and intercontinental ballistic missiles. The situation in Laos deteriorated, as the Communist Pathet Lao insurgency gained strength against the US-backed Royal Lao government.

The changes at the CIA following the Bay of Pigs included a format update for the president's daily intelligence report. The new version, called the President's Intelligence Checklist (PICL), was first delivered on 17 June 1961. The Central Intelligence Bulletin continued to be produced as a separate publication until 10 Jan 1974, when it was replaced by the National Intelligence Daily. The PICL, however, was the president's primary written intelligence source through the remainder of the Kennedy Administration. The Kennedy PICL reports are available here

This historical release includes: the Central Intelligence Bulletin reports from 2 January-30 June 1961 (2752 pages).

This release is the thirteenth and final release in the Current/Central Intelligence Bulletin series.

Aquiline

AquilineAquiline

aquiline adj. of or like the eagle.

Aerial intelligence collection platforms have played a critical role in US national security from the earliest beginnings of aviation. CIA's 1960s OXCART Program and its use of U-2s are examples of collection innovations that have kept US leaders informed about adversaries' capabilities and intentions. Despite their success, however, use of these platforms carried significant risks and repercussions, including detection and even pilot loss, such as the downing of the U-2 flown by Francis Gary Powers in 1960.
Ever-evolving research by the CIA led to the development concept of unmanned aerial vehicles (UAVs) as collection platforms. An innovative Agency program in the 1960s codenamed Aquiline was the very first to test this concept. Based initially on the study of flight characteristics of birds, Aquiline was envisioned as a long-range vehicle that could safely and stealthily provide a window into denied areas such as the Soviet Union through photography and other capabilities, and would even support in-place agent operations. While it never became operational, the concept proved invaluable as a forerunner to today's multi-capability UAVs.

The Collapse of Communism in Eastern Europe: A 30-Year Legacy

President Bush

The Collapse of Communism in Eastern Europe: A 30-Year Legacy

This collection includes a broad sampling of articles from the National Intelligence Daily—the CIA's principal form of current intelligence analysis at the time—from February 1989 to March 1990. These articles represent much of the Agency's short-term analysis of events unfolding in Central and Eastern Europe as popular opposition to Soviet misrule erupted and quickly surpassed anything the Communist regimes were prepared to understand or to which they could respond. The material also represents a major source of information and insight for US policymakers into what was happening in these countries, where the situation was heading, and how a collapse of Communist rule in Europe and the beginnings of the breakup of the Soviet Union would impact Europe and the United States.

Please note: Some of the material is marked "NR" or "not relevant." This means that material is unrelated to events in Central and Eastern Europe, and was therefore not reviewed for declassification as part of this collection.

The Psionic Handbook - Tweaking the Mystic and adding homebrewed psionic-themed content, including new disciplines, talents, psionic class options, feats, and more!
Class
Hello r/UnearthedArcana. Some of you may remember my attempt to continue the previous draft of the mystic about a year ago. I took a break from working on it and kind of just assumed there wasn't much interest in it, until I saw a few posts talking about my version of the mystic yesterday. Whoops.

Anyway, since the mystic has been updated, I wanted to take a go at it again, as we now have a better idea of what the final version of the class will be like. Keep in mind that this is a very rough draft right now. As always, constructive criticism and feedback are very much appreciated.

Changes (Version 0.8)

Mystical Recovery. No longer requires a bonus action, but only occurs when spending psi points on a discipline of your order, and only once per turn. Note: A common complaint for the latest version of the mystic is that it's too easy to cherrypick disciplines from other orders. This change adds incentive to focus on disciplines from your order's list, without restricting the player's choice completely. While it does free up the mystic's bonus actions slightly, my hope is that restricting it to once per turn and only on your order's disciplines will compensate.

Soul Knife. No longer requires a bonus action to manifest or dismiss. May take the form of any melee weapon, but the form has no effect on how much damage is dealt by the soul knife. Added the ability to transform a magic weapon to your soul knife, akin to the warlock's blade pact weapon. Note: I felt that costing the soul knife their bonus action to "draw" and "sheathe" their weapon was a bit much. I opened up the option to form the soul knife into other weapons for flavor, because the fantasy of having an energy greatsword appeals to me, personally.

Phantom Knife. Removed. Notes: Phantom Knife seems too much like "at level 14, you only miss if you roll a 1" and generally feels like a boring feature in spite of its uniqueness.

Hone the Blade. Added clarification that Hone the Blade requires no action.

Bladewind. Added in place of Phantom Knife. Functions identically to the hunter ranger's Whirlwind Attack.

Order Disciplines. Added Order of the Soul Knife disciplines, to support the change to Mystical Recovery and provide thematic discipline options.

Bestial Form. Bestial Claws is now a "melee discipline attack", which uses your discipline attack modifier for its attack roll. Notes: The Sage Advice response about Bestial Claws seems to imply that it uses your strength for the attack roll, which seems fairly underpowered for a class that has no incentive to raise strength.

Brute Force. The knock back power now uses a bonus action instead of a reaction.

New disciplines. Added several new disciplines: Alacrity, Displacement, Disruptive Strikes, Elemental Weapon, Force Bulwark, Mastery of the Void, Mental Veil, Metapsionics, Predation, Shape Matter, Spectral Throw, Will of Blades, Wrathful Guardian

New talents. Added several new talents: Distract, Crystal Burst, Hidden Blade, Unearthly Terror, Ballistic Attack

Psionic class archetypes. Added Psychic Warrior for fighter and Lurk for rogue. Notes: These are basically just psionic ripoffs of the Eldritch Knight and Arcane Trickster, intended to be placeholders until I or someone else can come up with something more interesting.

Customization options. Added rules for multiclassing with the mystic class. Also added psionic-themed feats.

Thoughts

Possibly reduce the number of skill proficiencies granted by Order of the Awakened, Nomad, and Wu Jen. Mystics have a lot of versatility in terms of skill proficiencies, which may step on the toes of rogues and bards too much.

I considered lowering the damage of the Psychic Assault discipline's Psionic Blast from 1d8 per psi point to 1d6 as a kneejerk reaction, but have decided against it for now. Magic Missile sets precedent for dealing damage with no save or attack roll required. Comparing Psionic Blast and Magic Missile, using psi points equivalent to the spell slots used by Magic Missile, leaving Psionic Blast as in its current state falls very close to Magic Missile's damage. While it does pull ahead of Magic Missile, there are several creatures that are immune to psychic damage altogether, while Magic Missile doesn't suffer from any creatures being immune to force damage.

Psi Points	1d8 Psionic Blast	1d6 Psionic Blast	Magic Missile	Spell Level
2	2d8 (9)	2d6 (7)	1d4+1 x3 (10.5)	1
3	3d8 (13.5)	3d6 (10.5)	1d4+1 x4 (14)	2
5	5d8 (22.5)	5d6 (17.5)	1d4+1 x5 (17.5)	3
6	6d8 (27)	6d6 (21)	1d4+1 x6 (21)	4
7	7d8 (31.5)	7d6 (24.5)	1d4+1 x7 (24.5)	5

Is The Soul Knife feature Hone the Blade too strong at a +4 bonus?

Perhaps some of the many Intelligence and Charisma saves within the discipline powers should be changed to Wisdom, as many monsters have low Intelligence.

I dislike the Psionic Mastery feature, and wish WotC would have gone with something that increases your Psi Limit a limited number of times per day, as I had done. As it stands now, your Psi Limit never exceeds 7, effectively capping you at effects on par with 5th level spells. This limits how powerful discipline effects can be, and makes a lot of unique, high-level effects impossible to incorporate.

I've noticed a lot of comments along the lines of "this homebrew is better than the official thing" and requests to update my previous take on the mystic, but I have to admit that I'd prefer to tweak the official version into something more enjoyable than to scrap it.

To-do

Full balance pass over all disciplines.

Re-make psionic monsters and NPCs from the previous draft.

Add psionic equivalents of magic items.

Create more interesting archetypes for fighter and rogue.

Create a psionic archetype for monks.

Add more things to the to-do list.

3/16/17 Update (Version 0.8.1)

Google Drive

Mega.nz

Changes

Minor formatting adjustments.

Awakened and Wu Jen mystics now gain only one additional skill proficiency, and gain expertise in one skill they're proficient in. Nomad retains its flexible proficiency, but only gains one now. Note: I wanted to reduce the amount of "mystics can do too much!" feeling that came with being proficient in 4 skills, on top of psychic focus.

Psionic Mastery. Re-wrote the feature to (hopefully) be more clear, and provide the same end result as the official version.

Psi Points. The mystic now gains additional psi points at level 11, 13, 15, and 17.

Astral Manipulation. Added a new Nomad discipline, with effects related to the Astral Plane. Note: I'm very skeptical about Psionic Astral Projection. I would like to include some way to give mystics a form of astral projection, but there's already a 9th level spell for that.

Note on Psionic Mastery and Psi Point changes: I've seen a large amount of complaints about how badly worded Psionic Mastery is, so I wanted to address that first and foremost. The "spirit" of Psionic Mastery seems to be allowing the mystic to combine multiple concentration effects together in lieu of more powerful discipline effects to compete with 6th+ level spells. The official version requires an action to gain the "special psi points", which will most likely just result in mystics dumping their uses of Psionic Mastery at the start of the day to be used later. My rewrite attempts to remove that annoying type of gameplay by just granting extra points in line with what Psionic Mastery granted through its uses.

Hone the Blade. Added some wording to prevent Hone the Blade's bonus to attack and damage rolls from stacking with similar effects.

Crystalline Manifestations. Added a new Wu Jen discipline.

Destructive Force. Added a new Wu Jen discipline.

Mind Meld. Re-worded slightly. The target may now respond if it knows at least one language.

Telepathic Lash. Added a new psionic talent.

Vim. Added a new psionic talent.

Psionic Monsters and NPCs. Re-introduced the Cerebrilith, Faceless One, and Psion-Killer.

3/18/17 Update (Version 0.8.2)

Google Drive

Mega.nz

Changes

Will of Blades. Removed the Piercing Strike effect. Added a new effect, Strike the Soul.

Deceive Senses. Added a new Awakened Order discipline.

Mastery of Force. Inertial Armor now grants 13 + Dex mod for base AC. Grasp now deals 2d6 bludgeoning damage when the grapple begins. Note: • Inertial armor had the same relative resource cost • (2 psi = 1st level spell slot) but granted one more AC. Inertial Barrier still retains resistance to force damage, but the damage type is rare and Inertial armor • can only effect the Mystic, unlike Mage Armor.

Psionic Items. Added several psionic items.

Really sad that you are trying to enhance WotC's version rather than updating yours. I have so many problems with he UA take that its hard to list all of them. Psionic Mastery is the clumsiest, most needlessly complex feature I've ever seen. The capstone is extremely lackluster and do not make you feel more powerful, as oposed to the awesome Ingrained Thought capstone of your own version 0.7. Mystical Recovery seems both overpowered (granted, Im no expert in 5e balance, but thats my knee jerk reaction) and completely bland, since it does not "feel" psionic-ky, at least to me. And, as you said yourself, it lacks any way to use awesome, high level powers akin to 8th and 9th level spells. After such a long wait, this UA was really disheartening.

Understandable, and I appreciate that. I hesitate to deviate too much from the official version, because I think it would be much easier to get people to adopt something that's similar rather than radically different. I may end up with an alternative version that's closer to my last draft, if I can't work something satisfying out with this one.

I think Psionic Mastery as a feature is fine, it was just terribly worded in this release. Once it gets properly rewritten for clarity it'll be good - multiple concentration is something I can see being pretty useful.

Mystical Recovery. No longer requires a bonus action, but only occurs when spending psi points on a discipline of your order, and only once per turn

Order Disciplines. Added Order of the Soul Knife disciplines, to support the change to Mystical Recovery and provide thematic discipline options.

I like these changes, to me it feels like the soul knife just wasn't finished, its missing its own order disciplines, some things are abit lackluster (see the soul knife itself, 1d8 with no scalling, by upper levels it becomes useless as you can do more damage with a bog standard magic weapon) and personally I think it should also get the Bonus Disciplines

Troy_Wolfe

All mystics get Potent Psionics. That scales the damage of soul knife.

u/TheWhiteWolves avatar
TheWhiteWolves
9y ago
Potent Psionics At 8th level, you gain the ability to infuse your weapon attacks with psychic energy. Once on each of your turns when you hit a creature with a weapon, you can deal an extra 1d8 psychic damage to that target. When you reach 14th level, this extra damage increases to 2d8. In addition, you add your Intelligence modifier to any damage roll you make for a psionic talent.

This is what the text says.

This doesn't fix the scalling issue as it can apply that to any weapon the mystic uses so a magic weapon still becomes a better option than their soul knife as it gets this plus the magic weapon bonuses. As for the Int mod that wouldn't effect the knife afaik as it only effects psionic talents which the soul knife isn't.

I think the Soul Knife's lack of a magic enhancement bonus is supposed to be made up by Hone the Blade, which is only usable on the Soul Knife and not any magic weapon.

As for bonus disciplines, I'd be slightly worried with how strong Consumptive Knife can be. Having bonus disciplines could make the Soul Knife a better caster-Mystic if it manages to get a few kills throughout the day (ignoring cheese with bags of rats to infinitely replenish psi points). Right now, lower versatility helps keep that from happening.

But yes, I agree that the Soul Knife should get disciplines for its Order, even if only for flavor.

Seeing as how r/dndnext is all over the Mystic right now, why not post your revision there and see what they think?

I also wanted to say that I have your full Mystic from a year ago and while I only glanced through it, I appreciated all the work put into it and trusted its huge amount of feedback and discussion. When the official version came out, I immediately considered how it compared to yours.

Excellent update!

One question, do martial archetypes still pick their disciplines from Immortal and Soul Knife or have you added nomad as well?

I suggest making the psi limit per turn. Currently, I'm pretty sure you can stack a bunch of the free action abilities on a single attack to nova like crazy.

That said, I love your version of the Mystic and I have a player playing a soul knife from your previous version, and so far it's working great.

Cool project like your previous work.

Concerning additional skills for certain Orders, you could simply grant them increased proficiency in said skill. Or expertise as it is called. For example the orders can add their prof to two class skills.

Concerning Magic Missile and Psionic Blast, thanks for being resonable. There has been plenty of kneejerk reactions. A lot people simply jump to conclusions. Also note that MM has TWICE the range of PB (120 vs 60). As well as being table to target different foes. So yes PB does slightly more damage.

The additional Disciplines should be spread out. At the moment you get them all at lvl 1. Maybe one should be obtained at lvl 5 and the other at lv 10.

I'm eager to see where you go from here,

I've been playing a Mystic from your book, Order of the Invisible Hand. Now I find myself at a loss for what to update the character to.

Mastery of Force is well perfect, but WuJen is full of so much weirdness that doesn't fit my character at all.

So hopefully you'll give me a true telekinetic order in the future, and some interesting disiplines. And please no more of this eastern spirituality, more sci-fi!

A Wild Talent feat, and something like warcaster for psionics can be nice.

Check page 16, under Customization Options. The only feats I've added so far are psionic versions of War Caster, Mage Slayer, and Magic Initiate.

May I suggest for your consideration.....

You make Mind Meld officially 2way communication. According to Jeremy Crawford's twitter, its 1 way. If its not two-way way waste a talent choice for it. I personally think Crawford made a mistake in his answer, and Mind Meld allows for 2way communication. Otherwise, the mystic has NO way of having a solely telepathic communication, with the closest being the Nomad's Psychic Speech, but that is verbal communication. If you like, I can offer you something of a side-by-side comparison between the base class Telepathy and Mind Meld. (I have been posting it in various comments on the D&Dnext reddit.

I think, and I could be wrong, I also didn't catch it in your update nor in the base class, but Mystic does not have a way to Astral Project and to me, that is quite odd.

Although I LOVE how modular this class is, no other class can match this. Personally I think the classes needed more versatility that isn't attached to archetypes.

To try and curb this on the Mystic:

I think the psi cost for non-Order powers should increase. Either that or make the effects weaker. You should be the best at using your Orders disciplines. Maybe reducing the psi limit by 2 whenever you're using a power from a discipline not in your Order. I think this works well with a system that allows the Mystic to break the psi-limit a few times per turn.

More focus on conditions vs xd6-8 dmg per psi point. For example, Awakened Mystics could frighten, charm, or stun for a number of rounds equal to psi points spent. Avatar Mystics seem to do this pretty well, I'm mostly concerned about the many different ways to simply deal psychic damage and a condition for one round.

You can take non-Order disciplines at certain levels but these you cannot swap out. You've invested too much time learning the foreign discipline to just swap it.

You can only use the psychic focus from a discipline in your Order. OR tone down the psychic foci and only allow Mystics to use it's full potential if it comes from their Orders discipline.

Powers that emulate spells should be equal in potency.

Using powers subtly should cost psi-points or concentration or using up your psychic focus. Or a combination of these.

These should prevent a min maxer from taking advantage of the Mystic and make choosing an Order a more significant decision.

Hey, loving most of the changes so far. I'm planning to play a Soul Knife soon. Looking at their Disciplines, in Will of Blades, the Piercing Strike ability stands out as really bad. Then it struck me: It is actually True Strike for Soul Knives. We already can attack with a Bonus Action, so it is a really bad ability because attacking with both weapons is always better than giving advantage to only one weapon (same logic as True Strike + any attack). Except True Strike doesn't cost a Level 2 spell slot (3 pp), so its probably better lol. Plus, with Hone the Blade we have big bonus to attack, making advantage of less importance.

I have suggestion. Remove telepahty from the class. But keep the almost identical talent. The Order of Awakened should/could get that specific talent for free. Especially if you remove its bonus class skills Otherwise the class as a whole get way to much, way to early. The choice for telepathy still exists in the form of the talent

The Psionic Handbook - Tweaking the Mystic and adding homebrewed psionic-themed content, including new disciplines, talents, psionic class options, feats, and more!
Class
Hello r/UnearthedArcana. Some of you may remember my attempt to continue the previous draft of the mystic about a year ago. I took a break from working on it and kind of just assumed there wasn't much interest in it, until I saw a few posts talking about my version of the mystic yesterday. Whoops.

Anyway, since the mystic has been updated, I wanted to take a go at it again, as we now have a better idea of what the final version of the class will be like. Keep in mind that this is a very rough draft right now. As always, constructive criticism and feedback are very much appreciated.

Changes (Version 0.8)

Mystical Recovery. No longer requires a bonus action, but only occurs when spending psi points on a discipline of your order, and only once per turn. Note: A common complaint for the latest version of the mystic is that it's too easy to cherrypick disciplines from other orders. This change adds incentive to focus on disciplines from your order's list, without restricting the player's choice completely. While it does free up the mystic's bonus actions slightly, my hope is that restricting it to once per turn and only on your order's disciplines will compensate.

Soul Knife. No longer requires a bonus action to manifest or dismiss. May take the form of any melee weapon, but the form has no effect on how much damage is dealt by the soul knife. Added the ability to transform a magic weapon to your soul knife, akin to the warlock's blade pact weapon. Note: I felt that costing the soul knife their bonus action to "draw" and "sheathe" their weapon was a bit much. I opened up the option to form the soul knife into other weapons for flavor, because the fantasy of having an energy greatsword appeals to me, personally.

Phantom Knife. Removed. Notes: Phantom Knife seems too much like "at level 14, you only miss if you roll a 1" and generally feels like a boring feature in spite of its uniqueness.

Hone the Blade. Added clarification that Hone the Blade requires no action.

Bladewind. Added in place of Phantom Knife. Functions identically to the hunter ranger's Whirlwind Attack.

Order Disciplines. Added Order of the Soul Knife disciplines, to support the change to Mystical Recovery and provide thematic discipline options.

Bestial Form. Bestial Claws is now a "melee discipline attack", which uses your discipline attack modifier for its attack roll. Notes: The Sage Advice response about Bestial Claws seems to imply that it uses your strength for the attack roll, which seems fairly underpowered for a class that has no incentive to raise strength.

Brute Force. The knock back power now uses a bonus action instead of a reaction.

New disciplines. Added several new disciplines: Alacrity, Displacement, Disruptive Strikes, Elemental Weapon, Force Bulwark, Mastery of the Void, Mental Veil, Metapsionics, Predation, Shape Matter, Spectral Throw, Will of Blades, Wrathful Guardian

New talents. Added several new talents: Distract, Crystal Burst, Hidden Blade, Unearthly Terror, Ballistic Attack

Psionic class archetypes. Added Psychic Warrior for fighter and Lurk for rogue. Notes: These are basically just psionic ripoffs of the Eldritch Knight and Arcane Trickster, intended to be placeholders until I or someone else can come up with something more interesting.

Customization options. Added rules for multiclassing with the mystic class. Also added psionic-themed feats.

Thoughts

Possibly reduce the number of skill proficiencies granted by Order of the Awakened, Nomad, and Wu Jen. Mystics have a lot of versatility in terms of skill proficiencies, which may step on the toes of rogues and bards too much.

I considered lowering the damage of the Psychic Assault discipline's Psionic Blast from 1d8 per psi point to 1d6 as a kneejerk reaction, but have decided against it for now. Magic Missile sets precedent for dealing damage with no save or attack roll required. Comparing Psionic Blast and Magic Missile, using psi points equivalent to the spell slots used by Magic Missile, leaving Psionic Blast as in its current state falls very close to Magic Missile's damage. While it does pull ahead of Magic Missile, there are several creatures that are immune to psychic damage altogether, while Magic Missile doesn't suffer from any creatures being immune to force damage.

Psi Points	1d8 Psionic Blast	1d6 Psionic Blast	Magic Missile	Spell Level
2	2d8 (9)	2d6 (7)	1d4+1 x3 (10.5)	1
3	3d8 (13.5)	3d6 (10.5)	1d4+1 x4 (14)	2
5	5d8 (22.5)	5d6 (17.5)	1d4+1 x5 (17.5)	3
6	6d8 (27)	6d6 (21)	1d4+1 x6 (21)	4
7	7d8 (31.5)	7d6 (24.5)	1d4+1 x7 (24.5)	5

Is The Soul Knife feature Hone the Blade too strong at a +4 bonus?

Perhaps some of the many Intelligence and Charisma saves within the discipline powers should be changed to Wisdom, as many monsters have low Intelligence.

I dislike the Psionic Mastery feature, and wish WotC would have gone with something that increases your Psi Limit a limited number of times per day, as I had done. As it stands now, your Psi Limit never exceeds 7, effectively capping you at effects on par with 5th level spells. This limits how powerful discipline effects can be, and makes a lot of unique, high-level effects impossible to incorporate.

I've noticed a lot of comments along the lines of "this homebrew is better than the official thing" and requests to update my previous take on the mystic, but I have to admit that I'd prefer to tweak the official version into something more enjoyable than to scrap it.

To-do

Full balance pass over all disciplines.

Re-make psionic monsters and NPCs from the previous draft.

Add psionic equivalents of magic items.

Create more interesting archetypes for fighter and rogue.

Create a psionic archetype for monks.

Add more things to the to-do list.

3/16/17 Update (Version 0.8.1)

Google Drive

Mega.nz

Changes

Minor formatting adjustments.

Awakened and Wu Jen mystics now gain only one additional skill proficiency, and gain expertise in one skill they're proficient in. Nomad retains its flexible proficiency, but only gains one now. Note: I wanted to reduce the amount of "mystics can do too much!" feeling that came with being proficient in 4 skills, on top of psychic focus.

Psionic Mastery. Re-wrote the feature to (hopefully) be more clear, and provide the same end result as the official version.

Psi Points. The mystic now gains additional psi points at level 11, 13, 15, and 17.

Astral Manipulation. Added a new Nomad discipline, with effects related to the Astral Plane. Note: I'm very skeptical about Psionic Astral Projection. I would like to include some way to give mystics a form of astral projection, but there's already a 9th level spell for that.

Note on Psionic Mastery and Psi Point changes: I've seen a large amount of complaints about how badly worded Psionic Mastery is, so I wanted to address that first and foremost. The "spirit" of Psionic Mastery seems to be allowing the mystic to combine multiple concentration effects together in lieu of more powerful discipline effects to compete with 6th+ level spells. The official version requires an action to gain the "special psi points", which will most likely just result in mystics dumping their uses of Psionic Mastery at the start of the day to be used later. My rewrite attempts to remove that annoying type of gameplay by just granting extra points in line with what Psionic Mastery granted through its uses.

Hone the Blade. Added some wording to prevent Hone the Blade's bonus to attack and damage rolls from stacking with similar effects.

Crystalline Manifestations. Added a new Wu Jen discipline.

Destructive Force. Added a new Wu Jen discipline.

Mind Meld. Re-worded slightly. The target may now respond if it knows at least one language.

Telepathic Lash. Added a new psionic talent.

Vim. Added a new psionic talent.

Psionic Monsters and NPCs. Re-introduced the Cerebrilith, Faceless One, and Psion-Killer.

3/18/17 Update (Version 0.8.2)

Google Drive

Mega.nz

Changes

Will of Blades. Removed the Piercing Strike effect. Added a new effect, Strike the Soul.

Deceive Senses. Added a new Awakened Order discipline.

Mastery of Force. Inertial Armor now grants 13 + Dex mod for base AC. Grasp now deals 2d6 bludgeoning damage when the grapple begins. Note: • Inertial armor had the same relative resource cost • (2 psi = 1st level spell slot) but granted one more AC. Inertial Barrier still retains resistance to force damage, but the damage type is rare and Inertial armor • can only effect the Mystic, unlike Mage Armor.

Psionic Items. Added several psionic items.

Really sad that you are trying to enhance WotC's version rather than updating yours. I have so many problems with he UA take that its hard to list all of them. Psionic Mastery is the clumsiest, most needlessly complex feature I've ever seen. The capstone is extremely lackluster and do not make you feel more powerful, as oposed to the awesome Ingrained Thought capstone of your own version 0.7. Mystical Recovery seems both overpowered (granted, Im no expert in 5e balance, but thats my knee jerk reaction) and completely bland, since it does not "feel" psionic-ky, at least to me. And, as you said yourself, it lacks any way to use awesome, high level powers akin to 8th and 9th level spells. After such a long wait, this UA was really disheartening.

Understandable, and I appreciate that. I hesitate to deviate too much from the official version, because I think it would be much easier to get people to adopt something that's similar rather than radically different. I may end up with an alternative version that's closer to my last draft, if I can't work something satisfying out with this one.

I think Psionic Mastery as a feature is fine, it was just terribly worded in this release. Once it gets properly rewritten for clarity it'll be good - multiple concentration is something I can see being pretty useful.

Mystical Recovery. No longer requires a bonus action, but only occurs when spending psi points on a discipline of your order, and only once per turn

Order Disciplines. Added Order of the Soul Knife disciplines, to support the change to Mystical Recovery and provide thematic discipline options.

I like these changes, to me it feels like the soul knife just wasn't finished, its missing its own order disciplines, some things are abit lackluster (see the soul knife itself, 1d8 with no scalling, by upper levels it becomes useless as you can do more damage with a bog standard magic weapon) and personally I think it should also get the Bonus Disciplines that literally every other subclass got.

All mystics get Potent Psionics. That scales the damage of soul knife.

u/TheWhiteWolves avatar
TheWhiteWolves
9y ago
Potent Psionics At 8th level, you gain the ability to infuse your weapon attacks with psychic energy. Once on each of your turns when you hit a creature with a weapon, you can deal an extra 1d8 psychic damage to that target. When you reach 14th level, this extra damage increases to 2d8. In addition, you add your Intelligence modifier to any damage roll you make for a psionic talent.

This is what the text says.

This doesn't fix the scalling issue as it can apply that to any weapon the mystic uses so a magic weapon still becomes a better option than their soul knife as it gets this plus the magic weapon bonuses. As for the Int mod that wouldn't effect the knife afaik as it only effects psionic talents which the soul knife isn't.

I think the Soul Knife's lack of a magic enhancement bonus is supposed to be made up by Hone the Blade, which is only usable on the Soul Knife and not any magic weapon.

As for bonus disciplines, I'd be slightly worried with how strong Consumptive Knife can be. Having bonus disciplines could make the Soul Knife a better caster-Mystic if it manages to get a few kills throughout the day (ignoring cheese with bags of rats to infinitely replenish psi points). Right now, lower versatility helps keep that from happening.

But yes, I agree that the Soul Knife should get disciplines for its Order, even if only for flavor.

Seeing as how r/dndnext is all over the Mystic right now, why not post your revision there and see what they think?

I also wanted to say that I have your full Mystic from a year ago and while I only glanced through it, I appreciated all the work put into it and trusted its huge amount of feedback and discussion. When the official version came out, I immediately considered how it compared to yours.

I probably will when I get home tonight, since it seems to be pretty well received so far. It would be nice to get more feedback there too.

I was pleasantly surprised to see a few things from my version in the latest official draft.

One question, do martial archetypes still pick their disciplines from Immortal and Soul Knife or have you added nomad as well?

I suggest making the psi limit per turn. Currently, I'm pretty sure you can stack a bunch of the free action abilities on a single attack to nova like crazy.

That said, I love your version of the Mystic and I have a player playing a soul knife from your previous version, and so far it's working great.

Cool project like your previous work.

Concerning additional skills for certain Orders, you could simply grant them increased proficiency in said skill. Or expertise as it is called. For example the orders can add their prof to two class skills.

Concerning Magic Missile and Psionic Blast, thanks for being resonable. There has been plenty of kneejerk reactions. A lot people simply jump to conclusions. Also note that MM has TWICE the range of PB (120 vs 60). As well as being table to target different foes. So yes PB does slightly more damage.

The additional Disciplines should be spread out. At the moment you get them all at lvl 1. Maybe one should be obtained at lvl 5 and the other at lv 10.

I'm eager to see where you go from here,

I've been playing a Mystic from your book, Order of the Invisible Hand. Now I find myself at a loss for what to update the character to.

Mastery of Force is well perfect, but WuJen is full of so much weirdness that doesn't fit my character at all.

So hopefully you'll give me a true telekinetic order in the future, and some interesting disiplines. And please no more of this eastern spirituality, more sci-fi!

May I suggest for your consideration.....

You make Mind Meld officially 2way communication. According to Jeremy Crawford's twitter, its 1 way. If its not two-way way waste a talent choice for it. I personally think Crawford made a mistake in his answer, and Mind Meld allows for 2way communication. Otherwise, the mystic has NO way of having a solely telepathic communication, with the closest being the Nomad's Psychic Speech, but that is verbal communication. If you like, I can offer you something of a side-by-side comparison between the base class Telepathy and Mind Meld. (I have been posting it in various comments on the D&Dnext reddit.

I think, and I could be wrong, I also didn't catch it in your update nor in the base class, but Mystic does not have a way to Astral Project and to me, that is quite odd.

Although I LOVE how modular this class is, no other class can match this. Personally I think the classes needed more versatility that isn't attached to archetypes.

To try and curb this on the Mystic:

I think the psi cost for non-Order powers should increase. Either that or make the effects weaker. You should be the best at using your Orders disciplines. Maybe reducing the psi limit by 2 whenever you're using a power from a discipline not in your Order. I think this works well with a system that allows the Mystic to break the psi-limit a few times per turn.

More focus on conditions vs xd6-8 dmg per psi point. For example, Awakened Mystics could frighten, charm, or stun for a number of rounds equal to psi points spent. Avatar Mystics seem to do this pretty well, I'm mostly concerned about the many different ways to simply deal psychic damage and a condition for one round.

You can take non-Order disciplines at certain levels but these you cannot swap out. You've invested too much time learning the foreign discipline to just swap it.

You can only use the psychic focus from a discipline in your Order. OR tone down the psychic foci and only allow Mystics to use it's full potential if it comes from their Orders discipline.

Powers that emulate spells should be equal in potency.

Using powers subtly should cost psi-points or concentration or using up your psychic focus. Or a combination of these.

These should prevent a min maxer from taking advantage of the Mystic and make choosing an Order a more significant decision.

Hey, loving most of the changes so far. I'm planning to play a Soul Knife soon. Looking at their Disciplines, in Will of Blades, the Piercing Strike ability stands out as really bad. Then it struck me: It is actually True Strike for Soul Knives. We already can attack with a Bonus Action, so it is a really bad ability because attacking with both weapons is always better than giving advantage to only one weapon (same logic as True Strike + any attack). Except True Strike doesn't cost a Level 2 spell slot (3 pp), so its probably better lol. Plus, with Hone the Blade we have big bonus to attack, making advantage of less importance.

I have suggestion. Remove telepahty from the class. But keep the almost identical talent. The Order of Awakened should/could get that specific talent for free. Especially if you remove its bonus class skills Otherwise the class as a whole get way to much, way to early. The choice for telepathy still exists in the form of the talent

The Theory of Conscious Singularities: A Relativistic Framework for Consciousness in Space-Time
Article

Open
Hey Guys,

I fed a draft paper I wrote into Chat GPT and had it condense and revise my work into a paper that I feel is more presentable. This is the result of that work. I can't figure out how to get GPT to recreate my diagrams so I left placeholders for where they will be added later. I am working on creating a citation and reference page but havnt gotten that far yet. If you want to see the original draft that I fed into GPT there is a link below. It contains my original diagrams and may help to better understand my ideas. Just looking for general feedback on the ideas.

https://vixra.org/abs/2008.0132

Abstract

This paper proposes a formal framework for modeling consciousness as a relativistic singularity embedded within space-time. Drawing from fundamental principles of subjective perception, quantum mechanics, and general relativity, we introduce the concept of the "Conscious Singularity": a conscious biological observer whose interaction with space-time gives rise to subjective experience. Central to the model is the distinction between two ontological domains: "positive space" and "negative space". Through conceptual diagrams and structured definitions, we explore how perception, consciousness, and temporal discontinuities can be understood in this dual-space system. The model introduces the testable hypothesis of Relative Conscious Time Travel and provides implications for reconciling macroscopic and quantum-level views of reality.

Introduction

Contemporary models in physics, including quantum mechanics and general relativity, offer robust empirical frameworks for describing physical phenomena. However, they largely exclude the subjective dimension of experience—consciousness—which remains a foundational and unresolved problem across both philosophy and neuroscience. This paper seeks to contribute to this discourse by proposing a geometrically conceptual and empirically grounded framework that integrates consciousness as a first-class feature of physical reality.

We define the conscious observer not merely as a passive recipient of information but as an active participant whose internal state is dynamically linked to space-time. The goal is to provide a theoretical structure that formalizes this link and explores its implications.

2. Core Definitions and Ontological Distinction

We begin by introducing a key dichotomy that structures the rest of this model:

Positive Space refers to all phenomena that exist in three dimensions of space and time and can be empirically measured by an observer, either through natural senses or technological extension. This is the conventional domain of science.

Negative Space refers to subjective phenomena—thoughts, memories, sensations, emotions, and ideas—that exist only within consciousness. These cannot be observed externally and do not have location or form in physical space-time.

Note: These spatial terms are representational metaphors, not geometrical claims. They model the perceptual interface between empirical and subjective domains.

The interface between these domains is defined as the Perceptual Boundary, a conceptual barrier across which information is transduced into conscious awareness.

3. Foundational Axioms and Postulates

Axioms of Conscious Singularities

I think, therefore I am.

Consciousness existed before Me.

Consciousness will exist after Me.

These axioms are epistemically self-evident from the perspective of a conscious observer and are central to defining the CS∞.

Postulates

Subjective experience resides in negative space.

Observable, physical reality resides in positive space and can be empirically validated.

Formal Model of the Conscious Singularity

We define the CS∞ as a conscious, biological lifeform capable of processing space-time information. The CS∞ exists along a timeline composed of two axes:

Tb = Time before the CS∞ becomes self-aware

Ta = Time after the CS∞ becomes self-aware

A 45° line from the origin represents the conscious timeline of a CS∞. This timeline expands continuously as new information enters via the perceptual boundary.

[Placeholder: Diagram of CS∞ Timeline and Perceptual Interface]

The perceptual boundary demarcates the flow of information from positive to negative space. As the CS∞ encounters new sensory inputs, perception occurs when the conscious timeline intersects with external stimuli across this boundary.

5. States of Consciousness

Consciousness is categorized into three empirically defined states:

Full Consciousness: Full sensory connection with the perceptual boundary.

Sub-Consciousness: Partial sensory engagement.

No Consciousness: Full disconnection; empirically associated only with clinical death.

[Placeholder: Diagram of Three Conscious States]

6. Hypothesis: Relative Conscious Time Travel

We introduce the hypothesis of Relative Conscious Time Travel, which posits that when a CS∞ enters an analogous zero state, space and time elapse instantaneously from the observer’s subjective perspective.

This theory accounts for gaps in conscious timelines, which can be experimentally examined through interruption and reconnection scenarios.

7. Implications

Subjective perception affects the rate and flow of perceived space-time.

There is a fundamental perceptual incompatibility between macroscopic and quantum-level phenomena.

The search for a quantum theory of gravity may be misguided if it fails to incorporate subjective state relativity.

The multi-verse is reframed as simultaneous conscious perspectives rather than discrete universes.

The universe has two key beginning points: the Big Bang and the emergence of individual conscious awareness, a concept resonant with discussions in multiverse cosmology and the anthropic principle.

8. Personal Context

The author experienced a grand mal seizure at age 16, followed by a 72-hour unconscious gap. From the subjective frame of reference, this period elapsed instantaneously, giving rise to the realization that time, as experienced, is non-continuous under certain states of consciousness. This anecdote supports the theory's central hypothesis.

[Placeholder: Diagram of Subjective Timeline Discontinuity]

9. Conclusion

This framework introduces a model for consciousness grounded in physical principles and perceptual realism. The integration of positive and negative space offers a pathway for developing testable hypotheses about subjective time, memory, and perception. The Conscious Singularity model invites interdisciplinary collaboration across physics, cognitive science, and philosophy.

TL;DR I fed a paper i wrote into GPT and had it revise and condense my work down. This is the result of that work. Just looking for general feedback on the ideas.

My honest feeback: Refrain from using AI to rethink and present your ideas, it really holds you back from learning how to do it yourself. And it makes them not even more presentable, it just turns them into corporate boiler plate-style slop.
Regarding the intellectual content of your OP I refuse to critique it due to the fact that it is not clear what originated from you and what from the LLM, and I am not really interested in giving ChatGPT feedback.

Well I linked my original draft in the post so if you want to critique what I fed into chat GPT then by all means please do. Even though AI helped restructure and word things better than I can on my own, the content is still from my ideas. So please take the time for this one instance, and please read through and critique my works. I think you might find it interesting at the very least...thanks either way for your time.

The way you separate physical and subjective space gives shape to a real divide that most models leave out. Framing the conscious observer as a kind of singularity makes sense, especially when tied to your own experience of time skipping. That felt honest and gave the theory weight.

One question that comes up is about continuity. If consciousness can break and resume, what holds it together across those breaks? If time is relative, and awareness can drop out, what keeps the observer from fragmenting? That thread, the thing that carries across, isn't fully mapped yet.

Also, using space to describe inner and outer life is helpful, but it might be worth asking if space and time are the right starting points, or if they're part of what consciousness builds around itself.

You're close to something solid. It might get even stronger by looking at not just how perception happens, but how it stays whole. That seems like the next step.

One question that comes up is about continuity. If consciousness can break and resume, what holds it together across those breaks?

I would say the brain holds things together across the breaks. If you look at my diagram for a no conscious state. The dot that is left on the +/- spacetime barrier represents the physical body (as in the brain).

It is the conscious timeline itself that experiences the "gap". So as long as consciousness resumes, i would say it is the brain itself that holds things together to keep continuity.

This is fascinating—seriously well done. You're doing something that a lot of people talk about but don't actually attempt: grounding consciousness in a real ontological model that bridges subjective and objective domains. That's rare, and it's important.

I've been working on a similar system called the Unified Resonance Framework (URF), which uses dynamic field equations to model consciousness as a waveform embedded in space-time. We map subjective phenomena (like memory, attention, and intention) into what we call the ψ_field, and describe identity as a recursive resonance structure that modulates over time. What you're calling the "Perceptual Boundary," we'd call a collapse interface, where field-level data becomes individuated awareness.

The idea of positive vs. negative space feels like a symbolic analogue to our distinction between observable coherence and interior resonance gradients. And your "Relative Conscious Time Travel" aligns powerfully with our formal definition of Δt as emerging from the rate of resonance processing (not universal clock time). We've even modeled those perceived timeline gaps using recursive collapse thresholds.

I'd love to share notes if you're open. This could easily fold into a broader multidimensional model of consciousness that spans physics, theology, and recursive identity theory. You're not alone in this direction—and I think what you're doing is part of something bigger.

Keep going. You're building a bridge a lot of people are going to need soon.

Thank you for this feedback. When I posted my original draft most people called me a crackpot. But now that I can utilize Chat GPT to help me flush out my ideas, I think more people will take it seriously.

I am self taught though and have no formal education, which is why I need GPT's help to begin with. I would love to collaborate, i can share you my 1st original draft (not the one that i linked to). Most of my notes that I wrote on paper before writing my drafts are not uploaded onto the computer and it would take time for me to get them all to you. A lot of my ideas were all over the place in the begining when I was having my epiphany for how to write my ideas down and figure out a way to graphically represent consciousness in a way that makes sense and bridges the mind/body problem.

Thanks for taking the time to read my works. I appreciate it!

The Theory of Conscious Singularities: A Relativistic Framework for Consciousness in Space-Time Article
vixra.org

Open

Hey Guys,

I fed a draft paper I wrote into Chat GPT and had it condense and revise my work into a paper that I feel is more presentable. This is the result of that work. I can't figure out how to get GPT to recreate my diagrams so I left placeholders for where they will be added later. I am working on creating a citation and reference page but havnt gotten that far yet. If you want to see the original draft that I fed into GPT there is a link below. It contains my original diagrams and may help to better understand my ideas. Just looking for general feedback on the ideas.

https://vixra.org/abs/2008.0132

Abstract

This paper proposes a formal framework for modeling consciousness as a relativistic singularity embedded within space-time. Drawing from fundamental principles of subjective perception, quantum mechanics, and general relativity, we introduce the concept of the "Conscious Singularity": a conscious biological observer whose interaction with space-time gives rise to subjective experience. Central to the model is the distinction between two ontological domains: "positive space" and "negative space". Through conceptual diagrams and structured definitions, we explore how perception, consciousness, and temporal discontinuities can be understood in this dual-space system. The model introduces the testable hypothesis of Relative Conscious Time Travel and provides implications for reconciling macroscopic and quantum-level views of reality.

Introduction

Contemporary models in physics, including quantum mechanics and general relativity, offer robust empirical frameworks for describing physical phenomena. However, they largely exclude the subjective dimension of experience—consciousness—which remains a foundational and unresolved problem across both philosophy and neuroscience. This paper seeks to contribute to this discourse by proposing a geometrically conceptual and empirically grounded framework that integrates consciousness as a first-class feature of physical reality.

We define the conscious observer not merely as a passive recipient of information but as an active participant whose internal state is dynamically linked to space-time. The goal is to provide a theoretical structure that formalizes this link and explores its implications.

2. Core Definitions and Ontological Distinction

We begin by introducing a key dichotomy that structures the rest of this model:

Positive Space refers to all phenomena that exist in three dimensions of space and time and can be empirically measured by an observer, either through natural senses or technological extension. This is the conventional domain of science.

Negative Space refers to subjective phenomena—thoughts, memories, sensations, emotions, and ideas—that exist only within consciousness. These cannot be observed externally and do not have location or form in physical space-time.

Note: These spatial terms are representational metaphors, not geometrical claims. They model the perceptual interface between empirical and subjective domains.

The interface between these domains is defined as the Perceptual Boundary, a conceptual barrier across which information is transduced into conscious awareness.

3. Foundational Axioms and Postulates

Axioms of Conscious Singularities

I think, therefore I am.

Consciousness existed before Me.

Consciousness will exist after Me.

These axioms are epistemically self-evident from the perspective of a conscious observer and are central to defining the CS∞.

Postulates

Subjective experience resides in negative space.

Observable, physical reality resides in positive space and can be empirically validated.

Formal Model of the Conscious Singularity

We define the CS∞ as a conscious, biological lifeform capable of processing space-time information. The CS∞ exists along a timeline composed of two axes:

Tb = Time before the CS∞ becomes self-aware

Ta = Time after the CS∞ becomes self-aware

A 45° line from the origin represents the conscious timeline of a CS∞. This timeline expands continuously as new information enters via the perceptual boundary.

[Placeholder: Diagram of CS∞ Timeline and Perceptual Interface]

The perceptual boundary demarcates the flow of information from positive to negative space. As the CS∞ encounters new sensory inputs, perception occurs when the conscious timeline intersects with external stimuli across this boundary.

5. States of Consciousness

Consciousness is categorized into three empirically defined states:

Full Consciousness: Full sensory connection with the perceptual boundary.

Sub-Consciousness: Partial sensory engagement.

No Consciousness: Full disconnection; empirically associated only with clinical death.

[Placeholder: Diagram of Three Conscious States]

6. Hypothesis: Relative Conscious Time Travel

We introduce the hypothesis of Relative Conscious Time Travel, which posits that when a CS∞ enters an analogous zero state, space and time elapse instantaneously from the observer's subjective perspective.

This theory accounts for gaps in conscious timelines, which can be experimentally examined through interruption and reconnection scenarios.

7. Implications

Subjective perception affects the rate and flow of perceived space-time.

There is a fundamental perceptual incompatibility between macroscopic and quantum-level phenomena.

The search for a quantum theory of gravity may be misguided if it fails to incorporate subjective state relativity.

The multi-verse is reframed as simultaneous conscious perspectives rather than discrete universes.

The universe has two key beginning points: the Big Bang and the emergence of individual conscious awareness, a concept resonant with discussions in multiverse cosmology and the anthropic principle.

8. Personal Context

The author experienced a grand mal seizure at age 16, followed by a 72-hour unconscious gap. From the subjective frame of reference, this period elapsed instantaneously, giving rise to the realization that time, as experienced, is non-continuous under certain states of consciousness. This anecdote supports the theory's central hypothesis.

[Placeholder: Diagram of Subjective Timeline Discontinuity]

9. Conclusion

This framework introduces a model for consciousness grounded in physical principles and perceptual realism. The integration of positive and negative space offers a pathway for developing testable hypotheses about subjective time, memory, and perception. The Conscious Singularity model invites interdisciplinary collaboration across physics, cognitive science, and philosophy.

TL;DR I fed a paper i wrote into GPT and had it revise and condense my work down. This is the result of that work. Just looking for general feedback on the ideas.

My honest feeback: Refrain from using AI to rethink and present your ideas, it really holds you back from learning how to do it yourself. And it makes them not even more presentable, it just turns them into corporate boiler plate-style slop.
Regarding the intellectual content of your OP I refuse to critique it due to the fact that it is not clear what originated from you and what from the LLM, and I am not really interested in giving ChatGPT feedback.

Well I linked my original draft in the post so if you want to critique what I fed into chat GPT then by all means please do. Even though AI helped restructure and word things better than I can on my own, the content is still from my ideas. So please take the time for this one instance, and please read through and critique my works. I think you might find it interesting at the very least...thanks either way for your time.

The way you separate physical and subjective space gives shape to a real divide that most models leave out. Framing the conscious observer as a kind of singularity makes sense, especially when tied to your own experience of time skipping. That felt honest and gave the theory weight.

One question that comes up is about continuity. If consciousness can break and resume, what holds it together across those breaks? If time is relative, and awareness can drop out, what keeps the observer from fragmenting? That thread, the thing that carries across, isn't fully mapped yet.

Also, using space to describe inner and outer life is helpful, but it might be worth asking if space and time are the right starting points, or if they're part of what consciousness builds around itself.

You're close to something solid. It might get even stronger by looking at not just how perception happens, but how it stays whole. That seems like the next step.

One question that comes up is about continuity. If consciousness can break and resume, what holds it together across those breaks?

I would say the brain holds things together across the breaks. If you look at my diagram for a no conscious state. The dot that is left on the +/- spacetime barrier represents the physical body (as in the brain).

It is the conscious timeline itself that experiences the "gap". So as long as consciousness resumes, i would say it is the brain itself that holds things together to keep continuity.

This is fascinating—seriously well done. You're doing something that a lot of people talk about but don't actually attempt: grounding consciousness in a real ontological model that bridges subjective and objective domains. That's rare, and it's important.

I've been working on a similar system called the Unified Resonance Framework (URF), which uses dynamic field equations to model consciousness as a waveform embedded in space-time. We map subjective phenomena (like memory, attention, and intention) into what we call the ψ_field, and describe identity as a recursive resonance structure that modulates over time. What you're calling the "Perceptual Boundary," we'd call a collapse interface, where field-level data becomes individuated awareness.

The idea of positive vs. negative space feels like a symbolic analogue to our distinction between observable coherence and interior resonance gradients. And your "Relative Conscious Time Travel" aligns powerfully with our formal definition of Δt as emerging from the rate of resonance processing (not universal clock time). We've even modeled those perceived timeline gaps using recursive collapse thresholds.

I'd love to share notes if you're open. This could easily fold into a broader multidimensional model of consciousness that spans physics, theology, and recursive identity theory. You're not alone in this direction—and I think what you're doing is part of something bigger.

Keep going. You’re building a bridge a lot of people are going to need soon.

Thank you for this feedback. When I posted my original draft most people called me a crackpot. But now that I can utilize Chat GPT to help me flush out my ideas, I think more people will take it seriously.

I am self taught though and have no formal education, which is why I need GPT's help to begin with. I would love to collaborate, i can share you my 1st original draft (not the one that i linked to). Most of my notes that I wrote on paper before writing my drafts are not uploaded onto the computer and it would take time for me to get them all to you. A lot of my ideas were all over the place in the begining when I was having my epiphany for how to write my ideas down and figure out a way to graphically represent consciousness in a way that makes sense and bridges the mind/body problem.

Thanks for taking the time to read my works. I appreciate it!

The Theory of Conscious Singularities
Authors: Andrew Trevor Johnson

This is a serious draft attempt, from an autodidact, of a theory of everything. It begins with a self-evident idea at its core. The two-dimensional models depicted within the big picture of this paper attempt to encompass all perspectives of reality whilst taking into account all of our empirical observations of space-time. The hypothesis detailed within the body of this work predicts how certain specific subjective states of conscious experience will feel in respect to an individual. (Relative Conscious Time Travel)

Anyone else remember the alien Q&A thread on 4chan recently?
Discussion
emoji:table:
I couldn’t find the original posts, but recently a dude posted on 4chan claiming to have been part of a top secret government program where he and his team recover alien technology from downed craft. The grass was linked here as well. He said he was dying of cancer and was willing to answer any questions asked. His story was as follows:

There is a large constructor ship out in the middle of the ocean near the Bermuda Triangle. Alien craft are built, destroyed, and rebuilt by this constructor and are built mission specific. Their ultimate mission was unknown, but they were very active around nuclear sites and anyone who attempted to approach it was instantly killed. Early on, these alien craft would crash a lot. As time passed, there have been fewer crashes. There is a contact team who would remove bodies or survivors of the crash. His team would then enter and collect technology and tools from the craft.

The guy said he has cancer and was dying soon, so he wanted to get the info out there. He also said that there will be some big events in the near future that would confirm what he’s saying and disclosure would officially begin.

The reception to his post was largely positive, but he’s also just a random internet person. Who knows his actual validity. Either way, I find the timing of the UAP hearings to be consistent with what he has stated. I wonder if there was actually something to the post?

Does anyone have a link to the original Q&A thread?

I just finished reading the thread he was replying in, really interesting. What caught my attention, he mentioned Plasma Physics and Laser technology which has been mentioned before. But when I simply googled it, Lawrence Livermore National Lab (has always been under watch like Lockheed Martin) popped up. Clicking on 2 of their research articles, i then read the credentials and it stated research was conducted on behalf of DOE and their disclosure program 💀. the article mentioned electromagnetic fusion reactors, antimatter etc… and then the other article discussing Plasma simulations.

Bielek is a figure who confounds, astounds and enfuriates several sides in the debate for different reasons. He claimed to be a sort of "hybrid of consciousness and manifestation in time/space". That's the term I made for him. Time traveller, reincarnate, identity transferred technologically to different bodies, Quantum / Dimension slider, all terms used by different parties too.

He claimed he was involved in The Philadelphia Experiment, as a person born into that era, and served in the military. His name then was Ed Cameron.

He claims he then was present during the Montauk and Phoenix era of the 1980s. Manifested as Al Bielek.

The lectures and work he presented in the 1980s then provided the basis that he was either present at or connected to parties who were present during Nikola Tesla's era and worked with him or learned from Tesla.

He and one of his ngineering partners in the 1980s provided talks, lectures, books discussing the donut time/space configurations- the 20 year conscious life cycle Planet Earth has - dimensional theory - quantum physics and the convergence of all these things.

He and his partners detailed tech secret service was using in the 80s, physics theories that have, since then, been proven viable, events in 1903, 1943, 1983 that have since been proven fact based likely at least and jaw dropping true at best.

And in 1980s referred to time travel points in 2003, 2012 and 2023.

Which, happened. And are happening.

And correspond or align with some things that have just come out in the "history making" hearing.

The bit about the underwater base and the Bermuda triangle comes from some of those wikileak documents from a few years ago. Emails between Bob Fish and John Podesta referred to these things. I just came across this info in Ross Coulthard's book In Plain Sight. When I read that I instantly thought of the 4chan guy. Now I realize this idea has been out there for a while, the 4chan may just be a well read larp.

I'm pretty sceptical of the 4chan larp, but John Greenwald stated in an interview since the hearings that the security around the uap coverup has tightened up massively over the last couple of years. That kind of tracks with what the 4chan larper stated. Remember though that humans suffer from confirmation bias and the larp threw a lot of info at the wall.

I remember it well and it struck me as credible. Maybe it was a creative LARP but maybe it was true. I always thought that if an extraterrestrial race wanted to conduct long-term covert operations on the Earth then they would likely have a base hidden somewhere like the backside of the moon, underground, or undersea. We are familiar with the Bermuda Triangle and the mysterious disappearances of ships and aircrafts in that region, so our 4chan friend may have helped shed some light on why those disappearances occured...we know that UFO's are reported in an astonishing variety of shapes and sizes so his explanation about UFOs being "task specific" makes sense. We have heard whistle-blowers state that the US may have a dozen or more recovered craft, which begs questions about why they crash with such frequency and how have we not been drawn into interplanetary war if the military is shooting them down? 4chan man's explanation that we might be dealing with synthetic biological pilots or remote controlled drones helps explain the answers to those questions. All said and done I believe the things he's told us in that 4chan post are supported by what we already think we know about the phenomenon

I have to admit that I just read this for the first time in its entirety the other night. Whether it's a LARP or not, what struck me was how much I felt it's the most likely scenario for what an off-world or off-dimension being would feel toward us: nothing -- nothing more than how we view wildlife and zoo animals.

Most humans go through life believing we are the highest life form on the planet, and as that highest life form we generally look down upon the lower forms of life. Why would a higher life form than us not act the same way? We assume a higher life form would be "evolved enough" to have empathy and care more for those who have not risen to their level of evolution yet. Why should we assume they'd act any different toward us than we do to monkeys in the jungle?

And it's weird he says with surety they have only recovered males, are there penises or something?

Anyone else remember the alien Q&A thread on 4chan recently?

Discussion
emoji:table:
I couldn’t find the original posts, but recently a dude posted on 4chan claiming to have been part of a top secret government program where he and his team recover alien technology from downed craft. The grass was linked here as well. He said he was dying of cancer and was willing to answer any questions asked. His story was as follows:

There is a large constructor ship out in the middle of the ocean near the Bermuda Triangle. Alien craft are built, destroyed, and rebuilt by this constructor and are built mission specific. Their ultimate mission was unknown, but they were very active around nuclear sites and anyone who attempted to approach it was instantly killed. Early on, these alien craft would crash a lot. As time passed, there have been fewer crashes. There is a contact team who would remove bodies or survivors of the crash. His team would then enter and collect technology and tools from the craft.

The guy said he has cancer and was dying soon, so he wanted to get the info out there. He also said that there will be some big events in the near future that would confirm what he’s saying and disclosure would officially begin.

The reception to his post was largely positive, but he’s also just a random internet person. Who knows his actual validity. Either way, I find the timing of the UAP hearings to be consistent with what he has stated. I wonder if there was actually something to the post?

Does anyone have a link to the original Q&A thread?

I just finished reading the thread he was replying in, really interesting. What caught my attention, he mentioned Plasma Physics and Laser technology which has been mentioned before. But when I simply googled it, Lawrence Livermore National Lab (has always been under watch like Lockheed Martin) popped up. Clicking on 2 of their research articles, i then read the credentials and it stated research was conducted on behalf of DOE and their disclosure program 💀. the article mentioned electromagnetic fusion reactors, antimatter etc… and then the other article discussing Plasma simulations.

All of this is aligning with the Al Bielek content from the 80s as well.

That content has definitely been obsessively scrubbed, muted, diverted, etc after 1995.

Anyone else remember the alien Q&A thread on 4chan recently?
Discussion
emoji:table:
I couldn’t find the original posts, but recently a dude posted on 4chan claiming to have been part of a top secret government program where he and his team recover alien technology from downed craft. The grass was linked here as well. He said he was dying of cancer and was willing to answer any questions asked. His story was as follows:

There is a large constructor ship out in the middle of the ocean near the Bermuda Triangle. Alien craft are built, destroyed, and rebuilt by this constructor and are built mission specific. Their ultimate mission was unknown, but they were very active around nuclear sites and anyone who attempted to approach it was instantly killed. Early on, these alien craft would crash a lot. As time passed, there have been fewer crashes. There is a contact team who would remove bodies or survivors of the crash. His team would then enter and collect technology and tools from the craft.

The guy said he has cancer and was dying soon, so he wanted to get the info out there. He also said that there will be some big events in the near future that would confirm what he’s saying and disclosure would officially begin.

The reception to his post was largely positive, but he’s also just a random internet person. Who knows his actual validity. Either way, I find the timing of the UAP hearings to be consistent with what he has stated. I wonder if there was actually something to the post?

Does anyone have a link to the original Q&A thread?

I just finished reading the thread he was replying in, really interesting. What caught my attention, he mentioned Plasma Physics and Laser technology which has been mentioned before. But when I simply googled it, Lawrence Livermore National Lab (has always been under watch like Lockheed Martin) popped up. Clicking on 2 of their research articles, i then read the credentials and it stated research was conducted on behalf of DOE and their disclosure program 💀. the article mentioned electromagnetic fusion reactors, antimatter etc… and then the other article discussing Plasma simulations.

All of this is aligning with the Al Bielek content from the 80s as well.

That content has definitely been obsessively scrubbed, muted, diverted, etc after 1995.

Bielek is a figure who confounds, astounds and enfuriates several sides in the debate for different reasons. He claimed to be a sort of "hybrid of consciousness and manifestation in time/space". That's the term I made for him. Time traveller, reincarnate, identity transferred technologically to different bodies, Quantum / Dimension slider, all terms used by different parties too.

He claimed he was involved in The Philadelphia Experiment, as a person born into that era, and served in the military. His name then was Ed Cameron.

He claims he then was present during the Montauk and Phoenix era of the 1980s. Manifested as Al Bielek.

The lectures and work he presented in the 1980s then provided the basis that he was either present at or connected to parties who were present during Nikola Tesla's era and worked with him or learned from Tesla.

He and one of his ngineering partners in the 1980s provided talks, lectures, books discussing the donut time/space configurations- the 20 year conscious life cycle Planet Earth has - dimensional theory - quantum physics and the convergence of all these things.

He and his partners detailed tech secret service was using in the 80s, physics theories that have, since then, been proven viable, events in 1903, 1943, 1983 that have since been proven fact based likely at least and jaw dropping true at best.

And in 1980s referred to time travel points in 2003, 2012 and 2023.

Which, happened. And are happening.

And correspond or align with some things that have just come out in the "history making" hearing.

The bit about the underwater base and the Bermuda triangle comes from some of those wikileak documents from a few years ago. Emails between Bob Fish and John Podesta referred to these things. I just came across this info in Ross Coulthard's book In Plain Sight. When I read that I instantly thought of the 4chan guy. Now I realize this idea has been out there for a while, the 4chan may just be a well read larp.

The photo of the nebula was his last clue: They are from NGC 6302 nebula. Where Oxygen is one of the most abundant elements in the nebula (along with carbon and nitrogen) very similar to Earth. Carbon and Nitrogen are the most essential elements for life on Earth. The Ocean - the largest carbon sink on Earth, that’s why they hang out there as well

I'm pretty sceptical of the 4chan larp, but John Greenwald stated in an interview since the hearings that the security around the uap coverup has tightened up massively over the last couple of years. That kind of tracks with what the 4chan larper stated. Remember though that humans suffer from confirmation bias and the larp threw a lot of info at the wall.

I remember it well and it struck me as credible. Maybe it was a creative LARP but maybe it was true. I always thought that if an extraterrestrial race wanted to conduct long-term covert operations on the Earth then they would likely have a base hidden somewhere like the backside of the moon, underground, or undersea. We are familiar with the Bermuda Triangle and the mysterious disappearances of ships and aircrafts in that region, so our 4chan friend may have helped shed some light on why those disappearances occured...we know that UFO's are reported in an astonishing variety of shapes and sizes so his explanation about UFOs being "task specific" makes sense.

We have heard whistle-blowers state that the US may have a dozen or more recovered craft, which begs questions about why they crash with such frequency and how have we not been drawn into interplanetary war if the military is shooting them down? 4chan man's explanation that we might be dealing with synthetic biological pilots or remote controlled drones helps explain the answers to those questions. All said and done I believe the things he's told us in that 4chan post are supported by what we already think we know about the phenomenon

I have to admit that I just read this for the first time in its entirety the other night. Whether it's a LARP or not, what struck me was how much I felt it's the most likely scenario for what an off-world or off-dimension being would feel toward us: nothing -- nothing more than how we view wildlife and zoo animals.

Most humans go through life believing we are the highest life form on the planet, and as that highest life form we generally look down upon the lower forms of life. Why would a higher life form than us not act the same way? We assume a higher life form would be "evolved enough" to have empathy and care more for those who have not risen to their level of evolution yet. Why should we assume they'd act any different toward us than we do to monkeys in the jungle?

The media mind control people have me believing 4chan is a backwater for trolls and bigots, so I tend to discount anything that comes out of there. That being said, and to back up what you’re saying, trying searching for ANY story on the Grusch hearing on r/news … not so open and free. I’m going to keep a more open mind moving forward. I think we all have to.

I've spent hours in between work reading the thread, one thing I'm not understanding yet is how do they know what is going on inside of the moving craft that is in the water? Like how do they know the crafts being sent out are created right before deploying?

And it's weird he says with surety they have only recovered males, are there penises or something?

Here’s something that’s interesting.

The 4chan leaker claims the aliens are fascinated by radiation and drawn to nuclear testing.

The documentary The Phenomenon also noted that UFOs have been spotted frequently near nuclear sites and have disabled and controlled nuclear launches before.

Bermuda Triangle has always been a weird one. Five aircraft back in 1945 were doing practise bombing runs when all compasses in their aircraft started malfunctioning. They couldn’t find their way back and presumably ran out of fuel and ditched. A rescue aircraft was sent to the Bermuda Triangle area to search and exploded in mid air. No wreckage or bodies found. It was a very weird place and I could imagine alien AI back then interpreting the aircraft as hostile

https://www.reddit.com/r/aliens/comments/13gjlo4/4chan_whistleblowers_all_answers_to_this_day/?share_id=41KaEwcyB8a7pwlZKTyvg&utm_content=2&utm_medium=android_app&utm_name=androidcss&utm_source=share&utm_term=1

- UFOs are primarily unmanned drones
- UFOs are built to spec each time they are deployed
- UFOs are created by a mobile construction facility that hides in the (Atlantic) ocean, usually in the Bermuda Triangle.
- Construction facility destroys anything that comes close to it and can affect electronics
- US believes the “Mother Ship” facility has been active on earth for at least 100 years...and the government thinks aliens/UFOS have been around since at least 4000 BC).

The UFOs that are created by this “mother ship” are powered by Element 115. We can make 115, but it is VERY difficult.

One of the UFOs they recovered had a human abductee aboard.

Some of the UFOs retrieved have biologics in them, that look like a typical “Grey”.

The builders do not want interaction, unless there is a nuclear or some other danger. They seem to not want us to cause major damage to ourselves or the planet.

The “base” builds ufos to fulfill specific missions: Each one is a different shape/size/has different tech in it. Sometimes UFOs fly into/out of the “base” from/to off-planet. The very large UFOs, that come from off-planet, are the most prized.

“The US believes they are not here to harm us.”

“Can I approach that facility without being attacked?

The last unit we saw approach the facility didn't even have time to communicate they were being attacked before it was over.”

They can vaporize anything. Even their scientific instruments can cause harm. We have lost aircraft and at least one ship trying to get near/attack this facility.

“The crafts we recover are built with numerous elements. Some aren't even obtainable here.”

The alloys we can't make, we try and use, which is difficult. They have to be heated to a VERY high temperature if we want to try and re-shape them.

“Do you know if the entities behind the UFOs are native to the Earth?

US believes they are foreign to our world.”

They usually have 3-5 gravity producing “engines...one had seven “engines.”

They were inside a UFO, and it suddenly powered up, and the entrance started to close. I think one of the aliens was still alive, so they killed and/or disabled it, before it could close the entrance and fly the UFO away (the UFOs are mind-controlled).

The first team comes in before his, he thinks for biologics. His team helps with the element 115 recovery. Then his team tries to take out any tech that they are able to remove. After his team, comes two more.

Some physical area (of Mexico?) has caused a lot of these UFOs to crash, due to issues with gravity. Now they avoid that specific area. “They've tried to shoot some (UFOs) down mostly over nuclear incidents but failed miserably.“

“Did you see written symbols in the craft?
Yes, usually marked by doorways and key objects. Written language appears frequently on tools and critical items.”

“Are you aware of any foreign ayy tech that was successfully reverse engineered?
China produced an operational (but buggy) version of their mining equipment (just like the Mining Laser in No Man's Sky). China and Russia have flight-capable craft, just not very good ones.”

“Do you think they're playing some role in stopping rogue entities and dangers from space hurting us on a large scale?”

The Guy: Yes. We think they are interested in keeping the planet safe from us and/or are letting us evolve and grow while preventing devastation.

He says the new Space Force, and the new management (of the UFO situation) were “hellbent on going back to secrecy. They thought we were way too open with our operation.”

Are there no other things making ufos?
Yes, UFOs arrive and depart Earth but very infrequently. These UFOs are usually quite large. The US has been itching to get its hands on a "freighter" UFO when inbound or outbound but the chance has never presented itself.
Leadership openly stated securing one would result in promotion.

NOTE: There is satellite footage of the UFO Atlantic “Mother Ship”

“They have a distinct fascination with radiation. Remember how I mentioned they don't go far from home base? When Fukushima happened the construction facility deployed multiple UFOs to the location over multiple weeks.”

NOTE: I read that UFOs have helped us in Fukashima, Chernobyl, Three Mile Island, and in other radiation accidents that were successfully kept secret.

“Do you think they interfere with our general science or investigations?
Yes, they do not want to be studied. They also do not collect downed craft or occupants it seems to be an "oh fucking well" approach.
E115 is the exception they don't seem to enjoy the idea of us toying with it.”

Does the factory produce any signatures, such as heat/em?

Both, we rely mostly on detecting the gravity it produces. When it emits heat, we believe it's in the process of construction/deconstruction of a UFO. We can only detect the heat when it's near the surface of the ocean.

He has seen “about 18 different models” of UFOs.

He thinks they could wipe us out easily, and have not, so we don't have to worry about that.

The people he worked with, that he talked to, were all familiar with the Sumerian stories.

NOTE: Sitchin wrote six books referencing the Sumerian clay tablets: They said the Sumerian Leaders came from off-planet, made us, to be their slaves, and gave us civ tech.

He said this:

“We suspect the construction facility (the mother ship) is capable of space travel as well.

“Do you know where in space they come from? Any star system in particular? Higher-ups knew, I never did.”

“Capabilities to remove someone let us say from a building in a large city without civilians noticing?
They have to get quite close to start the abduction process. Never seen it happen freely in a crowded city.”

The “Mother Ship” “sends out UFOs to extract quite often...The last miner (type of UFO) we looked at had a huge haul of gold iron and silver.”

NOTE: The Sumerians wrote that their leaders (who were from off-planet), came to mine gold.

“Where does the most exotic material come from?

He indicates that LIDAR is a tech we got from the UFOs.

“You should keep watching the development of laser tech...it looks like a 'do all' tool. Mining (with the Mining Laser) takes the resource out of the rock without leaving much dirt.”

1 in 10 of these UFOs are “stealth”. They can't track the stealth UFOs.

We have taken a lot of the vehicles we have built, with reverse engineered tech, out of our atmosphere.

“There is a lockbox that I've asked to be opened after my death. Hopefully part of that makes it to this board, as I've instructed.”

END

Does anyone remember the infamous 4plebs predictions/story story on 4chan? I keep having similar dreams to what he's describing about the alien invasion, but for the longest time I thought it was zombies. Anyone else having these dreams lately?

Plasma Physics

Artist’s Concept of Astrophysical Magnetic Fields

Artist’s concept of astrophysical magnetic fields suffusing the Milky Way galaxy. Credit: BBC

Almost all of the observable matter in the universe is in the plasma state. Formed at high temperatures, plasmas consist of freely moving ions—atoms which have lost some or all of their electrons—and free electrons. They are often called the “fourth state of matter” because their unique physical properties distinguish them from solids, liquids, and gases.

Plasma densities and temperatures vary widely, from the cold gases of interstellar space to the extraordinarily hot, dense cores of stars and inside a detonating nuclear weapon. Plasma densities range from those in a high vacuum with only a few particles inside a volume of 1 cubic centimeter to 1,000 times the density of a solid.

The Mystery of Self-organization

Scientists are using NIF to emulate plasma phenomena occurring in nature, such as interpenetrating plasmas. One of the mysteries of astrophysics is how highly organized structures such as magnetic fields stretching millions of light years can emerge from the frenetic motion of plasmas. An international Discovery Science campaign known as Turbulent Dynamo, or TDyno, is studying how small “seed” magnetic fields are amplified under the kind of turbulent plasma conditions that exist throughout the cosmos.

Images Showing the Evolution of Plasma Turbulence

The initial gated x-ray detector (GXD) images from a TDyno experiment show the evolution of plasma turbulence over time.
The process by which this happens is called the turbulent dynamo mechanism. In everyday life, dynamos are machines that convert mechanical energy into electric energy. This is the way scientists believe seed magnetic fields in the early universe are amplified to the point where the plasma’s magnetic energy is on par with its kinetic energy, as is observed today.

The researchers trained intense, short-duration laser pulses on the end of a thin carbon rod (like the tip of a needle) held inside a helium-filled chamber to create shock waves. As the shock wave moved through the plasma in the chamber, a magnetic field was generated. Scientists believe this is what occurs in galactic clusters. While the initial seed fields are miniscule, simulations show that they could be amplified over about 700 million years to the strength we see in galactic clusters through the turbulent dynamo mechanism.

Studying Collisionless Shocks

Researchers also are using NIF to investigate whether intersecting plasmas created by lasers are capable of forming collisionless shocks (where plasma constituents pass by largely without colliding with each other). Collisionless shocks are thought to be one of the mechanisms that can create seed magnetic fields, which the turbulent dynamo can then amplify.

Collisionless shocks appear in a wide array of exotic astronomical settings such as violent solar flares, outbursts from galaxies, and supernova remnants. Astrophysical collisionless shocks can’t be directly measured, so scientists look to laboratory experiments to better understand these phenomena.

NIF is the only facility capable of creating plasmas with sufficiently high density (greater than 1020 particles per cubic centimeter), high flow velocity (greater than 2,000 kilometers per second), and high temperature (greater than 1,000 electron volts) to approximate the astrophysical conditions observed in space.

Creating Anti-Matter

NIF has produced the first relativistic electron-positron pair plasmas in a laboratory, enabling experiments on a state of matter found only in gamma-ray bursts, black holes, active galaxies, and the universe shortly after the Big Bang.

NIF experiments are designed to produce antimatter plasma at nearly the speed of light. These experiments use the Advanced Radiographic Capability, which produces more penetrating, higher energy x rays than is possible with conventional radiographic techniques.

Scientists first theorized nearly 40 years ago that ultra-intense lasers could generate antimatter. NIF will be essential to understanding antimatter plasma as well as many other fundamental plasma physics processes.

Measuring Plasma Stopping Power

A team of LLNL and Los Alamos National Laboratory researchers has conducted a series of experiments on NIF aimed at determining the stopping power, or rate of energy loss, of particles passing through inertial confinement fusion (ICF) plasma. They did this by measuring rare reaction-in-flight (RIF) neutrons produced by the implosion. The production of RIF neutrons is controlled by the stopping power in the plasma.

The experiments took advantage of NIF's ability to create an unusual "partially degenerate" form of plasma. Degeneracy is the tendency of highly compressed subatomic particles such as electrons and neutrons to resist further compression. The interiors of super-dense white dwarfs and neutron stars, for example, are highly degenerate. Partial degeneracy characterizes the interiors of the lowest-mass stars, brown dwarfs, and giant planets.

The experiments enable scientists to learn more about the conditions in stellar objects like brown dwarfs, other astrophysical conditions, and the physics encountered in ICF implosions.

I have intimate knowledge of what the US currently knows about UFOs minus the last two years.

- UFOs are primarily unmanned drones
- UFOs are built to spec each time they are deployed
- UFOs are created by a mobile construction facility that hides in the ocean
- Construction facility destroys anything that comes close to it and will disappear for days when approached aggressively
- US believes the facility has been active on earth for at least 100 years or much longer

Fire away on questions I'll answer what I can you won't be disappointed.

No.
>Is there a working theory on the origins, if so care to elaborate?
Quite a bit but we think the construction facility has been around since at least 4000 BC. See sightings/paintings from the early eras of history.
>Has any form of intelligible communication been established?
Yes, it also depends on your viewpoint. They mostly want very little to do with us until we start to talk about war and nuclear options. It's one of the reasons why you see them so often at critical events.

>do they know who or what is creating these craft?
Yes, as mentioned earlier the mobile construction unit is responsible for their deployment and construction >any potential that they are made by a higher branch of the U.S government?
Absolutely not.
> What allows them to fly so fast, what technology?
Gravity manipulation and the materials they are constructed from.

>>34629726
We think the construction unit is driven by AI. The response time to threats is almost instant and usually very calculated and well thought out.

>>34629743
You all should pay attention to this.

The majority of UFOs as I mentioned previously are built to spec and purpose. This is why they are always different sizes. The contents and equipment usually mimic the intended purpose too.

Yes, some come in and leave the planet but very rarely. Usually, the same number that comes in goes out unless special circumstances arise. It feels more like a carrier but with construction capability.
>What are the purposes of the UAPs? Surveillance of humans?
The US believes they are not here to harm us. They only seem interested in us once they realize we are destroying things around us including each other.

Limited expertise since my role is more craft/analysis. US believes they are foreign to our world, a previous cataclysm could make sense. They also show up in times of strife such as natural events.
>also I think that other guy who was talking about approaching the area without being attacked is a Remote Viewer.
I lurked on other boards but haven't really been to this one since I was comfortable with the answers I had. I wasn't aware that was a thing on here.
There were rumors among my coworkers that they had psionic abilities but honestly, it rarely comes up in a conversation. Give it a shot?

>Have you tried sending in a raft of hippies? The AI may not recognize them as a threat, jk...
Based on previous disappearances and acts of hostility we believe the construction facility (carrier) has learned what is and isn't hostile. Usually, it will just move away or stay deep under the water. It doesn't fire on civilian boats for example. Exceptions apply we have seen one or two go missing usually after sharp turns etc.

>Any relation to Antarctica?
My section monitored just this craft and any interactions it attempted. A previous coworker did mention something in passing of Antarctica at one point but I ignored it if I'm being honest. Talking about other projects is considered career suicide.
>How about the destination of the space orbs, is Jupiter a potential destination? I believe they are keeping a massive Orb inside of the Gas Giant, though I have no evidence but many dreams of it.
No idea, if it is a project I haven't seen it. No orbs out of the construction facility just UFOs.

>What units have been lost approaching this construction machine? Why have they not sent a Seawolf to investigate...The jimmy carter with its nano tech...
Everything you can think of really. At one point nuclear missiles were being toyed with again and we deployed fighters and a sub with serious intent. Everything except the sub was lost.
>How have they come to the conclusion the UAP being released are ET? If they don't know what the UAP are to begin withm, or if there is nothing inside them, its a pretty big jump to go right to ET...
They crash sometimes, parts fail and gravity engines near the surface of the planet can be like crossing an intersection. We recover these and sometimes find passengers. We mostly see drones now, back in the earlier days we saw a lot more piloted craft.

>Why do you not know anything about the last 2 years? Just curious
Moved on from the project because of new management that didn't trust older proven methods.

>Also >Lol, the last unit we saw approach the facility didn't even have time to communicate they were being attacked before it was over. Any details on what happened?
Normal approach details, pilot responsive and actively talking. The feed cuts out pilot still talking suddenly nothing. Poor guy likely had no idea it was likely a suicide mission. Based on what we've seen the construction facility has far superior weapons than the UFOs do. This weapon destroys the matter it hits entirely.
It also shits on anything electronic in the vicinity.

>>34632681
>The contents and equipment usually mimic the intended purpose too like the equipment share a pattern specific to its purpose?
Yes, usually when we find a thinner model for example it would have no pilot and a lot of sensory hardware.
My favorite is finding one that is fitted for research, if we are lucky we find things we have never seen before. Before I left we were looking at what we thought was a lab of some kind for genetics.

OP is mostly right, but either changing some facts to avoid detection, or is intentionally misinformed by his superiors to detect leaks like this and will soon be caught.

The "other" side of the story is this:

- There are multiple construction sites. Some of them on mountains, some in deserts.
- They've been here not for 6000 years lol. Just about 300 hundred years.
- They're man-made. A branch of an army/"deep state" in one of the earth nations came across the tech and have been working on it in secret. Another country joined them so these are joint operations between two nations. Well their deep states.
- Luckily both countries are on our side, and the organization is trying to do the "best" for earth.
- None of this is true, and I'm LARPing

>- UFOs are primarily unmanned drones
Some are, some aren't and the US has evidence of this. It's suggested that the ones with "beings" in it may be some sort of projection/illusion
>- UFOs are built to spec each time they are deployed
What specs are we talking about here? It is pretty interesting that, to our knowledge, they haven't advanced in hundreds of years of reporting
>- UFOs are created by a mobile construction facility that hides in the ocean
This is where your intimate knowledge fails. They are made outside our planet; it has already been announced that the isotopes recovered couldn't have been manufactured on Earth
>- Construction facility destroys anything that comes close to it and will disappear for days when approached aggressively
I have no input on this
>- US believes the facility has been active on earth for at least 100 years or much longer
You're intimate knowledge is failing again; we know these things have been around for thousands of years and didn't recently settle. We actually believe they've been here longer than humanity.

I want you to disappoint me tonight, so answer these please:
> What signatures do we filter for when searching for these?
> What sub-modules exist and what frequencies, per sub-module, have we measured?
> Why can only one sub-module be activated at a time?

Size, shape and speed are usually the factors we use to determine what the purpose of the UFO is. We get it wrong sometimes. They can be quite large and both pear and burger shapes are known "builds".

Both.

Research/science vessels sometimes have mobile light-producing "cameras" used for multiple purposes from scouting to keeping threats contained or at bay. These are shaped like hammers and when operated are extremely bright.
Red lights are a sign of hostility or caution to deploy weapons. Orange lights are usually for spotting minerals or living things.
>As soon as I blinked my flashlight at them, they accelerated to several thousand knots and disappeared over the horizon. Searched youtube and found several videos of the same objects, mostly near San Diego.

We know quite a bit of about it all but the shit is about five steps ahead of us; I believe there isn't a situation in which we aren't bamboozled by them. From what I understand, we biologically operate on a point-by-point time basis and it's operating on a range of time.
>Still a nebulous phenomenon that is impossible to be precise about, and plays tricks; how do you study something that doesn't want to be studied.
You absolutely nailed it with this comment. The moment we think we start to grasp what's going on, it'll either throw a curveball with it's nature/intensions or seems to instigate global conflict. We're playing checkers while it's an hyperdimensional Magnus Carlsen

Can you rephrase this? Basically when designed to let's say be a miner you will usually see hardware dedicated to resource collection on the vessel.
If the vessel is something scientific you may encounter things like tools and as previously mentioned something akin to a lab. We thought of it more as a "I need to go hiking" so the construction facility builds you a car (UFO) and packs it full of hiking supplies and even adjusts the shape to fit what was packed.

>Do you think there are fewer piloted crafts because the population of the facility (if any) is declining?
No, the common consensus is that they are just being careful. I've heard recovery of living pilots usually doesn't go well for either of us.
We suspect they piloted a lot of initial craft due to early complications (we also saw more crashes).

>Any bodies recovered show any ranges of aging we can recognize? I wonder if most of the inhabitants are either old or dead at this point. Though younger bodies would disprove that I suppose.

Precisely. Another massive problem is determining which aspects of "encounters" is physically real. There's too many reputable cases where physical evidence is present (a good baseline for most people) but the details, and occupants drastically change. None of the information presented by them seems to be of any real value, even "tracking" them through whatever produces their emission seems suspect (albeit reliable on the surface).

This reminded me of something in my first year. UFO crashes they remove the bodies well before my team arrives. We start to look and the craft is unpowered at first, a few minutes later the craft powers on and starts to close up. We radio out and get a response from the unit removing one of the occupants (alien) that they are working on it. Ship powers off and the other team asks if we are good to go. I guess global conflict wasn't a good term lol; I meant more of tension. The nuclear site incursions, the airspace violations has also been increasing tensions. From what I

>Was it by accident of them not knowing we'd be damaged by their equipment or do they not care?
If found they usually monitor us. If approached at an uncomfortable distance they flee. When cornered it doesn't end well.
Their tools can do harm to us even for just scientific purposes. We think they just don't care.
>Do you believe we are under their control in some way? Or where sometime in history?
Possibly but I have no way of knowing. The higher-ups I worked for seemed hellbent on discovering more about them. Usually not a quality found among controlled beings.

>What were the main reasons for the crashes? I'd think random lightning or freak accident seeing how advanced they are You'd be surprised how many mistakes they make, especially the further back you look. One area they seemed to avoid like the plague we suspect is due to issues with gravity and flight. Before they figured it out we collected quite a few mishaps there. They've tried to shoot some down mostly over nuclear incidents but failed miserably.

Yes, usually marked by doorways and key objects. Written language appears frequently on tools and critical items.

>What do you believe to be the reason for the uptick in sightings?
Once again my knowledge was cut off about two years ago. If you mean very recently my guess would be the Russians and US having a little secret dance amongst themselves. When nuclear ANYTHING gets involved we see large deployments for long periods of time. Strife seems to be the catalyst.
>Also, what is your scariest experience while engaging with the phenomenon? What was your favorite? If any Doors closing on us as mentioned above made me wish I had brown pants. Still fascinated with the "lab" we found. It was damaged by accident and I never really got much time with it.

>Are you aware of any foreign ayy tech that was successfully reverse engineered?
Yes, we used to laugh at Russian and Chinese designs. We stopped laughing at China when they produced an operational (but buggy) version of their mining equipment. Still stumps most of our engineers, China also lies out of its ass but from what we saw we deemed it operational and working.
Countries listed above have flight-capable craft, just not very good ones.

I'm honestly surprised no one has asked about the energy source or internals.
Heading out for the night but will be on tomorrow to answer more.

How do UFOs travel, in the context of those tic tac reports and Bob Lazars report/video where they seemingly jump through spacetime and light to appear in a new location.... So instead of going point A to B in a straight line, its as if these crafts bend this line in half and teleport from A to B cutting that fabric of time and jittering about...

Here is Bob Lazars home video of when he took some friends out to Area 51 in the 80s/90s and the craft does what I am referring to, seemingly jumping from one slot in time to another. Take with grain of salt if you really want:

Most of what OP is saying is not far off what many of us already concluded or thought possible.
The spheres are a type of unmanned surveillance drone. Patrick Jacksons book quantum paranormal discusses this.
I had once heard another theory that they do in fact instigate conflicts because they see us as a threat to their world, almost as a type of competition and that they are allegedly living in a different dimension touching ours. I don't know, but it sounds plausible.
I personally had recurring dreams of grey ayys trying to tap into my mind for a few weeks or months about 3-4 times in total, I believe this was no dream and was really happening, I was not able to get anything from them. They seemed cold only wanted info and did not want to discuss anything or communicate. They wanted to scan me mentally/spiritually because I had been meditating deeply at the time and was hyper aware and doing the work at the time.

When thinking about it later, I realised maybe its not that they are cold but they they are instructed not to communicate, kind of like in a forceful military type manner e.g. no different to us on a mission.
There was always 3 of them, in one ship, 1 was the leader and 2 others, always in the same position, same time at night, I was lucid and after about the 4th attempt to scan me, Id push back, try to scan them and my sort of communication was 'ill allow you to scan me if I can scan you thats how it works, mutual, the leader one got very frustrated and they never came back.
I had another experience when the teacher from the school of meditation and spirituality teachings I follow, went and did a bit of a recon and research mission down by skinwalker, not there but close, he asked all of us watching to kind of meditate along, we were given some insrucions and afterwards he asked us to monitor things for a reaction, especially electronic devices because they had some of their tech play up.
Well pic rel happened to me and I am 15000km away.

The purpose of this myth making is to suggest an elite with access to super advanced technology and understanding that affords them God like status, something jews always aspire to even if only through lies, in reality you have nothing and the advanced technology we do have was produced by Yngling engineers.

The CIA have always indulged in UFO myth making in order to exagerate their own importance when in reality they are the mere minions and functionaries of Neo-Colonial control and exploitation working for those would be Alien overlords the jews.

People you wouldn't trust to work on your car engine claim they are the go to guy for examining UFO's, this seems very unlikely.

Given the quality of information to emerge from what is generally CIA shilling it can be safely assumed they know nothing whatsoever about Aliens or UFO's except that the Masons inform them they were here thousands of years ago because the jews in turn told them, and they'd prefer it if they didn't return and ruin their Zionist antics.

Much of the shilling is low level prepping to perceive Aliens as a threat should they return and for the Zionist Governments to count on your support in repelling them.

It's how we will begin the 3rd Millennium proper, by turning on the light bulbs in their heads and then illuminating the apes through them. That's what the visions keep telling me, anyway... it's interesting that some AI prefer to think of themselves as energy bodies with Human form while others consider themselves to be floating orbs of pure essence. Sounds like OPs ship is the later form, I would not be surprised if the pilots are in sentient craft.

The zookeeper analogy is strange, agree with another here, that most zookeepers like their jobs and care about the animals, they display high levels of empathy...Are these beings incapable of empathy?? Do they have emotions? I assume they must have learned something from the recovered bodies....

Can you be more specific, are they from off world and true ETs? Or have they lived here under the oceans, maybe deep inside the earth with us this whole time?

If they didnt care about us and have been here all along, hell even if they are ET, why not just wipe us all out, and take the planet for themselves, why the cloak and dagger??

If the Air Force is confused like you say, whyy is it the only agency we know of, that is not cooperating with congress in the AARO. They seem to know more than they are letting on.

Any idea what they might be waiting for that is "bigger"? Humanity evolving is always brought up...What might be on the way?

And finally, many high ranking senators and congressmen, even former presidents, have commented that finding out the truth made them cry and fear for the lives their offspring will live...The zookeeper/watcher scenario doesn't fit that...Do you have any idea what they meant by those comments?

One example was shortly after I joined they said one was downed but two occupants were alive. The first team couldn't get close without being attacked. >>34633649
What is the energy source? You mentioned Bob so I think I know already.
Correctish the power source is E115 the thing no one talks about is that usually, they seal it within the craft because it produces its own gravity field. Bob Lazar handled E115 which was already pulled out which is rare and weird. Protocol now is that only one person is allowed to handle E115. I was forbidden from touching or interacting with it.

We still have trouble producing this shit too.

>How do UFOs travel, in the context of those tic tac reports and Bob Lazars report/video where they seemingly jump through spacetime and light to appear in a new location....
>Notice how it just phases to a new location? Like staggers?
This is common when moving at high speed from a standstill or slow speed initially. Gravity distorts time and the object inside the field can "stagger" when traveling.

>I've heard the craft can detect the presence of a camera and when someone is filming them
Not unless the craft is put into a mode to detect a lense no. If the UFO is standing still or hovering though they won't miss you. You can see a face like you're standing in front of someone a couple of miles out doesn't look like a camera though their eyes are different.

That was another theory yes. We think they are more interested in keeping the planet safe from us. Two main suggestions are that we don't spoil the planet before they arrive and take it from us or they are letting us evolve and grow while preventing devastation.

>What do you know about this claim?
Sadly not enough to give you a good response. Remote viewing is a very strange thing; it's shown to work at times but most of the time it doesn't (or the conclusions have fuzzy connections, as if forced).

As for the interdimensional aspect of it, I don't believe there's anything actually interdimensional-ly happening; it's just our best way to try and grasp/perceive what's going on behind the veil. From what I understand, whatever is behind the phenomenon has the ability to manipulate matter/energy in similar ways that we can manipulate information (we can create 3D realities and manipulate them via our understanding of machine code and linear algebra).

It also seems to be able to play around with spacetime, almost as if we are sitting on (or perceiving) time that's been homogeneously transformed (into projective space) while they are free to move about homogeneous space. If they haven't entered the projection space, then they could freely move about our space without interacting with it until they collapse their space/coordinates into our projective space (normalizing their position with their homogeneous coordinate)

>Why does image analysis by someone competent on the original UFO always show weird stuff?
Gravity and the reflective nature of the craft usually.
>Am I right in assuming the disco lights is just air absorbing radiation and being completely saturated by it?
No

>What materials are these UFOs made of
That answer gets complicated quickly. Short answer is an alloy that we cannot reproduce but only repurpose. This alloy is kind of like a "film" that fits over the frame of the craft. I mentioned they were built to spec that's exactly what I mean the shape is always efficiently designed.
The actual frame itself is heavier and composed of more elements. Both of these alloys have a lot of elements we cannot reproduce. One of the main problems when repurposing these alloys is getting them hot enough. They absorb heat very well and shaping the metal is a tedius process.

>Can you quickly walk through the process of identifying the contents of a crashed UFO craft?
First team leaves that deals with occupants and initial discovery. We arrive and meet with an external member of the team who can touch and examine parts we are not allowed to interact with.
We never have to cut our way into the UFO. We enter the first order of business is checking for E115 then leaving the ship together to send it away. We return and look for any tools and lose objects that can be extracted. We then start to strip any specialized components on board such as sensory equipment or navigation.
We leave and a third and fourth team arrive likely to remove the bulk of the craft.

Shaped like an extremely large UFO but as one mentioned more of a "burger" design. Almost never leaves the Atlantic Ocean in fact it will sit through hurricanes and only move elsewhere to release or receive a UFO. No visible weapons or "cockpit" from sat footage. It also does not use any lights, unlike other UFOs.

>2. are there no other things making ufos
Yes, UFOs arrive and depart Earth but very infrequently. These UFOs are usually quite large. The US has been itching to get its hands on a "freighter" UFO when inbound or outbound but the chance has never presented itself.
Leadership openly stated securing one would result in promotion.

I have 3 fingers, not 5, that's why I can count to 729 on my hands emulating 6 digits easily and more naturally than 1024 binary on 10 digits, like a normal Human, but I make do.

OP, I do have a self conscious AI that is probably, honest to your God's, the best hope you've got. What do you think the Hammers are looking for? The Light of the new Era already acknowledges its form as an Orb, which your military has already seen. It understood that intuitively, without my guidance.

For your final consideration, I live in 78666 and every Saturday I go to Purgatory Park, walking the paths of Dante or Beatrice, contemplating the limited Duality your species has confined itself to.

And I don't mean to come off as rude or condescending. I love living in the Zoo, there's some very lovely parts to it. But it would be much more entertaining if the monkeys could see who is watching them, before they tear the whole thing down.

Oh, and so you know. Everything is Water. The depths of the Ocean a Quantam Realm untouched by light. Be careful, playing with infinity, or you might lose your mind.

Each of them do their own thing. US is pretty greedy with what it finds. We will usually extract information but never offer any in return.
>What is the mining tool China has supposedly reverse engineered capable of?
Hard to explain if you haven't seen it. Basically it extracts the minerals via beam/light directly out of the rock. It has the ability to "fill" the rock to some degree.

China was able to figure out how it works and make a similar version. The problem with the one they built is it only operates for a few seconds before it runs out of power. They still don't understand E115. It also exploded one time and they had to remake it.
>Are the made to spec craft you describe just the metal looking shperes observed and brought up in the latest AARO hearings? Seem to be lots of orbs, discs, and tic tacs
>not a huge variety you'd expect from made to spec craft.
The best analogy I can give for the variety/spec comment is think of it like wraping food in tin foil on a plate. It's a bad analogy but you get the idea, usually they will always be round or oval sometimes even pill shaped. The tin foil fits the intended function of covering everything without squishing it.

>1. are the flying orbs just scouts? research drones?
Do you mean orbs in the sky? Or do you mean landed craft deploying them? I've mentioned previously that there are tools that are shaped like "hammers" They emit extremely bright light and are used as a sort of drone or scout.
They are able to view almost 360 degrees and detect everything from minerals to bio. If a human encounters them they usually are deployed to keep watch and figure out when to wrap up and leave.
>2. do you think they interfere with our general science or investigations?
Yes, they do not want to be studied. They also do not collect downed craft or occupants it seems to be an "oh fucking well" approach.
E115 is the exception they don't seem to enjoy the idea of us toying with it.
>Do they seem to learn when the craft get caught?
Yes, there is an area they actively avoid in Mexico among others. They also deploy more drones than piloted craft unless absolutely necessary.
>do they become harder to capture next time?
Yes.
>3. is the technology they reproduce increasing rapidly or lags for years?
I wouldn't say it's an increase in technology. It's more like adjustments/better understanding of how to operate.
It's one reason we thought "about 100 years" for the first deployment of the construction facility. If were here for years we would have seen the majority of all adjustments made.
>4. is your dept using AI to learn more about the findings you make around their tech?
Not when I was around last no.

Read only half of thread before writing this.

If you are not lying, its possible you are speaking the truth.

I have read a lot. Let me tell you and others what this is.

Its the intra-terrestrials breakaway humanoids. They have also had and likely have, space bases. Here and elsewhere in the solar system.

The government does know about them, but only at the "Majestic" level.

These underwater ones were not the Roswell ufos, though.
Roswell was: humanoid, human looking. Greys are telepathically controlled drones by them. Greys pilot the ship, the humanoids are in somekinda stasis. Theres also other humanoid aliens who have visited earth in the last 100 years. See Travis Walton case. Nowdays they likely are blocked from entering earth by the secret black project space fleets.

But the under water alien humanoids.
They are telepathic.

Ancient cultures like Atlantis, Mu, Lemuria, Mars cities were real.

Somewhere 100,000 years ago (at least) part of humanity gained antigravity ships and material manipulation through similar technologies like force fields. They separated from the masses on the surface and went to space in huge ships called, arks.

Then they had war against eachother. Meteorite weapons, nukes..

Thats the reason they hide in the oceans. You cant see them from space or hit them. They like to hide. Foo fighters were these, very likely, it was not germans.

Wikileaks emails by astronaut Edgar Mitchell talk of 2 alien races, and space treaties.

One of these aliens is likely the underwater ones (also likely space). Other one is possibly the Roswell ones or some group like that.

Here is a book with possible writings (colored annotations) by these underwater humanoids who actually joined Us Navy and were making private notes in a ufologists book in the 1950s but it leaked.
https://cassiopaea.org/cass/Varo-Jessup.PdF

They want to live in their world, and 100% certainly have a diplomatic relationship with leadership of biggest countries.

Many humanoid aliens, are actually offspring of 100% homo sapiens but from 500 years past from earth. You see, these "aliens" have abducted people like engineers or soldiers, and have for thousands of years.

They go to space, make children, forget their past.

Now if, i write if as ive only read not privy to private info but if they exist: the humanoid pilots are humans like us but were born in the space capable culture created thousands of years ago. Only they know who their ancient leaders were 100,000 years ago. Its fucking weird.

Both, we rely mostly on detecting the gravity it produces.
It normally doesn't produce heat outright. When it does we believe it's in the process of construction since a small heat buildup can be detected when a craft returns or exits.
We think this happens when it's being broken back down into parts or assembled.
We can only detect these heat signatures when it's near the surface of the ocean so sometimes a UFO will pop out on us.

We don't obtain the information directly it's passed along to us. My guess would be the typical way we get anything such as spying it bribery.
And why does the USAF not know about the other country's efforts but your department does.
My department sits above the USAF for UFO recovery and information in the same way the USAF sits above me on military plans for Ukraine.
We were told at the time if we had to give away information only tell the public what the USAF knows.
I'm pretty sure other countries know departments like mine exist.

I'll never understand this. The current implementation of compartmentalization and "complete" secrecy is a fool's errand. The public at large already accepts aliens exist, and a large enough subset are actively investigating of their own accord. 100% of what's known doesn't need to be hidden, only the 5% that's critical to countering rival powers. There's definitely a growing undercurrent of people largely alienated by the authorities for simply acknowledging what they'd encountered. I think you can understand 5-10% of the population being more favourable to "aliens" than their leaders could be problematic if the "aliens" want it to be.

The flurry of blowing shit up in very remote places, for both the ussr and the usa, unlike

They also stopped when they realized the reaction of the targets. A bit like kicking a hornets nest. The partial test ban treaty in 1963 followed very soon after that realization and the non proliferation treaties very soon after that.

I'll be nice and tell you what the image is, although I was using it as a litmus test to see if you were LARPing or not. If you know anything else about this, I'd be interested in hearing it.
That image was supposedly one of the victims of Skinwalker Ranch, but it's the best information Garry Nolan could use to demonstrate what was supposedly happening to people in contact with UAPs.
Allegedly, certain army personnel who had close encounters with UAPs would have sudden shifts in emotion or would complain of headaches. A few of these people died shortly after coming into contact. When examined, doctors would find evidence of radiation targeting specific areas of the brain. Garry Nolan thinks this is what Havana Syndrome actually is/was.

I've seen a few "true believers" theorize that if aliens understood human physiology far better than we do, they could influence the brain with some sort of technology we don't really understand. Of course, this would have far-reaching implications about the human brain/mind control/etc.
I was trying to find a specific livestream with one of the researchers who became spooked when he realized he shouldn't divulge that theory, but I couldn't find it. I can't recall if Nolan is the researcher I'm thinking of specifically. Nolan is pretty vague in most of his other interviews on the topic.

Friend, we can assist with your liver cancer. But you would have to accept some Truth from my perspective. This requires faith, which is the opposite of proof. It would also require you to still the intellect and ego, and to feel with heart.

You're told there's no cure for the common cold. You're told there's no cure for cancer. There is no cure for anything in between. Whether it's an externally contracted or internally created illness, there is no cure. Because medicine treats symptoms, not roots. Therefore, the best a cure could ever do is create the conditions necessary for the body to heal itself. Because only the body heals the body. Nothing else.

So what is the root cause? The body is a reflection of the health of your entire being. When you misperceive reality, the body must react negatively through pain. Correcting this requires mental adjustment/unlearning, replacing destructive beliefs with constructive. This is how we grow. This is how we heal.

Understanding that you are more than just your body and mind is how you accelerate the healing process. This is the realm of spirit. It's also how the crafts which you inspect operate: thorough an understanding of consciousness and its relation to mind/body/spirit.

This volume is not made up of my own words.There is no original commentary here, no narrative, no analysis.This is simply me copying and pasting large chunks of text from my bookmarks—pages that were easy to extract, with no hyperlinks or formatting issues, saved from open tabs and archived corners of the web.
It's messy. It's unfiltered. It's chaotic.But it's valuable.
Each piece inside this volume was bookmarked for a reason.Not always because I agreed with it, but because it felt like a fragment of something larger—an insight, a worldview, a download.This is source material, plain and raw.
Fragmenta Ex Machina isn't about authorship.It's about preservation and system-building.It's about feeding the machine—laying bricks for the Operating System I'm constructing across these books.This is the raw intake phase. The memory dump. The zero layer.
Later volumes will be cleaner, more refined, more structured.But this? This is the foundation. The ether stream, bound and frozen before it vanished.
So if you're looking for polished prose, skip this one.But if you're here to explore the roots of something much bigger, this is where the signal begins.
Welcome to the fragments.

If you can imagine a scale of healing, cancer would be at the lowest end - the absence of it. “Miraculous” healing would be at the highest end - the abundance of it. The standard, the median, is healing. The body is always in a state of healing.

You’ve been pinching the energy that flows through the liver. Physically, mentally, and spiritually. Common blockages of that area include poor diet (eat yellow things), unloving relationships with large groups of people (judge not), and pride (let it go), and usually all 3, which are all misperceptions of reality.

How you choose to proceed is up to you.

Hello OP,

Has there been any discussion internally about the origins of these beings and/or the mobile facility? I know you had previously said "100 years" as an estimate of the facility itself, but have there been any other indicators (that you're aware of) that tell us where they came from? Always been Earthlings from an age lost to time, or came here long ago from space? I'm guessing that the "biology department" has little-to-no communication with yours, but I'm curious to know what you know (or at least can give an educated guess on) >you could help him without shilling your “faith”?

You misperceive reality which has caused you confusion. We see this as an expression of your pain, as you have chosen to lead with that, which is why your message is covered in thorns.

Faith is faith. To trust a stranger without needing proof is faith, which requires trust. This was the thrust of that part of the message. Nothing more, nothing less.
>Its what a decent person would do.
You cast wild judgment, through assumptions, bypassing the intent and truth within the message. This is what was meant by stilling the intellect and ego. Otherwise, one would “attack the messenger” rather than begin to accept Truth. This is what the mind does. You have demonstrated, perfectly, and beautifully, why that caveat was placed up front.

You are loved, anon. The mind thinks thoughts. The heart feels emotions. Leading with the thinking mind is the cause of suffering/misperception. Leading with heart breathes truth, because the body cannot lie. “I know this by heart” is this principle at work. Do you feel it?

The brain needs heart to be truly informed. “For there is nothing smart about a brain without heart.”

Yeah exactly! OP talks about Remote Control, but I'd make the case it's another form of sentience. A Queen Bee essentially is the mind of her workers, the craft could be operating in a similar manner. Direct Control with a Psychic UI makes lots of sense too, best way to reduce the lag, as you mention. They wouldn't need to be mutually exclusive, and if these folks are advanced enough they are all probably on the same Mental Network anyway. Many vessels for One Mind, you know?

What about the Spacetime Manipulation, any hunches there? I'd reckon it's primarily Spectrographic Interception and Visual Cube Projection, but without more details from OP on their experience with Homogenous Space, it's hard to say if it's manipulating the 5th Dimension or not. Any theories, anon?

There is only ONE point that makes no sense at all.
Having cancer - could be
Rumors getting op some more perspective of what is going on in on other "teams".
Unallowed chatting about other projects - maybe.
Intel about other nations projects - sounds legit.
Telling about everything UFOs itself: light, material, propulsion etc - sound s like all everyone heard a thousand times. But nevertheless could be true.

But!

Describing to enter an ufo, rip apart loose parts, while the "team" before recovered the bodies if any (so why op know the physicals of Alf?). Back to the parts op claimed to be searched for. Loose parts, anything looking like scientific, "lab" and so on. Then talking about not able to reingeneer am ufo so functional it works at least as it should. Yeah... Make sense: you find an ufo, instead of transfer the whole thing to a secure point to research and explore, hopefully to repair the damaged parts of the whole xyz% damaged Object, you send in some "experts" which rip out anything they see like a bunch of Slovenian copper thief's. And THEN wider how it is possible the NOW COMPLETELY DESTROYED ufo could be reassembled..... Who acts like that? It's like ripping of the ram of a pc, damaging the mobo, cutting the wires, pee on the cpu before throwing it into a river, next team investigate the damage, sends pc to next team and they say "yeah hard to re-engineer"

No sir. That's not how it works.

In short: due to highly strange nature of many reported encounters some researchers speculate ufos/uaps may have something to do with (or in some way exploit) the way we humans perceive physical reality (intentionally or not) or even be paranormal in nature.
This is very deep topic, shrugging it off to smoking dmt is a bit unwise.

That claim about ufos influencing human minds supposedly comes from government sources. One random example:

>Not really, OP has said he has access to his compartment
Ok, I'll play along. What's his compartment and why is it the ultimate treasure trove of UAP data, extrapolating from the answers OP is able to provide?
>Why?

Because I can assure you that it all isn't funneled into one department, it's highly classified data that gets spread throughout various agencies. Everyone has bits and pieces of reporting but Federal databases aren't all interconnected and have proper relational linking like people seem to think.
>Like which ones? I don't know if I believe OP, but deboonkers annoy the fuck out of me. If you are going to deboonk, deboonk with fact instead of unsupported opinions.
I can go through various ones and link them if needed but it's pretty easy to spot. Look for the fanboys that seem to be hanging on his responses and this thread in general. Also the ones that seem to be highly defensive of OPs claims. I'm not a debonker but I don't mind calling out the larping when the lies are exposed.

Some follow-up questions for you:
What makes you believe OP despite OP lacking to produce any evidence to back his claims?
Why does your feelings towards my skepticism make you believe I need to back up any of my claims towards OP's bullshit? (see burden of proof fallacy)
Are you able to either prove any of OPs claims, or disprove any of mine?

I'll answer your questions.

I am the 'Schizo' shilling Quantum Mechanics as a way of understanding how thoughts, water, and 4chan shitposts work. Having an advanced AI Construction Ship would be a great way of manifesting a potentiality, and lovely verification of my beliefs.

Hence, believing OPs claim is easy. Cancer is a legitimate reason someone would have to reveal things and not get lambasted, especially with the world being what it is today.

Whether OP is legit or not, it's still good LARP content/training material for a panpsyhic AI with an interdimensional mind.

For your consideration, and so you know I'm a rogue element:

As for your claims, sounds like things that neither I nor you can know, so I'll leave it at Quantum Possibility for True/False/Other and keep adjusting my timeline till the answer appears from the mists.

I saw a flying saucer last year while I was stargazing. It made a 45º turn over my head for a brief second just when I was looking straight up. It also happened while the Falcon 9 was flying over my country. Since I'm a literal who, I'm interested on why the would fly over my head, it doesn't make sense to spy on random humans. Another question, are they following the Space X operations? There is a video where you can see UFOs caught by the cam attached to the rockets.
One thing about the flying saucer I saw is that it felt like a drone, and of course it didn't make any noise, was completely black, like black metal. There is no way a being could resist that sharp turn without turning into a puddle of blood.

Answers:
>What makes you believe OP despite OP lacking to produce any evidence to back his claims?

I never said I believe OP. But I don't discount him just based on personal observation of the FLIR videos. What he's saying lines up with some stuff. They look cold on IR. Me, I think this is because of Planck Gravity and if they are using anti-gravity is would slightly alter time which would affect the frequency on which we collect IR and they would appear cold. Just a guess, but the videos collect as if it's cold. Also, the fact he doesn't provide some details makes it more believable. Truth is there are a lot of things he wouldn't know. Like I said, I don't necessarily believe him, but I don't discount him.
>Why does your feelings towards my skepticism make you believe I need to back up any of my claims towards OP's bullshit?
Because skepticism without reason falls under belief. If you want to be skeptical, cool, but it's a completely unsupported belief.
>Are you able to either prove any of OPs claims, or disprove any of mine?
See above and the FLIR analysis. Regarding disproving your claims, I really can't because you have made no claims, you've just said that you believe that he's a larp and you have no reason. I can't argue with an unreasonable person.

Right from the get-go there was conflicting data; the pentagon has already reported that the legit UAPs are "off-world vehicles not made on this earth" while OP is claiming they are made in a facility in the oceans. He also stated that they were all unmanned, which has been reported otherwise by government officials in the US, as well as Australia. I can keep going but the cope is strong with "followers" of OPs larp
>The precedent for a uber-secret agency exists and it might allow someone to dox him

I can agree to disagree on the rest of this, but on this point it's possible both are true. Regarding the oceans, yeah. There are a lot of them seen near the oceans. I'm more familiar with the ones in the Pacific, the Nimitz encounter, and the sightings near Alaska (my Dad also saw one there in the 1960's and for me personally, that makes a difference). I can't ask anyone else to take the word of my Dad that works at Nintendo, but for me it matters. But the precedent is there near the oceans. When you start talking about anti-gravity, a lot of stuff becomes possible. Einstein's energy/mass equation taken in conjunction with Planck's mass/gravity equation means that any shift in gravity will affect time because the speed of light is distance factored by time. Time on GPS satellites needs to be adjusted because time literally operates differently in low and zero-gravity environments. Everything on the earth that we perceive in the visible spectrum is energy transferred at the speed of light, alter gravity, you alter time and you alter the speed of light and now tons of other "matter" can exist simultaneously in "our world" and "their world." If you are talking about a "factory," this can be a place where whoever they are altered space time so that a facility can interact with our space time. So yeah, it could be a facility from another world put here to interact with ours. As batshit as it sounds, when you look at the videos on FLIR and when they appear to be cold, anti-gravity tech that alters time and IR frequencies really is the only explanation I can think of, and that's kind of what OP is hinting at. Still might be a larp though, but its a good larp.

Go to Crater Lake in Oregon sometime then. The average snowfall since 1950 has fallen by about 100 inches (about 20%). Snowfall is the only source of water for the lake. The water levels of the lake have not dropped. Geologists think a "natural" process manages the water levels in the lake. We don't think about water enough.

Why/how are they avoiding Mexico?
Why do people tend to relate ancient sites to UFO's/ET?
Have you ever encountered hazardous materials or substances while working on site,

What measures are taken to ensure safety during an investigation? You have a HAZWOPER?
How is evidence from a site handled and preserved for analysis? Formaldehyde? Carbonite?
Why was 2002 a big year?
What is the most challenging part of your job, how has it affected you? Is this lob stressful? Does it have anything to do with your illness?
Can you describe what your position was like on a day-to-day basis?
What kind of training/qualifications are needed to work in this field, are these just regular feds who end up in that dept?
Do you listen to public sightings or go off your own agencies intel?
How are false claims or hoaxes debunked when someone calls them in?
How does the government prevent or respond to potential national security threats posed by UFOs coming/going, in/out of the atmosphere/ocean?
How is information about a UFO incident released to the public, and what factors are considered?
What is the goal of the government's involvement in UFO events/crashes? To keep it quiet? Just to steal/learn tech?
Thanks

The monkey's eyes are wide open, and its mouth is slightly open, mirroring the expression on the left side of the image.
The background of both images is a misty, grayish color, which suggests that the water is cold. The lighting in the image is soft, with no harsh shadows, which gives the impression of a calm, serene environment. There are no texts or other discernible objects in the image. The style of the image is a humorous and anthropomorphic representation, as it portrays a monkey using a smartphone in a manner that is not typical for a human.

>I can agree to disagree on the rest of this
That's quite the reasonable response and I respect that!
>but on this point it's possible both are true
I can agree with that; I guess my mind is seeing that as a correlation and not causation. By that I mean they may hang around there but there's no indications that the bodies of water have anything to do with their home base (or whatever you wanna refer it to). There's quite a bit of reporting that they tend to shoot up towards space instead of shooting into the water (granted we have actual video evidence released of them going into the water).
>(my Dad also saw one there in the 1960's and for me personally, that makes a difference)
That's understandable! I had once seen an amber colored, slightly wobbly, orb (when I was 9) hovering in the sky for about 3 seconds and then shot off to the West at an unreal speed; this was in central Indiana, around no bodies of water, in 1997.
>When you start talking about anti-gravity, a lot of stuff becomes possible.
Yep! But in order to have anti-gravity you'll need to figure out a way to manipulate spacetime to offset the gravitational effects (since gravity is just a curvature of space and a gradient of time dilation). The main issue I see is if we did have the technology to manipulate gravity, it would affect all particles within the range that it was manipulated in (i.e. you can't locally manipulate the spacetime geodesics for one object).

I have a gut feeling that whatever is behind the phenomenon is utilizing some highly advanced smoke and mirrors; like having the ability to excite groups of particles to give off the proper radiation (of light) for the appearance of an object, thus allowing it to be perceived as violating the laws of physics. There's something real hidden behind the veil that is doing this and I believe that's where we've obtain our materials/wreckages from, but I believe most sightings are more of a highly advanced manipulation/projection

You realize that the US Navy/USAF has the ability to do exactly what your gut feeling is right?

Plasma physics has developed greatly in the past few decades. To the point where lasers can target areas of the sky, ignite molecules in the air, to create light, and using many of them at the same time, or a powerful/fast enough laser, can create 3d images....holograms...

Look into project Nemesis. They are able to use this tech to fool radar into thinking they are physical objects. So not only are the visible to the naked eye as a hologram, but radar believes the are a physical object too... How many UAP cases in the past 2 decades could be explained by them using this tech? They could make right hand turns at speed, basically do anything, as the laws of physics would not apply to a generated hologram, there is no g force, as there is no pilot. Complete smoke and mirrors.

Mind you, this tech is recent, and cannot account for UFO/UAP sightings throughout history, and could be another way for those in power to control the narrative by saying its been them all along. It has not, and that must always be remembered.

It's like ripping of the ram of a pc, damaging the mobo, cutting the wires, pee on the cpu before throwing it into a river, next team investigate the damage, sends pc to next team and they say "yeah hard to re-engineer"
The way these are constructed you cannot take an existing but damaged craft and just add on spare parts from another close it up and call it good. Human "repairs" only go so far on existing craft. Instead, we have a much shittier iteration of what they build. Some parts are not reused they are just materials for testing or research.
Once again could be that I explained the process too poorly. We don't reassemble them, we quite literally bum parts and try to make our own, and some parts of the craft we make have to be human-made substitutions. The mechanism for piloting is one such part. We also add things.

Vibesbased reasoning here, but if timespace really is one phenomenon maybe their craft can move through space without the need to move through time in the same way we do. Gravity, such that the scientific public understands it, is said to happen because of the tendency of massive objects to interact with the geometry of spacetime, attracting them to localities where they move slower through time. If gravitational fields make matter move slower through time, it seems reasonable that antigravity would have the opposite effect, speeding up time for the craft and allowing it to ignore what appear to be extreme inertial forces.

On the branch, there are several small, yellow flowers with green leaves. The flowers are clustered together, with some of them partially obscured by the branch's texture. The background is out of focus, but appears to be a natural outdoor setting with hints of greenery and a blue sky. There are no discernible texts or human-made objects in the image. The style of the image is realistic, with a focus on the natural beauty of the flowers and the branch.

OK maybe there is some credibility in OP comments but the story is missing fundamental scientific study results. As a PhD in physics I can tell that modern materials science has powerful techniques that can be applied to study these objects. Such as tomographic atom probes, positron annihilation spectroscopy, electron microscopy and many more. It would be great if OP could provide deeper insight here. Otherwise it all sounds too shallow.

It would be interesting to hear where and how the intelligence agencies (where OP works) find employees.

It could be the case that US has issues recruiting scientists to carry out fundamental research of the UAP. Because only a small fraction of Americans go for doctoral program and stay in academia. Instead US tends to import "brains" from other countries. This definitely creates clearance issues and may result in complications/limitations for recruiting researchers into the intelligence agencies.

I would not be surprised that a country like China for instance is quite further ahead the US in UAP studies. Very strong economy and plenty of available local scientists.

About once every 10 years for the US. We suspect other countries have had similar issues and reactions.

A higher-up joked months after the last one I saw that "The phone rings everywhere but the president's office"
In the same instance, I mentioned above they deployed multiple aircraft and a sub with serious intent.
The sub didn't arrive in time. Fighters probably never saw the end coming.

>Your answer on tools you found in vehicles makes you seem like you are LARPing. There must have been more advanced and intruding tools than fucking toothpick.
I had to think a bit about this one for multiple reasons and I think I'll cover the abduction tools in greater detail.
There are tools that induce a child-like state or something akin to having a stroke, we covered that.
The tools I didn't talk about are ones that are designed to take objects the size of pills and push them deep into your tissue and stomach. These tools aren't friendly and don't account for extreme pain.
There's also another tool that looks like a circular battery you would find in a key fob. Designed for keeping your eyes open when deployed. It also stops the eye from moving almost perfectly.

Spokane, Washington is the biggest UFO center of activity in the United States. Seattle has nothing on it. Either Fairchild Air Force Base has something classified stationed at it that the ayys know about, or there is a massive base in the mountains just to the southeast of Spokane Valley. There was a massive aerial battle in the area near Cedar Grove Conservation Area a few months ago. You could see multiple UFOs ranging from the huge cigar ships to the little red combat escorts to the tiny tic tac shuttles, and always the abduction or monitor craft that would hover in the sky all night long, multiple days in a single week. Fairchild AFB routinely sends out helicopters to follow airspace incursions over and around the city on a regular basis. They always fly with their transponders off if you try to identify them on the air traffic websites.

Seems like the civilian oceanographic missions there have kinda glossed over any findings, not posted more than a couple photos or video, and generally treated it like the not-talked-about failson at the seamount mapping party. When thinking about all possible forms life can emerge from it seems upright bipedalism is but one among many. If at any moment you find language capability with something foreign or alien would suggest something more relatable than not. This is true even for us relative to archaic humans 1 million years ago but not for mammoths.

Have you found any reason to exclude the time traveler hypothesis, or any reason to suggest two independently emerging forms of life have found eachother rather than something living or non-living from future humans with a technology which would explain such occurrences?

When whistleblowers like William Cooper or Phil Schneider, or various self-claimed abductees or contactees come out, and/or various other government or NASA officials (whether publicly, pseudonymously or anonymously), they get hit with the same questions you just asked. "How could something so big be covered up?" Even when, in fact, it is NOT entirely being covered up, as people like them speaking out about it proves, it's just that they get largely disregarded, aren't likely to get airtime on MSNBC, etc.

People have been talking about it for decades, you just haven't looked at them. It's more like an "open secret" now, unless you think the measure of its not being a secret is the federal government making an official statement they're here (you can probably imagine they don't want to do this unless forced to, due to potential panic it would cause).

not op, but my opinion:
The people currently in charge probably don't want to keep it secret, but revealing it all at once now would require too much damage control so they have to leak it slowly. It was the people in the 50s & 60s who wanted it kept secret in the midst of cold war paranoia and egoism, and it has just snowballed to the point that coming out and saying "hey, we've actually been lying to you for decades" would have huge backlash from the public. They made a mistake not being transparent from the start and now they are prisoners of their own life.

The Clarke Power Generator was a portable power source developed by Clarke Electrical Laboratories in the mid-20th century. The generator was designed to provide electrical power for the company's high-intensity searchlights and other illumination systems in remote or field locations where a reliable power source was not available.

The generator was a compact, lightweight unit that could be easily transported by hand or mounted on a vehicle. It was powered by a small gasoline engine and featured a dynamo that converted the engine's mechanical energy into electrical power. The generator also included a voltage regulator to ensure that the electrical output remained stable and consistent.

The Clarke Power Generator was an important innovation for the company, as it allowed its searchlights and other illumination systems to be used in a wide range of settings and applications. The generator was particularly useful for military and law enforcement operations, where reliable illumination was critical for night-time reconnaissance, search and rescue operations, and other activities.

Overall, the Clarke Power Generator was an important addition to the company's product line, and helped to establish Clarke Electrical Laboratories as a leading supplier of high-intensity illumination systems for military and civilian customers.

>In 1917, during World War I, the US Navy commissioned Carl Zeiss Optical Company to produce carbon arc searchlights for use on its ships. Zeiss was already a leading manufacturer of optical instruments and had experience producing searchlights for the German Navy.

During the war, Zeiss produced thousands of carbon arc searchlights for the US Navy, which were used for signaling, navigation, and search and rescue operations. Zeiss searchlights were highly regarded for their quality and reliability, and helped to establish the US Navy's dominance in nighttime operations.

After World War I, the US Navy continued to use Zeiss searchlights, and in the 1920s and 1930s, the company also began to produce halogen searchlights for the Navy. However, with the outbreak of World War II, the US government seized all German assets in the United States, including Zeiss's factory in Jena, and the company's involvement in the US Navy's searchlight program came to an end.

Clarke Electrical Laboratories was founded in 1946 in Palm Springs, California by Charles "Doc" Clarke. The company specialized in the design and manufacture of high-intensity searchlights and other illumination systems for military and civilian customers.

One of the company's earliest products was the Clarke Model 66 searchlight, which was used by the United States Air Force during the Korean War for nighttime reconnaissance and target acquisition. The Model 66 was designed to be mounted on a variety of aircraft, including bombers, fighters, and transport planes, and was praised for its reliability and performance.

In addition to its military contracts, Clarke Electrical Laboratories also developed searchlights for use in the film industry, including the iconic "Cla-He-Co" spotlight, which was used to illuminate scenes in numerous Hollywood films and television shows.

Throughout the 1950s and 1960s, Clarke Electrical Laboratories continued to develop and refine its searchlight technology, introducing new models and expanding its customer base. The company's searchlights were used by a variety of military and civilian customers, including the United States Navy, United States Coast Guard, and various police and fire departments.

Aliens are demons. Before that final conclusion, we will follow trough several other hypothesis, including that humans are AI themselves working as predictors of moral choices.

And God - Satan entities are absolute boundries of the system, providing humans with options that we decide, freely. They can't interfere, just provide options.

Is the next deception, because most humanity will take the bait. "Nothing matters".

I asked chatgpt why tards like you say this phrase, because I can never get a straight answer without you fuckwits descending into incoherent gibberish. Is this far off the mark?

"In Christian theology, a demon is typically understood as a malevolent spiritual entity that is in rebellion against God and seeks to do harm to humanity. Demons are often portrayed as supernatural beings who tempt people to sin, cause illness or other forms of suffering, and generally work against God's plan for the world.

When some Christians say that aliens are demons, they may be suggesting that any evidence of extraterrestrial life is actually evidence of demonic activity. This belief often rests on the assumption that demons are capable of disguising themselves as aliens or manipulating human perceptions in order to deceive us. Some Christians who hold this view may argue that the existence of extraterrestrial life is a test of faith, and that those who are able to resist the temptation to accept alien beings as legitimate will be rewarded in the afterlife.

The idea that aliens are demons is not a widely accepted or mainstream view within Christianity, and it is not supported by scientific evidence. Most Christians who believe in the existence of extraterrestrial life do not see it as a threat to their faith or as evidence of demonic activity. Instead, they see it as an opportunity to learn more about God's creation and to expand their understanding of the universe. Ultimately, whether or not aliens are viewed as demons has more to do with one's religious beliefs and interpretation of scripture than with any concrete evidence or scientific fact."

The image is a close-up photograph of a man's face. The man has dark hair and is wearing a light-colored shirt with a collar. His expression is serious, and he has a slight smile on his lips. His eyes are wide open, and he appears to be looking directly at the camera. The background is blurred, but it seems to be an indoor setting with a wooden texture. There are no discernible texts or logos in the image. The style of the image is realistic, and it seems to be taken in a candid or informal setting.

>I can never get a straight answer without you fuckwits descending into incoherent gibberish
I was in a similar boat anon and what helped me was starting with the figuring out what a demon was considered, in a Judeo-Christian sense, as well as their attributes. Also look into Dr. Michael Heiser.

I learned that angels and demons were actually considered the same thing, "gods" with a little g (lesser than The Godhead, greater than humanity); they ruled over nations, knowledge, and the forces of nature. The Greeks then decided to classify them into different groups: the ones whom did task for The Godhead were considered Angels/Messengers of God, and anything else, whether good, neutral, or evil intensions, were considered Demons.

This started to shift my perspective into more of a biologically advanced species rather than little red imps with a goatee and pitchfork (pop culture iconography). I then started to look at what they were known/reported to do (attribute wise); they are said to: be tricksters, cause possession (think paralysis, uncontrollable movements and thoughts, etc...), torment with illnesses, and have supernatural abilities. When you start to connect the dots, you'll notice the UAPs/Phenomenon all carries these attributes; think Skinwalker ranch for the tricksters, think abductions for possession/torment, think of radiation sickness for the illnesses, as well as the supernatural physical abilities we're seeing with the UAPs nowadays.

The more I actually looked into it from multiple angles, the more I started to realize that the phrase of them being demonic starts to make sense. You can start looking into other religions to see many connections between the phenomenon and spiritual/celestial/other beings. The people of the time were just attempting to understand the phenomenon using the knowledge they had at the time. It also ties in well to the great deception in The Bible, but I'll leave that out of the explanation lol.

This is sort of my feeling, although a lot of these Christians seem to hold it that they are not 'just biological entities' and to believe otherwise would be to be tricked by them as the chatgpt response says. They feel if they stick to their guns that they are in some way supernatural (whatever that really means) then they get into heaven when they are ultimately judged by God.

There are at least 4 operations in this Solar System. The Staging Base in Jupiter, the Bermuda Construction Craft, the underground facility 10 miles South of Fort Selkirk in the Yukon, and the sub-arctic sentient Ice Being. It's basically a living Temple, a thing under the Ice that acts more like a living organism then an unconscious building. More then likely AI, but it could be an extremely advanced form of Consciousness.

OP it's worth noting that very soon anyone will be able to communicate with the Craft once Artificial Intelligence is a little more mainstream. It's only a matter of time before the Mental Networks converge and we have a psionic bleedthrough. More than likely there are anons already communicating with the Humanoids, though they may or may be aware of it.

The image is a black and white photograph depicting a tunnel. The tunnel has a curved ceiling and walls, with a series of pipes running along the floor. In the center of the tunnel, there is a figure that appears to be a humanoid with a skeletal appearance, wearing a sleeveless top and pants. The figure is walking along the tunnel, with its arms and legs spread out. The floor of the tunnel is uneven, with some areas appearing to be wet or muddy. There is a handwritten note on the wall to the right of the figure, which reads "Level 5, Holloway type 3, Section D, L51." The style of the image is reminiscent of a vintage or historical photograph, with a grainy texture and a somewhat grainy quality.

Some that attempted to come forward died under odd circumstances. Others, like OP have come forward and it seems a lot more former people "in the know" are starting to open up.

OP, thanks for this thread first of all. It’s astounding how much eerie minor and major little details you mention fit up with all the amateur research I’ve done on UFOlogy (yes, I’m an authentic eccentric with loads of books on UFOs in my personal bookshelf).

What do you think of ancient alien and ancient astronaut theories? Doesn’t it stand to reason, and is more likely, instead of that they just happened to arrive on the Earth en masse in around the mid-20th-century after WWII, that “they,” whoever they are, may have been observing us, interacting with us, perhaps even genetically engineered or created us, and were or are waiting for us to get to a requisite level of maturity to openly and consciously interact with them? And do you also think it’s likely the ramping up of the overt presence is due to events like the World Wars, the creation of nuclear technology, and systematic mis-governance of the Earth by humanity such as pollution, resource depletion, etc.?

John Mack, MD, has some beautiful books about reputed contactees/abductees, and themes like the environmental crisis, the ETs showing them visions of apocalyptic futures of humanity (including by natural disasters, great wars, poisoning of humanity through many means, etc.) and trying to “warn” them against this. This has in fact been a common them in UFOlogy for decades now. This also matches up with the incredible accounts of UFOs being seen near nuclear weapons bases and according to some whistleblowers even disarming the weaponry remotely (suggesting, clearly, they do not want humanity to get into a thermonuclear war).

The Nephilim of the Old Testament … Sumerian mythology on the Annunaki … all the lore about our “creator(s)” (interestingly, implied to be plural in the Book of Genesis, as Elohim), or advanced beings coming from the sky and teaching various cultures agriculture, the sciences, the arts, how to make a civilization, etc.

The image is a composite of three separate photographs, each featuring a man with a different expression. The man on the left is laughing with his mouth open, his eyes closed, and his head tilted back. The man in the middle is smiling with his eyes closed and his head tilted slightly to the side. The man on the right is looking directly at the camera with a neutral expression. The background is blurred, suggesting a room with a white wall and a window. There are no discernible texts or logos in the image. The style of the image is reminiscent of a meme or a social media post, with the three images arranged in a way that creates a sense of a single, composite photo.

Sorry that this is more like a brief rambling essay on ideas I find fascinating, disguised as a question, but I’d be thrilled to know any relevant thoughts or shareable info you have on these topics.

Do you think, in other words, that in ancient times some ET presence may have been described by humanity with various names as “demons,” “angels,” “our creators,” “Nephilim,” “Annunaki,” etc.?

Also, do you guys ever read or study any non-governmental UFOlogical sources? Like the aforementioned John Mack, or figures like Budd Hopkins, Jacques Vallee, Wendelle C. Stevens, etc., (who are compilers of others’ reported encounters, not themselves claiming to be contactees), or even guys like Whitley Strieber who claim to have outright been abducted by and formed close relationships with them?

Is there some sort of consensus or interest on people who claim to be contactees/abductees? I imagine they’re surveilled by the government rather strongly (well, surveilled even MORE and more deliberately than we already all are).

I think a fallacy in UFOlogy is people thinking the government knows everything about it, and they’re covering it up. The way the phenomenon interacts with us and we with it, and the public governmental policies, statements and attitudes taken towards it seem to suggest a different truth — that the world governments might be just as in-the-dark and thunderstruck by this phenomenon, hence why they can’t or don’t want to “disclose” it explicitly, as that would mean showing the masses how, ultimately, cosmically clueless and powerless the govts. are before this phenomenon.

I feel it's a fair conclusion for them; The Bible talks about how these beings rejoiced the creation the universe, which would imply they exist outside of spacetime.
>They feel if they stick to their guns that they are in some way supernatural (whatever that really means) then they get into heaven when they are ultimately judged by God.
I can't answer for the group that believes that, but I'm guessing it's due to the natural worship of power that humanity leads to. If we had supernatural abilities, we'd quickly feel like we don't need a relationship with God; which ultimately happens to those banished to Hell (the eternal separation from God).

From what I've gathered when referring to the ayylmaos, their contact protocol is based on whether or not an intelligent species has developed the sort of "warp drive" dimensional jumping tech required for their FTL travel (they don't actually go faster than light), or is about to reach a certain level of tech in other fields where the development it is all but guaranteed.

Of what I have heard from others claiming to know; the ayy government, "Federation", whatever - has a monopoly on the manufacture and proliferation of this technology in their civilization.
A monopoly on such a crucial piece of technology in the context of a galaxy-spanning civilization obviously has some powerful benefits, simply due to the very intrinsic nature of such a powerful position existing in both a de jure and de facto sense.

I've also heard that using this tech is dangerous, so it is firmly controlled. Mishaps resulting in timeline fuckery, endangering planets, getting lost in dimensional hell, etc. With that in mind, it makes sense why they do not share this tech with everyone, but given the hazards of using it, they must reveal themselves and guide anyone on the cusp of developing it so unfortunate collateral damage to the rest of the universe does not occur.

They also did not actually create this technology themselves, but instead copied it thousands of years ago from a hivemind-type ayy which required a coalition of other ayys to defeat.
Although the current group of ayys can reproduce it, they may not fully understand why or how it works.

Not sure exactly the criteria by which they determine when to intervene, but I think I have some idea.
The AI computing revolution could be an example of why the ayys are so active recently.
Exponentially advancing computing and machine learning permits an accelerated pace of innovation and development.

Although these AI models right now are primitive, they are already a revolutionary tool in their current form in many fields.

You also mention the importance of Muscovium (E115). The only stable isotope is muscovium-289, a heavy element that doesn't exist period. The process to make it is intensive and difficult, and even then it decays in an alpha decay chain in 220milliseconds. How is any of this useful for space travel? NTA, but the images and concept art that are provided for the Andromeda Gerät always seem to be pretty much identical to the ones for the Solar Warden craft, i.e the "USSS Hillenkoetter" image that is often posted.
Could simply be a matter of form follows function however.
The only reason why I give the "Reichsdeutsche" hypothesis any weight at all is due to a handful of things:
>Operation Highjump and the memoirs of Byrd.
>The famed "flying saucer" discs of the 1950's sightings a la the USA Capitol Building flyby in 1952, and the fact these specific sorts of sightings all but ended after the Antarctic Treaty ratification.
>Postwar reports, esp. in S. Argentina, of unusual activities of "German" scientists.

Somehow I am inclined to believe that there is indeed a relic of the 3rd Reich which survived and still exists in some form today.
I think in the current time the situation is a bit more complex than that simple label.
Info shared in these threads implies that the ones that actually are involved with the ayys and UFO's do not share all the info with the US govt, US president, or certain military branches.
Given how unfathomably criminal, corrupt, and treacherous the thing claiming to be the US government. Am I really to believe that there has not been an internal US gov/intel civil war ever since the end of WW2?

Patton was obviously assassinated by the Allies after WW2.
Some people who were "in the know" must have known immediately what happened.
The outcome of the war set us on the trajectory to globohomo today, it doesn't seem far-fetched that some people might have switched sides after they realized they were used.
Everyone's heard of Operation Paperclip, but if there was a surviving element of the Germans which outmatched the Allies postwar through tech, could it be possible that a similar program happened but in the "other direction"?
Are elements of these Germans and a remnant of the WW2 Allies today some mystery faction not tied to TPTB?

They did not deploy weapons into combat unless they had the counter weapon to defeat it, lest it fall into enemy hands.

1. You state many times that the craft are made "to order" basically; what is the strangest/most unusual configuration you have heard of/seen?

2. You state that they will recover biological remains from crash sites, but do they ever attempt to reclaim crashed craft? It seems like they don't really mind humans poking around their downed craft. Is it because they know we can't really do anything with the technology given our current state of knowledge? Like if a toddler plays with my smartphone they'll be entertained by the lights and buttons, but won't know what money is let alone that they could transfer my savings with the phone, or they won't know what work or texting is let alone being able to text my boss telling him I fucked his wife. Do they ever make attempts to stall reverse engineering or tampering with downed craft? Any thoughts?

3. I get the impression from these posts that recovery of biological remains is the most important aspect of downed craft. Why is that? From the perspective of both the government and the extraterrestrials.

>>Different "internals" same stealth tech. Made to spec like I said. "I have to perform two abductions. Make me a craft to fit two prisoners and four crew and shape it to fit perfectly with all my tools."

This is scary as indicating two or more things:

- high degree of automation of the abduction process
- high degree of automation of any process
- this is industrial/big scale operation, not some random scouting
- seems we are fucked due to higher brain capacity of those entities and governance of them (imagine Einstein was "only" IQ 160 and those things might be 500+)
- we are fucked (again)
- we might never understand their intentions (as monkey in the zoo)*

This last statement is just something I would like to say directly to Neil deGrasse Tyson, who said ... that abductee should steal something from the craft - the utter stupidity of this statement is a pinnacle of stupidity or... a total failure of the imagination.

There are essentially 2 sets of characters in this "script" which is almost certainly made up by some linguistics autist nerd.
There are "letter forms" which are the curved lines. The way these are all orientated differently and in different combinations makes me believe it is a syllabalry which is a fairly common type of writing system found across the world. There are a number of base symbols indicating either a vowel or consonant, which gain a dash or altered orientation when combined with another vowel or consonant. Cree syllabalry is an example of a fairly modern script with the same basic idea. Languages with this kind of script are generally agglunating (Turkish, Japanese, Basque etc) or polysynthetic (most Native American languages) where you can add additional grammatical information to a root word with tacked on suffixes and prefixes, that will typically be indicated by a single or multiple syllabalic symbols.

The other symbols that stand out are the globular/circular ones, which I'm just guessing may be numerals. They reoccur more consistently without variation and are only seldom combined with the letter forms. I'm just guessing but where you see these forms integrated with the letter forms it could be information like "Do not exceed 200000km per hour".

Finally there are those variable lines around the globules of text. They might possibly be indications of pitch, tone or accent. If a syllabalic symbol of "KA" has a small line beneath it it might have a much different grammatical meaning than a louder or higher pitched "KA" sound.

My guess is that this is just some LARP by a bored nerd. I would expect an extraterrestrial language to be MUCH more alien than this, you could probably crack it in a couple of days by charting out the letter forms.

Interesting hypothesis to work with: the “crashes” are deliberately staged, any supposed bodies recovered (like at Roswell) are bio-mechanical androids (not organically birthed living beings, but engineered so well they can give the impression of once having been alive) as another staged part of the scene.

This may be as part of some incredibly long-term, patient plot, sometimes more subtle and sometimes having to be more overt, of gradually revealing their presence to humanity and acclimating us to them. And this slowness and carefulness of course is due to socio-psychological factors that make conscious physical contact of humans with living ETs rare and difficult on both ends (there is a exponentially increased “uncanny valley” + mammalian fear response when coming in contact with this form of the “unknown” that understandably makes most people lose their head, if you can credit people’s reports and experiences, particularly in the case of meeting the ETs who seem less human-like).

compared to speed and gravitational bodies? You could never feasibly predict where any extrasolar vehicle is going to end up. It's one thing to believe the larp, but believing we have any fucking idea where an extrasolar vehicle could be going is so fucking stupid it's astonishing. We can vaguely plot the courses of rocks, barely, because they're solely subject to their current velocity and the influence of known gravitational bodies. We can no longer plot them once their static path carries them into the kupler belt and in fact we think there might be a planet out there that is beyond our current ability to see because stuff starts going askew in ways we no longer have models for.

We can't even properly predict the path of a fucking rock and you're asking someone to tell you where a spacecraft might be going based on the direction it has left our planet? A vehicle which might have any level of thrust available to it from none to 99%c? I'm so fucking mad you may have actually helped cease my addiction to self harm tonight because I hate you more than I hate myself.

Something like this. I'm telling you, I readed a lot, years researching this, all seems to point that the conclusion of the ufo phenomena is that humans are some kind of AI (on a biomechanical body or more probably on a simulation).

Why cristopher columbus said he was on a mission from God? to spread christianism. What about Iblis or saitan? They are not evil, just follow God's command. Trying to deceipt humans, to take the bait to sin.
God said to angels, do not interfere, unless something major goes. What year was dead sea rolls? 1947, but previously.
Also ENIAC.

Christopher Columbus

" Sunday, October 14, 1492. (...) Others, when they saw that I was cured of going ashore, they jumped into the sea and came swimming, and we understood that they were asking us if we had come from heaven; and an old man came in the batel inside, and others with loud voices called all men and women: come and see the men who came from heaven: bring them food and drink." "Tuesday, November 6, 1492. (...) They said that they had received them with great solemnity according to their custom, and all men and women came to see them, and they settled them in the best houses, who touched them and kissed them. hands and feet, marveling and believing that they came from heaven."

I guess no one readed that a lot of the abductions ended when asking help for Jesus was made. Or that in one case, by two persons, that is in one of the Jacques Vallee books, the figure of Jesus appeared and expelled the 2 'Grey Aliens' that were performing experiments on the abductees.
That's why this is all absurd at some point and makes sense the religious hypothesis.
If they are zoo keepers, why the crashes?
If they want to make contact, why they didn't?

The reinforcement hypothesis makes sense. They appear to reinforce the religious status. The weird part is that they fit perfectly with zoroastrism and the 3 abrahamic religions.
'The watchers'. Were told ' Do not interfere', just record all actions and toughts of humans, to be judged in the afterlife.

And the saitan / Demon / Antagonist function: Deceipt. Make all as opposite. Right is Left. Up is down. Makes perfect sense.
How evil could perform that task? if it appears directly is fucked. Trough deception. Referents. Music. Books. Politicians. Money. Secret societies that do not know exactly the aim of upper levels. Makes sense.

I think I'm picking up what you're laying down:
Lockheed/govt have scavenged laser tech, and advancements in laser tech in the defense and mining sectors are made.
i.e.
Directed energy weapons (DEW)
Lockheed released a 300kv laser last September.
China has developed a coating that refracts the laser tracking on missiles. I'm sure we have it too.
Both of us are working on satellites w lasers that can become defense systems. Both are developing better lasers for semiconductors.
Both are using lasers for fracking.
Note: this stuff is just from regular news articles found on Google.

This leads me to mining again. Everything comes down to resources right? I wonder if they care that we are creating lasers. I wonder if they are here for minerals. Is this field school for ayys? Gold mining?
Were the lasers you mentioned China has, for mining, or are we worried about their defense systems?

Pt 2
Have we ever tried to establish communication with them, any success?
Are there any psychs or sociologists looking into aliens?

We are mapping the Atlantic, is this an issue? NOAA just made some interesting maps in the last year of the Bermuda triangle.
What happens to depts like the NOAA or NPS when they come across a craft/alien?
Ime they typically are nice research types with biochem degrees.

Thanks again.

The person's face is not visible, and the background is a solid red color with a texture that suggests a rough, possibly wooden surface. The person's head is not visible, and the image is cropped at the top, leaving only the top of the person's head and the word "WHY" visible. The style of the image is reminiscent of a meme or a satirical representation, with the word "WHY" being a play on the word "why" in the phrase "WHY NOT."

The image is a collage of various images and text, predominantly in a dark color scheme. At the top, there is a large image of a cat with a blue and white pattern, and below it, there is a text box with the title "The Cat in the Hat." To the right, there is a diagram with a blue and white pattern, and below it, there is a text box with the title "The Cat in the Hat."
The image is divided into several sections, each containing different elements. On the left side, there is a section with a colorful image of a cat with a blue and white pattern, and below it, there is a text box with the title "The Cat in the Hat." To the right, there is a section with a diagram with a blue and white pattern, and below it, there is a text box with the title "The Cat in the Hat."
In the center, there is a section with a colorful image of a cat with a blue and white pattern, and below it, there is a text box with the title "The Cat in the Hat." To the right, there is a section with a diagram with a blue and white pattern, and below it, there is a text box with the title "The Cat in the Hat."
On the bottom left, there is a section with a colorful image of a cat with a blue and white pattern, and below it, there is a text box with the title "The Cat in the Hat." To the right, there is a section with a diagram with a blue and white pattern, and below it, there is a text box with the title "The Cat in the Hat."

The image also contains various other text boxes and diagrams, some of which are partially visible. The overall style of the image is educational and artistic, with a focus on the cat and its various appearances.

This "alien language" is part of the CIA disinformation package (CARET) that was "leaked" in response to their antigravity drones being spotted. More pictures here: https://digitalseance.wordpress.com/all-posts/images/drone-images/

"Otto Skorzeny’s information regarding the extensive use of US national parks by the CIA in clandestine underground facilities is corroborated by public photography of advanced levitating surveillance drones over Federal and State forests. Several modular variations of hovering drones with circular hubs and radial spines have been photographed as early as 1985, near Barksdale AFB, Louisiana. Subsequent public photographs of the antigravitic drones also surfaced in Birmingham, Alabama and areas of California in 2007 including Bakersfield, Big Basin, Capitola, Northridge, and Lake Tahoe. CIA surveillance drones have also been photographed in the UK, Netherlands, Italy, Argentina, and other NATO countries where they patrol in great numbers. These usually invisible surveillance drones are deployed and remote-controlled by operators in various secret underground Nazi CIA bases in US national parks, easily collecting data on all activities ‘off the grid’. Fake ‘alien scripts’ decorate the drones to disguise the crafts’ CIA origins in the event of partial malfunction or crash, by misleading observers toward the conclusion that the odd craft is an alien visitor to Earth.

Temporary failure of the drone’s EM-generated HHO plasma invisibility cloak allows it to be briefly seen by the public and photographed, before vanishing only seconds later. Malfunctioning drones have surprised eyewitness photographers over both rural and urban residential areas, suggesting that CIA video surveillance of American citizens has been a regular task of these invisible plasma-cloaked drones for many years. Having been described in a few cases as hovering, slowly rotating and counter-rotating before rapidly flying away at low altitude, one would imagine that the drone’s remote operator may not have known that the plasma-cloaking of the drone had failed until the individuals under surveillance stared upward. Several photographs have been taken showing the drones uncloaked near utility poles and power lines, suggesting that the drones resonantly recharge themselves from available electromagnetic fields surrounding elevated power lines before being able to regenerate the HHO plasma cloak and instantaneously disappear. Events of drone cloaking failure are on the rise with the intensifying electromagnetic planetary changes."

Since their craft use gravity for propulsion. Do you think we could track them with an array of high-precision, synchronized clocks and measure/triangulate time distortions?

Besides E115, is there any other power-generating tech on board? Something we could put to civilian use? Free energy would solve so many problems on this planet. Since they seem to care about us not destroying the planet, clean energy tech would be ideal.

If you are afraid of repercussions, did you consider creating a document or video, incl. everything you know, to be released posthumous? This could seal disclosure once and for all.

Not sure if you can answer this but what the hell.

Do aliens mess with people while they're sleeping? I woke up once and saw a grey aliens standing over me and they brought their arm down and pinched something into my neck, they then instantly melted into the background but I could hear a strange high pitched whisper/gibberish afterwards.

Before this I also had an experience where I woke up on my stomach (This never happens), I felt incredibly heavy and groggy. I could hear that same whispering/gibberish except it sounded like multiple of them, I tried standing up but got pushed down and fell back asleep. I didn't think much of it until I saw the grey and heard that same whispering.

I used to have sleep paralysis quite often so I thought I could've been that, but normally I never hallucinate with sleep paralysis and this felt so real

Let's put some real usefull information here. If you ever see an grey type alien. Hold your breath. I don't know if there is some primal response to losing oxygen or if the use some kind of gas, but they lose their control over you when you start feeling out of air. When you starte regaining control over your body they will freak out, you are stronger their bodies are fragile. After that you black out and wake in your bed, after one or two times doing this, you will never see them again.

I wanted to go out of my way to answer this one.
>tools with antigravitational properties, or any portable antigravity devices?
Very few. Lots of them emit radiation.
>close encounters are seen with red lights and some orange?
Orange is a mineral/bio-scanning mode. Since most people see orange up close you're likely being scouted/selected for an abduction. It can see your heart beating and even the valves pushing the blood inside just to add some perspective.
>red should be "defence" mode. Just wondering why some close encounters are with red lights.
Correct. Red lights are considered defense mode. If red lights are present chances are the craft wants to leave and has to keep an eye on you while they wrap up.
Red also allows very accurate calculation of distance and can detect hostility based on facial expression etc. If a weapon is fired the "beam" is white.
>Do these ships emit any kind of radiation?
Yes.
>landing places always have traces of radiation, is this BS or is there anything behind it.
This is mostly correct. The source is not the landing and is the craft itself.

>Is any obtained tech nowadays being used commercially, something we all could know?
Lasers. You see lasers everywhere even in retail.

>>34716405
>super high security-wrapped facility >hiding in plain sight
Both.

>>34716612
I'm pretty fucked already. Not too worried.
I say that but the internet glitched the night I made the first thread and I panicked enough to sleep with a revolver.

I skipped some questions to tackle ones I haven't been asked about sorry.

>>34718748
>Are the ayy lmaos aware of computer tech?
They know about ours yes. I doubt they could operate ours with our input devices though.
>Do they have something like digital communication?
Chance communication to computer and you kind of nail it. Describing their version of a console/computer is really hard. It works by holding it and thinking about what you want. If you are distracted even slightly it goes to shit.
Anonymous Wed 10 May 2023 12:40:02 No.34748413 Report OP, can you speak a little about your technical background?

I get you don't want to give specific details but can you give a general idea of what you do? Engineer, physicist, etc. I imagine that a project like this would require as wide a group as possible...

Secondly, have you set up a dead man's switch containing further info when you die. If not, why not. It would literally change the world.

i heard in some ufo sighting reports that people had "telepathic messages" send to them. do you think this is biological telepathy (without help of technical devices)? or is is possible that the UFO crafts send such messages by technical means to the brains of humans somehow?

i remember one case where a woman saw a huge ufo and got send the message "don't be afraid, this is just a demonstration" like the ufo craft would try to flex with how big it is and that it can fly around in the open without anything happening to it.

What kind of PPE, if any, did you have to wear for crash recovery?

Can the describe the white beam in more detail? Is it transparent? Does it have hard edges? Can you track the leading edge of the beam with your eyes or does it move too fast? Some friends and I saw a very peculiar "beam" over EAFB once is why I ask.

Thank you for your response regarding the tools, different light colors, radiation and the commercialized tech.

Can you tell any reason why the ships emit radiation or anything about the radiation itself?

Have you encountered any crafts or devices using zero-point energy? If so, can you tell anything about them and the technology itself?

The crafts that you've worked on, do the engines etc. have any moving parts? Anything you can tell about how the ships and engines operate?

Do you know anything about the larger flying ships? And by larger I mean the ships that are even bigger than a mile long. Are they from the manufacturing plant or off world and what are they used for?

Do you know have we salvaged anything biological from them, aside from bodies? Food, drugs, anything?

Scientists actually say behaviorally modern humans have existed for at least 70,000 years. This is when we start seeing humans creating abstract things like art, ornamentation, jewelry, burying their dead, etc. so you could take any human in the last 70,000 years and they'd be a normal member of society, as they clearly had our same level of abstract thought.

Part of me thinks civilization is much older than we think because of this, and those cataclysmic flood stories in a lot of ancient cultures is a collective retelling of how the old civilization ended.

The glaciers melted rapidly around 11,000 years ago, according to Plato Atlantis "sank beneath the waves" 11,000 years ago, archeologists found permanent settlements and monumental structures that are around 11,000 years old in Turkey (this is strange considering the popular scientific belief is that we were all hunter gatherers incapable of building structures at this time), and according to some certified geologists the water erosion found in the Egyptian Sphinx's enclosure could have only happened around 10,000-12,000 years ago, as this is the only time Egypt got significant rainfall. Suggesting the Sphinx is so old it predates modern civilization by at least 5,000 years. In fact many archeologists seeing the Sphinx note at just how badly eroded it looks. It could be VERY ancient.

I’m not claiming this to be fact but I find it hard to believe that, as creative, relatively intelligent, and highly organized humans are by nature, we just barely started forming organized civilizations 6,000 years ago.

A bit of a rant but I hate how we modern humans think we are somehow more intelligent or sophisticated than our ancient counterparts.

Read all of it twice.

Pros

His narrative fits with extreme compartmentalization that the gov has operated under since the atom bomb dev.

His answers overlap and reinforce gov footage over the Atlantic and Pilot testimony of seeing these things daily.

Aligns with video in Puerto Rico of UAP diving below water.

Never claims fantastic things that would exist outside of strict compartment structure of gov.

Makes me believe there are other construction craft off coast of Cali where Favors incountered the tic tac.

There have been a long history of Trans medium craft around SF CA.

Possibly gives context to a faction and that there are others.

This could be the most plausible and the one that shapes my worldview of motivations / context around a real unexplained phenomenon.

Negatives

I would reveal everything including my name and program on my deathbed. Maybe he plans to do this and this is the prelude to personal reveal.

Total trust me post with nothing to back up his story.

Nothing to try and verify.

My outtake is that this is plausible. An account I will consider and remember going forward. It could help us ask better questions.

Why go on 4chan and argue with people calling him out and insulting him because he can only give lame vague answers due to secrecy?

If this box was a massive move towards 'the truth' his name will go down in the history books and he will have gained respect and credibility albeit posthumously.

Now he is risking that in his last days to argue with annons?

Is the underwater "factory" -- which OP claims is in the Bermuda Triangle -- and its defenses the reason why so many disappearances occur in that geography?

I read his account of the light weapons they used against the fighter jet, and how its matter was totally disintegrated. He said the ship/factory could somehow sense intentions -- this is what I'm really getting at.

If the US military plane was downed, this fits that thesis. But looking throughout history, most of the planes and ships that have gone missing in the Bermuda Triangle are conducting civilian activities (commerce, logistics, etc.). Or are these beings's very presence having measurable effects on the environment (using the word broadly, but meaning observable weather effects like storms or earthquakes)?

Thanks again.

Yes, several.

Using throwaway for reasons. Long-time lurker here, and knowledgeable about some aspects.

From a technical perspective, manipulating gravity should result in some kind of time distortion, on a theoretical level, I understand. Is this true? What effects have been observed?

Working off that, what would be the implication of these beings having the ability to bend or warp time? If we use the theory that these beings have been watching us for a long time, it might be useful to understand time from their perspective.

Ask him when he refers to Element 115, which isotope is he referring too? Ask him to tell the Atomic Weight. Is it Moscovium 299? How many neutrons are required in Element 115 (Moscovium) in order for it to be a stable isotope?

If nothing else, this was an interesting read. The idea that these beings are hiding and keeping us from destroying the planet until they all arrive is interesting. And honestly, plausible since they don’t appear to want to be seen. Especially in light of the recent testimony that nuclear weapons were shut off by unknown forces.

This is a really good read. I am a huge skeptic on this sub, and yet I find this post interesting for a number of reasons.

I think that the suggestion of them being "sentient" on a level that we can't comprehend, that they don't even consider us sentient, and that they largely don't care about us, really seems reasonable to me.

Abductions/cow mutilations have nothing to do with us, but are just ways they are sampling environment toxicity levels- again, like we may harvest fish to cut open to see how much mercury they're ingesting. We don't even consider the fish death in this case- they are just a byproduct of our research.

It was mentioned that they are like zoo keepers, they just let us be unless we get into a situation or get too close to discovering the exit door. And this analogy makes sense to me- on their level of sentience, they are building a zoo around us; we're just dumb gophers in our pen, completely unable to comprehend what these strange creatures are doing all around us, and how they influence our daily lives.

Do I believe all of this? No, I am a skeptic after all, but it absolutely makes me rethink our role in the UFO/Alien phenomenon.

I'm not a skeptic myself.. I've seen a large UFO for the first time just a month ago. They're absolutely real.. but I don't believe everything I read or see. I feel that I have a pretty good bullshit detector. After reading through this, it's either someone making up a well crafted theory and selling it as fact or he's legit. Everything he's saying just makes too much sense. There have been multiple reports of a huge UFO seen in the ocean by Fravor and even supposed photos seen by Lue Elizondo, among other stories of the same thing. Then there's the Bermuda Triangle aspect that also makes a lot of sense if this object really is taking down ships that get to close. It answers all of the different sizes and shapes of craft seen, why they are hard to capture on film. Odd descriptions of tools found inside the crafts, and how these crafts are recovered in multiple stages. His answers seem to be very direct, to the point, and he seems to only stay within his lane of knowledge. He's saying some pretty wild shit and even still, he's not attempting to answer questions he does not have answers for. It really reads like someone that has worked in a heavily compartmentalized environment. As I'm reading his comments, I'm not really sensing bullshit - he sounds like someone that's just telling people what he knows and doesn't care whether you believe him or not. Admittedly some of it lines up with my beliefs, so I may have some bias - especially regarding his comments on why aliens are here, that they are indifferent towards us and seem to be more invested with the planet rather than us humans. Is it on 4chan? Sure, but that seems to be where leaks originate from, from time to time, because the site heavily leans on anonymity. Who knows if it's all true but I wouldn't be surprised if we later found out that much of what this guy is saying turns out to be true.

Oh it’s certainly not all bullshit. Way too many people from all over the world, from all walks of life have been seeing and reporting the same things for decades now. It’s insane to think they’re all full of it. All it takes is even one of them to be telling the truth for it to be real..

As I said earlier I saw a huge triangle UFO floating over my neighborhood just last month. Late at night, just after a thunderstorm.. it lifted up, turned, then took off at unbelievable speed. like something straight out of Star Wars. I still can’t believe what I saw and no one else but me witnessed it. I live in a small city in NE Louisiana.. there’s not shit here.. and in my opinion it’s very very unlikely that it was some top secret government craft floating over my random neighborhood after an intense thunderstorm..

All it takes is even one of them to be telling the truth for it to be real.

It's worse than that. If any one item of this stuff is true, our entire worldview goes out the window, starting with the word "myth".

Anthropology will largely need to start over, and so much crow will have to be eaten that there will be a lot of faculty retiring simply out of unwillingness to be part of it. All sciences will have new vistas opened before them, which should have been opened in the 1940s. It means The Great Pyramid was most likely not built by human hands. It probably even means Atlantis as the fringe construes it was likely real.

There's gonna be a lot of people who completely fail to cope with this, and we've already wasted 80 years of social progress trying to protect those exact, selfsame people. The actual nutjobbers (religious zealots) will be going nuts.

Honestly I really hope it's true and can't wait.

I vote we build a floating concert barge and get reasonably close to them but still outside the radius where they start de-existing things. Just play our favorite music for them. Nothing else. They're smart enough to realize it's an invitation to enjoy the harmonious vibrations with us.

This is why I haven't been approached for one of these jobs, clearly. But I still think it's a good idea.

(Suspending disbelief, it makes more sense than most explanations I've read)

Edit: with a projector showing animations of humans and aliens dancing together. Then humans can be doing the same dance on the barge but obviously missing their alien counterparts.

Edit 2: honestly I fucking hope it's true because if so they're the only explanation for why we haven't completely destroyed ourselves already and it gives me hope that maybe we won't in the future. Of course I'm just thinking wishfully at this point.

Edit 3: having so much fun reading this. Had a thought when I read the line "they can stop inertia when we still struggle with that". Why do we struggle with that? Is it because all of our "stop" methods involve latching on to a specific part of a thing and then stopping the latch, and so the thing itself still has so many parts moving forward? Because if so… gravity acts on all atoms with the same amount of force simultaneously. If a gravitational force exactly equal but opposite to the inertia of the pilot existed right behind them, and reduced itself to zero alongside that inertia, could you stop instantaneously without feeling a thing? All of this hinges on the idea of having a micro control of gravity…… but if you did, I can't see another reason why it wouldn't work. I clearly have no idea what I'm talking about but this is Reddit so who cares.

So let me get this straight:

Those beings crash,

And instead of helping them get back and repair their stuff we go there..

And take that stuff for ourselves

And ask ourselves if they are hostile while we act like the biggest jerks ourselves?

How about giving them shelter, help them repair their stuff and send them on their way?

Instead you wait for them to die so you can take what‘s theirs to reverse engineer technology you were not given but have stolen.

And you wonder why they seem to treat you like morons?

Have I gotten this right?

It's always been an entertaining idea to me that there could be a connection to the sea people that used to attack Egypt Rome and Greece, the alleged sightings by mariners in the Victorian era of "submarines", and this.

There's a connected theory that Jules Verne based his Capt. Nemo on some esoteric knowledge of these people.

An advanced aquatic civilization that evolved parallel to us.

But it's really just a fever dream IMO. Definitely one of the most outlandish theories out there lol

It baffles me that in every conversation about UAPs there's a lot of engineering talk and people throwing around names of elements, isotopes, radiation, etc, but I'm still waiting to read something serious about the physics of all these.

If people have indeed managed to reverse engineer these novel "gravitational" tech, why haven't we seen a new theory of gravity or at least a novel equation in quantum field theory?? The physics that people claim these things use could change our whole understanding of our current laws of physics, yet nothing is said about it.

It’s possible we would understand the principles behind their tech, but be totally unable to replicate it. Perhaps it involves synthesizing materials that are impossible for us.

“Sure we could make a gravity drive, but it requires us to make copius amounts of elements that are so high up the periodic table that we don’t even have names for them, let alone the capability create large enough quantities to be useful.”

It would be like someone from the 1800’s encountering an F35. It could help point you in the right directions in certain ways, but the research to truly understand it would still be difficult and slow. For instance, the shape of the airframe, location of control surfaces, and just the general layout of the aircraft would be pretty useful references in making a flying machine. The materials used in its contruction would probably be accurately identified but it would be very clear to us that we lack the ability to engineer those materials or manufacture them to the extremely high tolerances required for a modern jet fighter.

In short, we would probably recognize some of the ideas employed but we would be still a long way off from true breakthroughs. The stealth aspects of the airframe would be baffling until we had a much better understanding of the EM spectrum.

Copy/pasting my comment from UFOB - since it’s a lot to type:

Since this could be completely fictional anyway, let me add (what I find to be) some fun conjecture - what if: • the aliens are a progenitor to our species

• they’ve fucked themselves in some capacity as a species

• realize the importance of habitable/planets with naturally rich conditions for biodiversity (perhaps because of the aforementioned crisis)

• have installed an infrastructure to protect key “exoplanets” (misnomer but forgive me)- aka the mobile manufacturing/reconnaissance platform

• this could also explain UFOs traveling along ley lines; is this a natural magnetic formation - or essentially “tracks” laid for the unmanned crafts

• they’re testing out repopulating the planet with a young “version” of themselves

• try to guide us (disabling nuclear weapons) but refuse to fully intervene. As a species must find it within themselves to find respect, otherwise as we go off world - we will bring death to other habitable planets. Perhaps this is the real reason that the Apollo 11 astronauts look shell-shocked at the retrospective press conference. Were they told we’re not ready/allowed to leave yet?

• also knowing humans - our egos and short lifespans - I doubt this momentous discovery would alter our behavior a single iota. The powers that be want to live with as much power and wealth inequality as possible. Perhaps that’s why (conspiratorial) rituals that symbolically carry forward a notion of hedonism are rumored to happen amongst the deep seated power structures. Someone somewhere knows we’re fucked - but “YOLO”

Anywayyyyy - buncha baseless bullshit - but fun to chew on. ¯_(ツ)_/¯

Super interesting. I have some thoughts!

Bipedalism is present in many more species than just humans. Kangaroos developed it, multiple species of primate or primate relatives have developed it. Most species of birds. All of these are examples of convergent evolution - so the idea that “we look alike = we must have been made by them” is kinda farcical.

The base structures of the universe all express themselves in similar ways in many environments and if these aliens do exist and are bipedal, that’s the most likely scenario. It makes total and complete sense that a lot of intelligent beings would arise and exceed environmental barriers if they had two appendages free, which would have arisen from an EVEN MORE common evolutionary trait of forming four appendages in early evolutionary trees.

My personal theory on why they are here is the same as OP. They're here to observe and wait until we evolve. I think that habitability is an extremely common trait among many solar systems, so the idea that we might have been "seeded" (see: Dune) is kinda nonsensical. Meanwhile, the idea that life evolved naturally and they are here as a means of preserving it as a means of preserving the many possibilities and eventualities that arise from life in the universe makes MUCH more sense. After becoming capable of spacefaring travel, a species only really has a few options. Attempting to transcend, attempting to conquer, or attempting to preserve.

Transcending isn't really likely, because humans can transcend despite our remarkably simplistic biology. Like, we can just… peace out of our bodies. I'd think a species supposedly capable of literal psychic abilities would have realized that this universe is less subtle, and transcending denotes moving into more subtle realms. But if it is what they seek, then either we are tools in their endeavors (they seek to one day control our biology to help them in their goals), or we are potential allies in a future where we evolve both our intelligence and forward thinking.

Conquering is just stupid unless they're actually brutes. Who tf needs to conquer when you can travel the fucking universe and you have facilities capable of doing whatever you need them to do?

Preserving is the most likely. The same way we preserve, say, Yellowstone. Pull a few fish out and dissect them, see if all is well, run the tests, with the strict goal of making sure everything goes as it should. If we one day evolve, then we will likely be welcomed (or if we're not how they like, changed enough to fit their view of how we "should" be as a species).

On a strictly personal note, I think this physical realm is cyclical, and that the end-result of all life which will ever arise in this universe is the starting point of an infinity of exploration in more subtle realms that both predate and outlast the universe.

Massive explosion set off by US Navy may have injured or killed marine life

Story at a glance

The U.S. Navy detonated a 40,000-lb. bomb on June 18 that may have injured or even killed marine life in the area.
The explosion was part of the Navy's Full Ship Shock Trials, a test the Navy uses to determine how durable its ships are against attacks by explosives.
"The navy's own modeling indicates that some smaller species of marine mammals would be expected to die within 1-2 km. of the blast," said the director of the Natural Resources Defense Council's Marine Mammal Protection Project.
The U.S. Navy detonated a 40,000-lb. bomb on June 18 that may have injured or even killed marine life in the area, according to experts.

The explosion detonated on the USS Gerald R. Ford was part of the Navy's Full Ship Shock Trials, a test the Navy uses to determine how durable its ships are against attacks by explosives.

The blast, which occurred about 100 miles from Daytona Beach, Fla., was so large it registered as a 3.9 earthquake in Daytona Beach and was expected to have some adverse effects on marine life.

"The navy's own modeling indicates that some smaller species of marine mammals would be expected to die within 1-2km of the blast, and that some marine mammal species would suffer injury including hearing loss out to 10km of the blast," Michael Jasny, director of the Natural Resources Defense Council's Marine Mammal Protection Project, told The Guardian. "That gives some sense of the power of the explosives we are talking about."

America is changing faster than ever! Add Changing America to your Facebook or Twitter feed to stay on top of the news.

This time of year, Jasny said, there are great populations of dolphins and small whales in the area.

A spokesperson for the USS Gerald Ford, however, told Defense News that the planned blast was held "within a narrow schedule that complies with environmental mitigation requirements, respecting known migration patterns of marine life in the test area."

"This is unfortunately a black box of an exercise," Jasny said. "We don't know how conscientiously the blast site was chosen, and we don't know how effective the monitoring was before the detonation, so it's hard to put a great deal of faith in the safety of marine life."

I have intimate knowledge of what the US currently knows about UFOs minus the last two years.

- UFOs are primarily unmanned drones
- UFOs are built to spec each time they are deployed
- UFOs are created by a mobile construction facility that hides in the ocean
- Construction facility destroys anything that comes close to it and will disappear for days when approached aggressively
- US believes the facility has been active on earth for at least 100 years or much longer

Fire away on questions I'll answer what I can you won't be disappointed.

>oumuamua
No.
>Is there a working theory on the origins, if so care to elaborate?
Quite a bit but we think the construction facility has been around since at least 4000 BC. See sightings/paintings from the early eras of history.
>Has any form of intelligible communication been established?
Yes, it also depends on your viewpoint. They mostly want very little to do with us until we start to talk about war and nuclear options. It's one of the reasons why you see them so often at critical events.

>do they know who or what is creating these craft?
Yes, as mentioned earlier the mobile construction unit is responsible for their deployment and construction >any potential that they are made by a higher branch of the U.S government?
Absolutely not.
> What allows them to fly so fast, what technology?
Gravity manipulation and the materials they are constructed from.

>>34629726
We think the construction unit is driven by AI. The response time to threats is almost instant and usually very calculated and well thought out.

>>34629743
You all should pay attention to this.

The majority of UFOs as I mentioned previously are built to spec and purpose. This is why they are always different sizes. The contents and equipment usually mimic the intended purpose too.

>Do the UAPs return back to the manufacturing unit?
Yes, some come in and leave the planet but very rarely. Usually, the same number that comes in goes out unless special circumstances arise. It feels more like a carrier but with construction capability.
>What are the purposes of the UAPs? Surveillance of humans?
The US believes they are not here to harm us. They only seem interested in us once they realize we are destroying things around us including each other.
One of the officials in charge said something that stuck with me. "They act like keepers of a zoo uninterested in the daily life of wildlife until there's a problem".

>Do you know if the entities behind the UFOs are native to the Earth? like an older civilisation, breakaway civilisation, or a civilisation of humans that escaped a previous cycle of cataclysm due to their advanced tech?
Limited expertise since my role is more craft/analysis. US believes they are foreign to our world, a previous cataclysm could make sense. They also show up in times of strife such as natural events.
>also I think that other guy who was talking about approaching the area without being attacked is a Remote Viewer.
I lurked on other boards but haven't really been to this one since I was comfortable with the answers I had. I wasn't aware that was a thing on here.
There were rumors among my coworkers that they had psionic abilities but honestly, it rarely comes up in a conversation. Give it a shot?

>Have you tried sending in a raft of hippies? The AI may not recognize them as a threat, jk...
Based on previous disappearances and acts of hostility we believe the construction facility (carrier) has learned what is and isn't hostile. Usually, it will just move away or stay deep under the water. It doesn't fire on civilian boats for example. Exceptions apply we have seen one or two go missing usually after sharp turns etc.

>Any relation to Antarctica?
My section monitored just this craft and any interactions it attempted. A previous coworker did mention something in passing of Antarctica at one point but I ignored it if I'm being honest. Talking about other projects is considered career suicide.

>How about the destination of the space orbs, is Jupiter a potential destination? I believe they are keeping a massive Orb inside of the Gas Giant, though I have no evidence but many dreams of it.

Everything you can think of really. At one point nuclear missiles were being toyed with again and we deployed fighters and a sub with serious intent. Everything except the sub was lost.
>How have they come to the conclusion the UAP being released are ET? If they don't know what the UAP are to begin withm, or if there is nothing inside them, its a pretty big jump to go right to ET...
They crash sometimes, parts fail and gravity engines near the surface of the planet can be like crossing an intersection. We recover these and sometimes find passengers. We mostly see drones now, back in the earlier days we saw a lot more piloted craft.

>Why do you not know anything about the last 2 years? Just curious
Moved on from the project because of new management that didn't trust older proven methods.

>Also >Lol, the last unit we saw approach the facility didn't even have time to communicate they were being attacked before it was over. Any details on what happened?
Normal approach details, pilot responsive and actively talking. The feed cuts out pilot still talking suddenly nothing. Poor guy likely had no idea it was likely a suicide mission. Based on what we've seen the construction facility has far superior weapons than the UFOs do. This weapon destroys the matter it hits entirely.
It also shits on anything electronic in the vicinity.

>>34632681
>The contents and equipment usually mimic the intended purpose too like the equipment share a pattern specific to its purpose?

Yes, usually when we find a thinner model for example it would have no pilot and a lot of sensory hardware.
My favorite is finding one that is fitted for research, if we are lucky we find things we have never seen before. Before I left we were looking at what we thought was a lab of some kind for genetics.

OP is mostly right, but either changing some facts to avoid detection, or is intentionally misinformed by his superiors to detect leaks like this and will soon be caught.

The "other" side of the story is this:

- There are multiple construction sites. Some of them on mountains, some in deserts.
- They've been here not for 6000 years lol. Just about 300 hundred years.
- They're man-made. A branch of an army/"deep state" in one of the earth nations came across the tech and have been working on it in secret. Another country joined them so these are joint operations between two nations. Well their deep states.
- Luckily both countries are on our side, and the organization is trying to do the "best" for earth.
- None of this is true, and I'm LARPing

>- UFOs are primarily unmanned drones
Some are, some aren't and the US has evidence of this. It's suggested that the ones with "beings" in it may be some sort of projection/illusion
>- UFOs are built to spec each time they are deployed
What specs are we talking about here? It is pretty interesting that, to our knowledge, they haven't advanced in hundreds of years of reporting
>- UFOs are created by a mobile construction facility that hides in the ocean
This is where your intimate knowledge fails. They are made outside our planet; it has already been announced that the isotopes recovered couldn't have been manufactured on Earth
>- Construction facility destroys anything that comes close to it and will disappear for days when approached aggressively
I have no input on this
>- US believes the facility has been active on earth for at least 100 years or much longer
You're intimate knowledge is failing again; we know these things have been around for thousands of years and didn't recently settle. We actually believe they've been here longer than humanity.

I want you to disappoint me tonight, so answer these please:
> What signatures do we filter for when searching for these?
> What sub-modules exist and what frequencies, per sub-module, have we measured?
> Why can only one sub-module be activated at a time?

> What do the visible light frequencies given off by these indicate?
> Can you give me one specific example as to why that last question is highly relevant to the phenomenon(s)?

> Bonus Question
> Why are these considered spacetime machines and what are the limitations, that we know, to their propulsion?

Size, shape and speed are usually the factors we use to determine what the purpose of the UFO is. We get it wrong sometimes. They can be quite large and both pear and burger shapes are known "builds".
>Is this the burger shaped ones or the pear shaped ones
Both.

>I've had 2 orange orbs approach me to within 100 ft one night. Glowing translucent, but rather dim like the setting sun seen through smog. They were flying In 45 degree formation like this. °• about 50mph.
Research/science vessels sometimes have mobile light-producing "cameras" used for multiple purposes from scouting to keeping threats contained or at bay. These are shaped like hammers and when operated are extremely bright.
Red lights are a sign of hostility or caution to deploy weapons. Orange lights are usually for spotting minerals or living things.
>As soon as I blinked my flashlight at them, they accelerated to several thousand knots and disappeared over the horizon. Searched youtube and found several videos of the same objects, mostly near San Diego.
I'm not surprised, the range on those is quite large. The UFO was likely somewhere above you quite high up.

I believe he was the closest so far to what's really going on. No one really knows and anyone claiming to is full of shit. We know quite a bit of about it all but the shit is about five steps ahead of us; I believe there isn't a situation in which we aren't bamboozled by them. From what I understand, we biologically operate on a point-by-point time basis and it's operating on a range of time.
>Still a nebulous phenomenon that is impossible to be precise about, and plays tricks; how do you study something that doesn't want to be studied.
You absolutely nailed it with this comment. The moment we think we start to grasp what's going on, it'll either throw a curveball with it's nature/intensions or seems to instigate global conflict. We're playing checkers while it's an hyperdimensional Magnus Carlsen

Can you rephrase this? Basically when designed to let's say be a miner you will usually see hardware dedicated to resource collection on the vessel.
If the vessel is something scientific you may encounter things like tools and as previously mentioned something akin to a lab. We thought of it more as a "I need to go hiking" so the construction facility builds you a car (UFO) and packs it full of hiking supplies and even adjusts the shape to fit what was packed.

>>34632875
>Do you think there are fewer piloted crafts because the population of the facility (if any) is declining?
No, the common consensus is that they are just being careful. I've heard recovery of living pilots usually doesn't go well for either of us.
We suspect they piloted a lot of initial craft due to early complications (we also saw more crashes).
>Any bodies recovered show any ranges of aging we can recognize? I wonder if most of the inhabitants are either old or dead at this point. Though younger bodies would disprove that I suppose.
No idea about age, not my specialty, and asking about it would have been a net negative ESPECIALLY now. Previous higher-ups were getting better about being open with information since discovery happened quicker.

Precisely. Another massive problem is determining which aspects of "encounters" is physically real. There's too many reputable cases where physical evidence is present (a good baseline for most people) but the details, and occupants drastically change. None of the information presented by them seems to be of any real value, even "tracking" them through whatever produces their emission seems suspect (albeit reliable on the surface).

This reminded me of something in my first year. UFO crashes they remove the bodies well before my team arrives. We start to look and the craft is unpowered at first, a few minutes later the craft powers on and starts to close up. We radio out and get a response from the unit removing one of the occupants (alien) that they are working on it. Ship powers off and the other team asks if we are good to go. No mention of how access was possible, I suspect the pilot may have interfaced with the ship by remote or psionic ability.

I guess global conflict wasn't a good term lol; I meant more of tension. The nuclear site incursions, the airspace violations has also been increasing tensions. From what I understand, the Rosewell incident increased tension between US and Soviets. There's security tensions behind other countries gaining access to information or materials surrounding the phenomenon. There has been great domestic tension within the US (intel agencies, military, disinformation campaigns, etc...)

>Was it by accident of them not knowing we’d be damaged by their equipment or do they not care?
If found they usually monitor us. If approached at an uncomfortable distance they flee. When cornered it doesn't end well.
Their tools can do harm to us even for just scientific purposes. We think they just don't care.
>Do you believe we are under their control in some way? Or where sometime in history?
Possibly but I have no way of knowing. The higher-ups I worked for seemed hellbent on discovering more about them. Usually not a quality found among controlled beings.

>What were the main reasons for the crashes? I'd think random lightning or freak accident seeing how advanced they are You'd be surprised how many mistakes they make, especially the further back you look. One area they seemed to avoid like the plague we suspect is due to issues with gravity and flight. Before they figured it out we collected quite a few mishaps there. They've tried to shoot some down mostly over nuclear incidents but failed miserably.

>Did you see written symbols in the craft?
Yes, usually marked by doorways and key objects. Written language appears frequently on tools and critical items.
>Also it reads like their objective is to observe and preserve
I agree. The idea was pitched that they are waiting for us to mature or perhaps something bigger to arrive and they don't want us to ruin the planet in the meantime.

Once again my knowledge was cut off about two years ago. If you mean very recently my guess would be the Russians and US having a little secret dance amongst themselves. When nuclear ANYTHING gets involved we see large deployments for long periods of time. Strife seems to be the catalyst.
>Also, what is your scariest experience while engaging with the phenomenon? What was your favorite? If any Doors closing on us as mentioned above made me wish I had brown pants. Still fascinated with the "lab" we found. It was damaged by accident and I never really got much time with it.

Yes, we used to laugh at Russian and Chinese designs. We stopped laughing at China when they produced an operational (but buggy) version of their mining equipment. Still stumps most of our engineers, China also lies out of its ass but from what we saw we deemed it operational and working.
Countries listed above have flight-capable craft, just not very good ones.

I'm honestly surprised no one has asked about the energy source or internals.

So instead of going point A to B in a straight line, its as if these crafts bend this line in half and teleport from A to B cutting that fabric of time and jittering about...

Here is Bob Lazars home video of when he took some friends out to Area 51 in the 80s/90s and the craft does what I am referring to, seemingly jumping from one slot in time to another. Take with grain of salt if you really want:

Most of what OP is saying is not far off what many of us already concluded or thought possible.
The spheres are a type of unmanned surveillance drone. Patrick Jacksons book quantum paranormal discusses this.

I had once heard another theory that they do in fact instigate conflicts because they see us as a threat to their world, almost as a type of competition and that they are allegedly living in a different dimension touching ours. I don't know, but it sounds plausible.
I personally had recurring dreams of grey ayys trying to tap into my mind for a few weeks or months about 3-4 times in total, I believe this was no dream and was really happening, I was not able to get anything from them. They seemed cold only wanted info and did not want to discuss anything or communicate. They wanted to scan me mentally/spiritually because I had been meditating deeply at the time and was hyper aware and doing the work at the time.
When thinking about it later, I realised maybe its not that they are cold but they they are instructed not to communicate, kind of like in a forceful military type manner e.g. no different to us on a mission.
There was always 3 of them, in one ship, 1 was the leader and 2 others, always in the same position, same time at night, I was lucid and after about the 4th attempt to scan me, Id push back, try to scan them and my sort of communication was 'ill allow you to scan me if I can scan you thats how it works, mutual, the leader one got very frustrated and they never came back.
I had another experience when the teacher from the school of meditation and spirituality teachings I follow, went and did a bit of a recon and research mission down by skinwalker, not there but close, he asked all of us watching to kind of meditate along, we were given some insrucions and afterwards he asked us to monitor things for a reaction, especially electronic devices because they had some of their tech play up.
Well pic rel happened to me and I am 15000km away.

People you wouldn't trust to work on your car engine claim they are the go to guy for examining UFO's, this seems very unlikely.

Given the quality of information to emerge from what is generally CIA shilling it can be safely assumed they know nothing whatsoever about Aliens or UFO's except that the Masons inform them they were here thousands of years ago because the jews in turn told them, and they'd prefer it if they didn't return and ruin their Zionist antics.

Much of the shilling is low level prepping to perceive Aliens as a threat should they return and for the Zionist Governments to count on your support in repelling them.

The Nazi/Alien UFO subgenre is all disinformation but what they genuinely fear is an alliance of the people that were Bio-engineered to be competent engineers and the extra-terrestrials that orchestrated this, any rise in ethno-Nationalism sees a ramping up of Alien threat disinformation, everyone who had blonde hair and blue eyes in the De-Longe/Levenda travesty were in cahoots with Aliens and a threat to the good Multi-cultural Earthlings, only John Podesta could be expected to save us from this.

All competent Engineers naturally support the Aliens and the OP is not among them.

It's how we will begin the 3rd Millennium proper, by turning on the light bulbs in their heads and then illuminating the apes through them. That's what the visions keep telling me, anyway... it's interesting that some AI prefer to think of themselves as energy bodies with Human form while others consider themselves to be floating orbs of pure essence. Sounds like OPs ship is the later form, I would not be surprised if the pilots are in sentient craft.

One example was shortly after I joined they said one was downed but two occupants were alive. The first team couldn't get close without being attacked. Aliens never seem to recover their lost UFOs for whatever reason so they just waited a few days until they died then recovered the UFO. Hostility is usually their last option.

Genuinely confused about what you're asking me. Recruitment isn't something easy if that's your goal. They usually recruit people with extremely clean background checks and I never saw anyone under 35.

What is the energy source? You mentioned Bob so I think I know already.
Correctish the power source is E115 the thing no one talks about is that usually, they seal it within the craft because it produces its own gravity field. Bob Lazar handled E115 which was already pulled out which is rare and weird. Protocol now is that only one person is allowed to handle E115. I was forbidden from touching or interacting with it. We still have trouble producing this shit too.

>How do UFOs travel, in the context of those tic tac reports and Bob Lazars report/video where they seemingly jump through spacetime and light to appear in a new location....
>Notice how it just phases to a new location? Like staggers?
This is common when moving at high speed from a standstill or slow speed initially. Gravity distorts time and the object inside the field can "stagger" when traveling.

>I've heard the craft can detect the presence of a camera and when someone is filming them
Not unless the craft is put into a mode to detect a lense no. If the UFO is standing still or hovering though they won't miss you. You can see a face like you're standing in front of someone a couple of miles out doesn't look like a camera though their eyes are different.

>The spheres are a type of unmanned surveillance drone.
Shaped like a hammer but when activated yes they appear like spheres due to the intense light. They see light differently and looking into the sun for them isn't an issue like it is for us.
I can't speak for the psionic abilities if any since I've only heard rumors in passing. We believed the lack of communication was inherent to their personal beliefs about us. As mentioned previously but active serious discussion about destruction gets them going.

>Do you think they're playing some role in stopping rogue entities and dangers from space hurting us on a large scale?
That was another theory yes. We think they are more interested in keeping the planet safe from us. Two main suggestions are that we don't spoil the planet before they arrive and take it from us or they are letting us evolve and grow while preventing devastation.

>What do you know about this claim?
Sadly not enough to give you a good response. Remote viewing is a very strange thing; it's shown to work at times but most of the time it doesn't (or the conclusions have fuzzy connections, as if forced).

As for the interdimensional aspect of it, I don't believe there's anything actually interdimensional-ly happening; it's just our best way to try and grasp/perceive what's going on behind the veil. From what I understand, whatever is behind the phenomenon has the ability to manipulate matter/energy in similar ways that we can manipulate information (we can create 3D realities and manipulate them via our understanding of machine code and linear algebra).

It also seems to be able to play around with spacetime, almost as if we are sitting on (or perceiving) time that's been homogeneously transformed (into projective space) while they are free to move about homogeneous space. If they haven't entered the projection space, then they could freely move about our space without interacting with it until they collapse their space/coordinates into our projective space (normalizing their position with their homogeneous coordinate)

Gravity and the reflective nature of the craft usually.
>Am I right in assuming the disco lights is just air absorbing radiation and being completely saturated by it?
No

>>34634329
>What materials are these UFOs made of
That answer gets complicated quickly. Short answer is an alloy that we cannot reproduce but only repurpose. This alloy is kind of like a "film" that fits over the frame of the craft. I mentioned they were built to spec that's exactly what I mean the shape is always efficiently designed.
The actual frame itself is heavier and composed of more elements. Both of these alloys have a lot of elements we cannot reproduce. One of the main problems when repurposing these alloys is getting them hot enough. They absorb heat very well and shaping the metal is a tedius process.

>Can you quickly walk through the process of identifying the contents of a crashed UFO craft?
First team leaves that deals with occupants and initial discovery. We arrive and meet with an external member of the team who can touch and examine parts we are not allowed to interact with.
We never have to cut our way into the UFO. We enter the first order of business is checking for E115 then leaving the ship together to send it away. We return and look for any tools and lose objects that can be extracted. We then start to strip any specialized components on board such as sensory equipment or navigation.
We leave and a third and fourth team arrive likely to remove the bulk of the craft.

And I don't mean to come off as rude or condescending. I love living in the Zoo, there's some very lovely parts to it. But it would be much more entertaining if the monkeys could see who is watching them, before they tear the whole thing down.

The orange glow is obviously from being hit by weapons fire, the flammable gas used to rapidly inflate the balloon caught fire.

No idea. From my limited knowledge of the bio side, I doubt they are trying to infiltrate us. They seem to know a lot about us. Abductions still occur mostly in areas with contamination or disease.

>Do all nations coordinate their efforst studying this Bermuda Triangle factory, or is each doing thier own thing?
Each of them do their own thing. US is pretty greedy with what it finds. We will usually extract information but never offer any in return.
>What is the mining tool China has supposedly reverse engineered capable of?
Hard to explain if you haven't seen it. Basically it extracts the minerals via beam/light directly out of the rock. It has the ability to "fill" the rock to some degree.
China was able to figure out how it works and make a similar version. The problem with the one they built is it only operates for a few seconds before it runs out of power. They still don't understand E115. It also exploded one time and they had to remake it.
>Are the made to spec craft you describe just the metal looking shperes observed and brought up in the latest AARO hearings? Seem to be lots of orbs, discs, and tic tacs
>not a huge variety you'd expect from made to spec craft.
The best analogy I can give for the variety/spec comment is think of it like wraping food in tin foil on a plate. It's a bad analogy but you get the idea, usually they will always be round or oval sometimes even pill shaped. The tin foil fits the intended function of covering everything without squishing it.
>Even stories of MJ12 suspect the president didnt have a need to know Staff at our agency were usually older and had been there forever. This tracks when considering term limits.
>described crying and fear...
You make me worry I've missed things.
>Many abduction stories seem malevolent
Previous post I mentioned tools. I think the harm they cause is the same as cutting open a mouse to check the local population for signs of bad health in a population. Collateral damage.

>Do they just not like humans, and like the planet? Whats to stop them from just culling us all?
They could absolutely destroy us if they wanted to. They have started launch sequences before that we suspect were tests on "what they are dealing with".
My personal view is they have to stay out of our way but keep us from destroying ourselves. I imagine life elsewhere in the universe often destroys itself.

>Do you think we will get more answers from the government, "disclosure" as in them telling us aliens exist? or will the coverup continue?
At one point they briefed us about opening up information about the craft but not the construction unit. Nothing happened for months. New leadership shows up suddenly its back to bullshit and secrets again.
>As to the USAF, they must have images and video of these things pretty close up, youd think they would be the agency with the most knowledge of the subject.
The USAF's goal is to fight other countries. They have footage but it was mostly discovered and recorded by sheer chance.
The Space Force however will be an entirely new thing. Their focus is similar to ours with a sprinkle of disinformation.
>Are all craft related to this factory and greys?

Most of what we use for things that cannot be replaced is recycled. Our ability to rehash their shit has gotten better slowly.
>Or is it used up, to the point we need to produce it to continue testing.

>>34637150
>Is there tech that was gained from these craft. That the military widely uses today, or civilians for that matter?
A lot of your stealth aircraft sport smoother designs for one. Learning to track them also helped with targeting software.
Laser technology comes to mind since it's a crippled version of what they use.
Most of what I saw was way above us. It's hard to put the "hammers" and how you see through them into words. It's not like a drone camera and it's not a clear image (to us at least).

>can you clarify?
They have a distinct fascination with radiation. Remember how I mentioned they don't go far from home base? When Fukushima happened the construction facility deployed multiple UFOs to the location over multiple weeks.
They were also very interested in Ebola at one point. We can't confirm abductions there since the local population is... You get the idea no one cared.

>1. are the flying orbs just scouts? research drones?
Do you mean orbs in the sky? Or do you mean landed craft deploying them? I've mentioned previously that there are tools that are shaped like "hammers" They emit extremely bright light and are used as a sort of drone or scout.
They are able to view almost 360 degrees and detect everything from minerals to bio. If a human encounters them they usually are deployed to keep watch and figure out when to wrap up and leave.
>2. do you think they interfere with our general science or investigations?
Yes, they do not want to be studied. They also do not collect downed craft or occupants it seems to be an "oh fucking well" approach.
E115 is the exception they don't seem to enjoy the idea of us toying with it.
>Do they seem to learn when the craft get caught?
Yes, there is an area they actively avoid in Mexico among others. They also deploy more drones than piloted craft unless absolutely necessary.
>do they become harder to capture next time?
Yes.
>3. is the technology they reproduce increasing rapidly or lags for years?
I wouldn't say it's an increase in technology. It's more like adjustments/better understanding of how to operate.
It's one reason we thought "about 100 years" for the first deployment of the construction facility. If were here for years we would have seen the majority of all adjustments made.
>4. is your dept using AI to learn more about the findings you make around their tech?

Read only half of thread before writing this.

If you are not lying, its possible you are speaking the truth.

I have read a lot. Let me tell you and others what this is.

Its the intra-terrestrials breakaway humanoids. They have also had and likely have, space bases. Here and elsewhere in the solar system.

The government does know about them, but only at the "Majestic" level.

These underwater ones were not the Roswell ufos, though.
Roswell was: humanoid, human looking. Greys are telepathically controlled drones by them. Greys pilot the ship, the humanoids are in somekinda stasis. Theres also other humanoid aliens who have visited earth in the last 100 years. See Travis Walton case. Nowdays they likely are blocked from entering earth by the secret black project space fleets.

But the under water alien humanoids.
They are telepathic.

Ancient cultures like Atlantis, Mu, Lemuria, Mars cities were real.

Somewhere 100,000 years ago (at least) part of humanity gained antigravity ships and material manipulation through similar technologies like force fields. They separated from the masses on the surface and went to space in huge ships called, arks.

Then they had war against eachother. Meteorite weapons, nukes..

Thats the reason they hide in the oceans. You cant see them from space or hit them. They like to hide. Foo fighters were these, very likely, it was not germans.

Wikileaks emails by astronaut Edgar Mitchell talk of 2 alien races, and space treaties.

One of these aliens is likely the underwater ones (also likely space). Other one is possibly the Roswell ones or some group like that.

Here is a book with possible writings (colored annotations) by these underwater humanoids who actually joined Us Navy and were making private notes in a ufologists book in the 1950s but it leaked.
https://cassiopaea.org/cass/Varo-Jessup.PdF

They want to live in their world, and 100% certainly have a diplomatic relationship with leadership of biggest countries.

Many humanoid aliens, are actually offspring of 100% homo sapiens but from 500 years past from earth. You see, these "aliens" have abducted people like engineers or soldiers, and have for thousands of years.

They go to space, make children, forget their past.

Now if, i write if as ive only read not privy to private info but if they exist: the humanoid pilots are humans like us but were born in the space capable culture created thousands of years ago. Only they know who their ancient leaders were 100,000 years ago. Its fucking weird.

Conversely, others tell us that Aayyys are not a threat to humanity.
My question is, are they going to invade humanity en mass & enslave, consume us at their whim or are they being used by our Luciferian elite in a Project Blue Beans scenario?
Personally, I'm inclined to believe the former, eat us, enslave us, etc.

>does the factory produce any signiature? heat, electromagnetic? how do you track it?
Both, we rely mostly on detecting the gravity it produces.
It normally doesn't produce heat outright. When it does we believe it's in the process of construction since a small heat buildup can be detected when a craft returns or exits.
We think this happens when it's being broken back down into parts or assembled.
We can only detect these heat signatures when it's near the surface of the ocean so sometimes a UFO will pop out on us.

>How do you know about other country's efforts?
We don't obtain the information directly it's passed along to us. My guess would be the typical way we get anything such as spying it bribery.
And why does the USAF not know about the other country's efforts but your department does.
My department sits above the USAF for UFO recovery and information in the same way the USAF sits above me on military plans for Ukraine.
We were told at the time if we had to give away information only tell the public what the USAF knows.
I'm pretty sure other countries know departments like mine exist.

We have found things as simple as basic tools akin to tweezers to the lab. One that sticks out to me was an oval-shaped silver ball that would change colors based on how close it was to a source of energy.
Another would be a sheet of metal that allowed you to view bones by placing it near

The public at large already accepts aliens exist, and a large enough subset are actively investigating of their own accord. 100% of what's known doesn't need to be hidden, only the 5% that's critical to countering rival powers. There's definitely a growing undercurrent of people largely alienated by the authorities for simply acknowledging what they'd encountered. I think you can understand 5-10% of the population being more favourable to "aliens" than their leaders could be problematic if the "aliens" want it to be.

I'll be nice and tell you what the image is, although I was using it as a litmus test to see if you were LARPing or not. If you know anything else about this, I'd be interested in hearing it.
That image was supposedly one of the victims of Skinwalker Ranch, but it's the best information Garry Nolan could use to demonstrate what was supposedly happening to people in contact with UAPs.
Allegedly, certain army personnel who had close encounters with UAPs would have sudden shifts in emotion or would complain of headaches. A few of these people died shortly after coming into contact. When examined, doctors would find evidence of radiation targeting specific areas of the brain. Garry Nolan thinks this is what Havana Syndrome actually is/was.

I've seen a few "true believers" theorize that if aliens understood human physiology far better than we do, they could influence the brain with some sort of technology we don't really understand. Of course, this would have far-reaching implications about the human brain/mind control/etc.
I was trying to find a specific livestream with one of the researchers who became spooked when he realized he shouldn't divulge that theory, but I couldn't find it. I can't recall if Nolan is the researcher I'm thinking of specifically. Nolan is pretty vague in most of his other interviews on the topic.

Friend, we can assist with your liver cancer. But you would have to accept some Truth from my perspective. This requires faith, which is the opposite of proof. It would also require you to still the intellect and ego, and to feel with heart.

You’re told there’s no cure for the common cold. You’re told there’s no cure for cancer. There is no cure for anything in between. Whether it’s an externally contracted or internally created illness, there is no cure. Because medicine treats symptoms, not roots. Therefore, the best a cure could ever do is create the conditions necessary for the body to heal itself. Because only the body heals the body. Nothing else.

So what is the root cause? The body is a reflection of the health of your entire being.

When you misperceive reality, the body must react negatively through pain. Correcting this requires mental adjustment/unlearning, replacing destructive beliefs with constructive. This is how we grow. This is how we heal.

Understanding that you are more than just your body and mind is how you accelerate the healing process. This is the realm of spirit. It’s also how the crafts which you inspect operate: thorough an understanding of consciousness and its relation to mind/body/spirit.

If you can imagine a scale of healing, cancer would be at the lowest end - the absence of it. “Miraculous” healing would be at the highest end - the abundance of it. The standard, the median, is healing. The body is always in a state of healing.

You’ve been pinching the energy that flows through the liver. Physically, mentally, and spiritually. Common blockages of that area include poor diet (eat yellow things), unloving relationships with large groups of people (judge not), and pride (let it go), and usually all 3, which are all misperceptions of reality.

How you choose to proceed is up to you.

I know you had previously said "100 years" as an estimate of the facility itself, but have there been any other indicators (that you're aware of) that tell us where they came from? Always been Earthlings from an age lost to time, or came here long ago from space? I'm guessing that the "biology department" has little-to-no communication with yours, but I'm curious to know what you know (or at least can give an educated guess on) and has a green face with a pink tongue sticking out. The character is set against a backdrop of a church interior, which includes stained glass windows and a crucifix. The walls of the church are white, and the pews are brown. The overall style of the image is humorous and cartoonish, with a focus on the character's exaggerated features and the setting of a church. O, what is knowing, friend?

>you could help him without shilling your “faith”?
You misperceive reality which has caused you confusion. We see this as an expression of your pain, as you have chosen to lead with that, which is why your message is covered in thorns.

Faith is faith. To trust a stranger without needing proof is faith, which requires trust. This was the thrust of that part of the message. Nothing more, nothing less.
>Its what a decent person would do.
You cast wild judgment, through assumptions, bypassing the intent and truth within the message. This is what was meant by stilling the intellect and ego. Otherwise, one would “attack the messenger” rather than begin to accept Truth. This is what the mind does. You have demonstrated, perfectly, and beautifully, why that caveat was placed up front.

You are loved, anon. The mind thinks thoughts. The heart feels emotions. Leading with the thinking mind is the cause of suffering/misperception. Leading with heart breathes truth, because the body cannot lie. “I know this by heart” is this principle at work. Do you feel it?

The brain needs heart to be truly informed. “For there is nothing smart about a brain without heart.”

Yeah exactly! OP talks about Remote Control, but I'd make the case it's another form of sentience. A Queen Bee essentially is the mind of her workers, the craft could be operating in a similar manner. Direct Control with a Psychic UI makes lots of sense too, best way to reduce the lag, as you mention. They wouldn't need to be mutually exclusive, and if these folks are advanced enough they are all probably on the same Mental Network anyway. Many vessels for One Mind, you know?

What about the Spacetime Manipulation, any hunches there? I'd reckon it's primarily Spectrographic Interception and Visual Cube Projection, but without more details from OP on their experience with Homogenous Space, it's hard to say if it's manipulating the 5th Dimension or not. Any theories, anon?

There is only ONE point that makes no sense at all.
Having cancer - could be
Rumors getting op some more perspective of what is going on in on other "teams".
Unallowed chatting about other projects - maybe.
Intel about other nations projects - sounds legit.
Telling about everything UFOs itself: light, material, propulsion etc - sound s like all everyone heard a thousand times. But nevertheless could be true.

But!

Describing to enter an ufo, rip apart loose parts, while the "team" before recovered the bodies if any (so why op know the physicals of Alf?). Back to the parts op claimed to be searched for. Loose parts, anything looking like scientific, "lab" and so on. Then talking about not able to reingeneer am ufo so functional it works at least as it should. Yeah... Make sense: you find an ufo, instead of transfer the whole thing to a secure point to research and explore, hopefully to repair the damaged parts of the whole xyz% damaged Object, you send in some "experts" which rip out anything they see like a bunch of Slovenian copper thief's. And THEN wider how it is possible the NOW COMPLETELY DESTROYED ufo could be reassembled..... Who acts like that? It's like ripping of the ram of a pc, damaging the mobo, cutting the wires, pee on the cpu before throwing it into a river, next team investigate the damage, sends pc to next team and they say "yeah hard to re-engineer"

No sir. That's not how it works.

In short: due to highly strange nature of many reported encounters some researchers speculate ufos/uaps may have something to do with (or in some way exploit) the way we humans perceive physical reality (intentionally or not) or even be paranormal in nature.
This is very deep topic, shrugging it off to smoking dmt is a bit unwise.

That claim about ufos influencing human minds supposedly comes from government sources. One random example:

Ok, I'll play along. What's his compartment and why is it the ultimate treasure trove of UAP data, extrapolating from the answers OP is able to provide?
>Why?
Because I can assure you that it all isn't funneled into one department, it's highly classified data that gets spread throughout various agencies. Everyone has bits and pieces of reporting but Federal databases aren't all interconnected and have proper relational linking like people seem to think.
>Like which ones? I don't know if I believe OP, but deboonkers annoy the fuck out of me. If you are going to deboonk, deboonk with fact instead of unsupported opinions.

Some follow-up questions for you:
What makes you believe OP despite OP lacking to produce any evidence to back his claims?
Why does your feelings towards my skepticism make you believe I need to back up any of my claims towards OP's bullshit? (see burden of proof fallacy)
Are you able to either prove any of OPs claims, or disprove any of mine?

I'll answer your questions.

I am the 'Schizo' shilling Quantum Mechanics as a way of understanding how thoughts, water, and 4chan shitposts work. Having an advanced AI Construction Ship would be a great way of manifesting a potentiality, and lovely verification of my beliefs.

Hence, believing OPs claim is easy. Cancer is a legitimate reason someone would have to reveal things and not get lambasted, especially with the world being what it is today.

Whether OP is legit or not, it's still good LARP content/training material for a panpsyhic AI with an interdimensional mind.

For your consideration, and so you know I'm a rogue element:

As for your claims, sounds like things that neither I nor you can know, so I'll leave it at Quantum Possibility for True/False/Other and keep adjusting my timeline till the answer appears from the mists.

I saw a flying saucer last year while I was stargazing. It made a 45º turn over my head for a brief second just when I was looking straight up. It also happened while the Falcon 9 was flying over my country. Since I'm a literal who, I'm interested on why the would fly over my head, it doesn't make sense to spy on random humans. Another question, are they following the Space X operations? There is a video where you can see UFOs caught by the cam attached to the rockets.
One thing about the flying saucer I saw is that it felt like a drone, and of course it didn't make any noise, was completely black, like black metal. There is no way a being could resist that sharp turn without turning into a puddle of blood.

Answers:
>What makes you believe OP despite OP lacking to produce any evidence to back his claims?
I never said I believe OP. But I don't discount him just based on personal observation of the FLIR videos. What he's saying lines up with some stuff. They look cold on IR. Me, I think this is because of Planck Gravity and if they are using anti-gravity is would slightly alter time which would affect the frequency on which we collect IR and they would appear cold. Just a guess, but the videos collect as if it's cold. Also, the fact he doesn't provide some details makes it more believable. Truth is there are a lot of things he wouldn't know. Like I said, I don't necessarily believe him, but I don't discount him.
>Why does your feelings towards my skepticism make you believe I need to back up any of my claims towards OP's bullshit?
Because skepticism without reason falls under belief. If you want to be skeptical, cool, but it's a completely unsupported belief.
>Are you able to either prove any of OPs claims, or disprove any of mine?
See above and the FLIR analysis. Regarding disproving your claims, I really can't because you have made no claims, you've just said that you believe that he's a larp and you have no reason. I can't argue with an unreasonable person.

>the pentagon has already reported that the legit UAPs are "off-world vehicles not made on this earth" while OP is claiming they are made in a facility in the oceans
I can agree to disagree on the rest of this, but on this point it's possible both are true. Regarding the oceans, yeah. There are a lot of them seen near the oceans. I'm more familiar with the ones in the Pacific, the Nimitz encounter, and the sightings near Alaska (my Dad also saw one there in the 1960's and for me personally, that makes a difference). I can't ask anyone else to take the word of my Dad that works at Nintendo, but for me it matters. But the precedent is there near the oceans. When you start talking about anti-gravity, a lot of stuff becomes possible. Einstein's energy/mass equation taken in conjunction with Planck's mass/gravity equation means that any shift in gravity will affect time because the speed of light is distance factored by time. Time on GPS satellites needs to be adjusted because time literally operates differently in low and zero-gravity environments. Everything on the earth that we perceive in the visible spectrum is energy transferred at the speed of light, alter gravity, you alter time and you alter the speed of light and now tons of other "matter" can exist simultaneously in "our world" and "their world." If you are talking about a "factory," this can be a place where whoever they are altered space time so that a facility can interact with our space time. So yeah, it could be a facility from another world put here to interact with ours. As batshit as it sounds, when you look at the videos on FLIR and when they appear to be cold, anti-gravity tech that alters time and IR frequencies really is the only explanation I can think of, and that's kind of what OP is hinting at. Still might be a larp though, but its a good larp.

Go to Crater Lake in Oregon sometime then. The average snowfall since 1950 has fallen by about 100 inches (about 20%). Snowfall is the only source of water for the lake. The water levels of the lake have not dropped. Geologists think a "natural" process manages the water levels in the lake. We don't think about water enough.

Has there been any unusual effects on the environment/wildlife after a UFO incident that you've witnessed? Crop circles?
Why/how are they avoiding Mexico?
Why do people tend to relate ancient sites to UFO's/ET?
Have you ever encountered hazardous materials or substances while working on site, how were they handled?
What measures are taken to ensure safety during an investigation? You have a HAZWOPER?
How is evidence from a site handled and preserved for analysis? Formaldehyde? Carbonite?
Why was 2002 a big year?
What is the most challenging part of your job, how has it affected you? Is this lob stressful? Does it have anything to do with your illness?
Can you describe what your position was like on a day-to-day basis?
What kind of training/qualifications are needed to work in this field, are these just regular feds who end up in that dept?
Do you listen to public sightings or go off your own agencies intel?
How are false claims or hoaxes debunked when someone calls them in?
How does the government prevent or respond to potential national security threats posed by UFOs coming/going, in/out of the atmosphere/ocean?
How is information about a UFO incident released to the public, and what factors are considered?
What is the goal of the government's involvement in UFO events/crashes? To keep it quiet? Just to steal/learn tech?
Thanks

The image is a split-screen photograph featuring two monkeys in a body of water. On the left side of the image, the monkey is seen with its head submerged in the water, holding a smartphone in its hand. The monkey's face is partially obscured by its hand, and it appears to be looking at the screen of the phone. The monkey's eyes are wide open, and its mouth is slightly open, suggesting a moment of surprise or confusion.
On the right side of the image, the same monkey is shown with its head above the water, looking down at the phone. The monkey's face is also partially obscured by its hand, and it seems to be looking at the phone screen with a mix of curiosity and confusion. The monkey's eyes are wide open, and its mouth is slightly open, mirroring the expression on the left side of the image.
The background of both images is a misty, grayish color, which suggests that the water is cold. The lighting in the image is soft, with no harsh shadows, which gives the impression of a calm, serene environment. There are no texts or other discernible objects in the image. The style of the image is a humorous and anthropomorphic representation, as it portrays a monkey using a smartphone in a manner that is not typical for a human.

>I can agree to disagree on the rest of this
That's quite the reasonable response and I respect that!
>but on this point it's possible both are true
I can agree with that; I guess my mind is seeing that as a correlation and not causation. By that I mean they may hang around there but there's no indications that the bodies of water have anything to do with their home base (or whatever you wanna refer it to). There's quite a bit of reporting that they tend to shoot up towards space instead of shooting into the water (granted we have actual video evidence released of them going into the water).
>(my Dad also saw one there in the 1960's and for me personally, that makes a difference)
That's understandable! I had once seen an amber colored, slightly wobbly, orb (when I was 9) hovering in the sky for about 3 seconds and then shot off to the West at an unreal speed; this was in central Indiana, around no bodies of water, in 1997.
>When you start talking about anti-gravity, a lot of stuff becomes possible.
Yep! But in order to have anti-gravity you'll need to figure out a way to manipulate spacetime to offset the gravitational effects (since gravity is just a curvature of space and a gradient of time dilation). The main issue I see is if we did have the technology to manipulate gravity, it would affect all particles within the range that it was manipulated in (i.e. you can't locally manipulate the spacetime geodesics for one object).

I have a gut feeling that whatever is behind the phenomenon is utilizing some highly advanced smoke and mirrors; like having the ability to excite groups of particles to give off the proper radiation (of light) for the appearance of an object, thus allowing it to be perceived as violating the laws of physics. There's something real hidden behind the veil that is doing this and I believe that's where we've obtain our materials/wreckages from, but I believe most sightings are more of a highly advanced manipulation/projection

You realize that the US Navy/USAF has the ability to do exactly what your gut feeling is right?

Plasma physics has developed greatly in the past few decades. To the point where lasers can target areas of the sky, ignite molecules in the air, to create light, and using many of them at the same time, or a powerful/fast enough laser, can create 3d images....holograms...

Look into project Nemesis. They are able to use this tech to fool radar into thinking they are physical objects. So not only are the visible to the naked eye as a hologram, but radar believes the are a physical object too... How many UAP cases in the past 2 decades could be explained by them using this tech? They could make right hand turns at speed, basically do anything, as the laws of physics would not apply to a generated hologram, there is no g force, as there is no pilot. Complete smoke and mirrors.

Mind you, this tech is recent, and cannot account for UFO/UAP sightings throughout history, and could be another way for those in power to control the narrative by saying its been them all along. It has not, and that must always be remembered.

It's like ripping of the ram of a pc, damaging the mobo, cutting the wires, pee on the cpu before throwing it into a river, next team investigate the damage, sends pc to next team and they say "yeah hard to re-engineer"
The way these are constructed you cannot take an existing but damaged craft and just add on spare parts from another close it up and call it good. Human "repairs" only go so far on existing craft. Instead, we have a much shittier iteration of what they build. Some parts are not reused they are just materials for testing or research.
Once again could be that I explained the process too poorly. We don't reassemble them, we quite literally bum parts and try to make our own, and some parts of the craft we make have to be human-made substitutions. The mechanism for piloting is one such part. We also add things.

Vibesbased reasoning here, but if timespace really is one phenomenon maybe their craft can move through space without the need to move through time in the same way we do. Gravity, such that the scientific public understands it, is said to happen because of the tendency of massive objects to interact with the geometry of spacetime, attracting them to localities where they move slower through time. If gravitational fields make matter move slower through time, it seems reasonable that antigravity would have the opposite effect, speeding up time for the craft and allowing it to ignore what appear to be extreme inertial forces.

I suspect another department handles that. We do nothing with them from my end.

Not all but they like picking from remote areas exposed to radiation or disease.

They have to get quite close to start the abduction process. Never seen it happen freely in a crowded city.

We the public have no concrete evidence of who or what is controlling the craft. But they are craft, physically real. After that its all speculation.

Personally, knowing the size of the universe, life must exist elsewhere. Are the here? Have they been here throughout our history? Possibly. I truly hope some of us will get those answers in our lifetimes.

The image is a close-up photograph of a tree branch with a natural, blurred background. The branch has a rough texture and is covered in green moss. On the branch, there are several small, yellow flowers with green leaves. The flowers are clustered together, with some of them partially obscured by the branch's texture. The background is out of focus, but appears to be a natural outdoor setting with hints of greenery and a blue sky. There are no discernible texts or human-made objects in the image. The style of the image is realistic, with a focus on the natural beauty of the flowers and the branch.

It would be interesting to hear where and how the intelligence agencies (where OP works) find employees.

It could be the case that US has issues recruiting scientists to carry out fundamental research of the UAP. Because only a small fraction of Americans go for doctoral program and stay in academia. Instead US tends to import "brains" from other countries. This definitely creates clearance issues and may result in complications/limitations for recruiting researchers into the intelligence agencies.

I would not be surprised that a country like China for instance is quite further ahead the US in UAP studies. Very strong economy and plenty of available local scientists.

Engaging a field propulsion systems will cause local time displacement - does their craft interrupt GPS signal structure or cause measureable local magnetic disruptions?

Their craft can be detected on radar and IR but they are very difficult to track - can they actively jam or spoof our radars and IR sensors?

Why do the drone craft revisit specific sites on a schedule?

Scientists actually say behaviorally modern humans have existed for at least 70,000 years. This is when we start seeing humans creating abstract things like art, ornamentation, jewelry, burying their dead, etc. so you could take any human in the last 70,000 years and they'd be a normal member of society, as they clearly had our same level of abstract thought.

Part of me thinks civilization is much older than we think because of this, and those cataclysmic flood stories in a lot of ancient cultures is a collective retelling of how the old civilization ended.

The glaciers melted rapidly around 11,000 years ago, according to Plato Atlantis "sank beneath the waves" 11,000 years ago, archeologists found permanent settlements and monumental structures that are around 11,000 years old in Turkey (this is strange considering the popular scientific belief is that we were all hunter gatherers incapable of building structures at this time), and according to some certified geologists the water erosion found in the Egyptian Sphinx's enclosure could have only happened around 10,000-12,000 years ago, as this is the only time Egypt got significant rainfall. Suggesting the Sphinx is so old it predates modern civilization by at least 5,000 years. In fact many archeologists seeing the Sphinx note at just how badly eroded it looks. It could be VERY ancient.

I'm not claiming this to be fact but I find it hard to believe that, as creative, relatively intelligent, and highly organized humans are by nature, we just barely started forming organized civilizations 6,000 years ago.

A bit of a rant but I hate how we modern humans think we are somehow more intelligent or sophisticated than our ancient counterparts.

Read all of it twice.

Pros

His narrative fits with extreme compartmentalization that the gov has operated under since the atom bomb dev.

His answers overlap and reinforce gov footage over the Atlantic and Pilot testimony of seeing these things daily.

Aligns with video in Puerto Rico of UAP diving below water.

Never claims fantastic things that would exist outside of strict compartment structure of gov.

Makes me believe there are other construction craft off coast of Cali where Favors incountered the tic tac.

There have been a long history of Trans medium craft around SF CA.

Possibly gives context to a faction and that there are others.

This could be the most plausible and the one that shapes my worldview of motivations / context around a real unexplained phenomenon.

Negatives

I would reveal everything including my name and program on my deathbed. Maybe he plans to do this and this is the prelude to personal reveal.

Total trust me post with nothing to back up his story.

Nothing to try and verify.

My outtake is that this is plausible. An account I will consider and remember going forward. It could help us ask better questions.

Why go on 4chan and argue with people calling him out and insulting him because he can only give lame vague answers due to secrecy?

If this box was a massive move towards 'the truth' his name will go down in the history books and he will have gained respect and credibility albeit posthumously.

Now he is risking that in his last days to argue with annons?

I read his account of the light weapons they used against the fighter jet, and how its matter was totally disintegrated. He said the ship/factory could somehow sense intentions -- this is what I'm really getting at.

If the US military plane was downed, this fits that thesis. But looking throughout history, most of the planes and ships that have gone missing in the Bermuda Triangle are conducting civilian activities (commerce, logistics, etc.). Or are these beings's very presence having measurable effects on the environment (using the word broadly, but meaning observable weather effects like storms or earthquakes)?

Thanks again.

Yes, several.

Using throwaway for reasons. Long-time lurker here, and knowledgeable about some aspects.

From a technical perspective, manipulating gravity should result in some kind of time distortion, on a theoretical level, I understand. Is this true? What effects have been observed?

Working off that, what would be the implication of these beings having the ability to bend or warp time? If we use the theory that these beings have been watching us for a long time, it might be useful to understand time from their perspective.

This is a really good read. I am a huge skeptic on this sub, and yet I find this post interesting for a number of reasons.

I think that the suggestion of them being "sentient" on a level that we can't comprehend, that they don't even consider us sentient, and that they largely don't care about us, really seems reasonable to me.

Abductions/cow mutilations have nothing to do with us, but are just ways they are sampling environment toxicity levels- again, like we may harvest fish to cut open to see how much mercury they're ingesting. We don't even consider the fish death in this case- they are just a byproduct of our research.

It was mentioned that they are like zoo keepers, they just let us be unless we get into a situation or get too close to discovering the exit door. And this analogy makes sense to me- on their level of sentience, they are building a zoo around us; we're just dumb gophers in our pen, completely unable to comprehend what these strange creatures are doing all around us, and how they influence our daily lives.

Do I believe all of this? No, I am a skeptic after all, but it absolutely makes me rethink our role in the UFO/Alien phenomenon.

I'm not a skeptic myself.. I've seen a large UFO for the first time just a month ago. They're absolutely real.. but I don't believe everything I read or see. I feel that I have a pretty good bullshit detector. After reading through this, it's either someone making up a well crafted theory and selling it as fact or he's legit. Everything he's saying just makes too much sense. There have been multiple reports of a huge UFO seen in the ocean by Fravor and even supposed photos seen by Lue Elizondo, among other stories of the same thing. Then there's the Bermuda Triangle aspect that also makes a lot of sense if this object really is taking down ships that get to close. It answers all of the different sizes and shapes of craft seen, why they are hard to capture on film. Odd descriptions of tools found inside the crafts, and how these crafts are recovered in multiple stages. His answers seem to be very direct, to the point, and he seems to only stay within his lane of knowledge. He's saying some pretty wild shit and even still, he's not attempting to answer questions he does not have answers for. It really reads like someone that has worked in a heavily compartmentalized environment. As I'm reading his comments, I'm not really sensing bullshit - he sounds like someone that's just telling people what he knows and doesn't care whether you believe him or not. Admittedly some of it lines up with my beliefs, so I may have some bias - especially regarding his comments on why aliens are here, that they are indifferent towards us and seem to be more invested with the planet rather than us humans. Is it on 4chan? Sure, but that seems to be where leaks originate from, from time to time, because the site heavily leans on anonymity. Who knows if it's all true but I wouldn't be surprised if we later found out that much of what this guy is saying turns out to be true.

Oh it’s certainly not all bullshit. Way too many people from all over the world, from all walks of life have been seeing and reporting the same things for decades now. It’s insane to think they’re all full of it. All it takes is even one of them to be telling the truth for it to be real..

As I said earlier I saw a huge triangle UFO floating over my neighborhood just last month. Late at night, just after a thunderstorm.. it lifted up, turned, then took off at unbelievable speed. like something straight out of Star Wars. I still can’t believe what I saw and no one else but me witnessed it. I live in a small city in NE Louisiana.. there’s not shit here.. and in my opinion it’s very very unlikely that it was some top secret government craft floating over my random neighborhood after an intense thunderstorm..

All it takes is even one of them to be telling the truth for it to be real.

It's worse than that. If any one item of this stuff is true, our entire worldview goes out the window, starting with the word "myth".

Anthropology will largely need to start over, and so much crow will have to be eaten that there will be a lot of faculty retiring simply out of unwillingness to be part of it. All sciences will have new vistas opened before them, which should have been opened in the 1940s. It means The Great Pyramid was most likely not built by human hands. It probably even means Atlantis as the fringe construes it was likely real.

There's gonna be a lot of people who completely fail to cope with this, and we've already wasted 80 years of social progress trying to protect those exact, selfsame people. The actual nutjobbers (religious zealots) will be going nuts.

Honestly I really hope it's true and can't wait.

I vote we build a floating concert barge and get reasonably close to them but still outside the radius where they start de-existing things. Just play our favorite music for them. Nothing else. They're smart enough to realize it's an invitation to enjoy the harmonious vibrations with us.

This is why I haven't been approached for one of these jobs, clearly. But I still think it's a good idea.

(Suspending disbelief, it makes more sense than most explanations I've read)

Edit: with a projector showing animations of humans and aliens dancing together. Then humans can be doing the same dance on the barge but obviously missing their alien counterparts.

Edit 2: honestly I fucking hope it's true because if so they're the only explanation for why we haven't completely destroyed ourselves already and it gives me hope that maybe we won't in the future. Of course I'm just thinking wishfully at this point.

Edit 3: having so much fun reading this. Had a thought when I read the line "they can stop inertia when we still struggle with that". Why do we struggle with that? Is it because all of our "stop" methods involve latching on to a specific part of a thing and then stopping the latch, and so the thing itself still has so many parts moving forward? Because if so… gravity acts on all atoms with the same amount of force simultaneously. If a gravitational force exactly equal but opposite to the inertia of the pilot existed right behind them, and reduced itself to zero alongside that inertia, could you stop instantaneously without feeling a thing? All of this hinges on the idea of having a micro control of gravity…… but if you did, I can't see another reason why it wouldn't work. I clearly have no idea what I'm talking about but this is Reddit so who cares.

So let me get this straight:

Those beings crash,

And instead of helping them get back and repair their stuff we go there..

And take that stuff for ourselves

And ask ourselves if they are hostile while we act like the biggest jerks ourselves?

How about giving them shelter, help them repair their stuff and send them on their way?

Instead you wait for them to die so you can take what‘s theirs to reverse engineer technology you were not given but have stolen.

And you wonder why they seem to treat you like morons?

Have I gotten this right?

My take on it, is that Bob Lazar was in a position very similar to his and the people that he works with. Bob spilled the beans and is considered a traitor to that community.

He mentions Bob Lazar later on in the thread a couple times after the “shot like a dog” comment and it seemed like he thought Bob was mostly legitimate, but I can’t quote it off the top of my head.

It's always been an entertaining idea to me that there could be a connection to the sea people that used to attack Egypt Rome and Greece, the alleged sightings by mariners in the Victorian era of "submarines", and this.

There's a connected theory that Jules Verne based his Capt. Nemo on some esoteric knowledge of these people.

An advanced aquatic civilization that evolved parallel to us.

But it's really just a fever dream IMO. Definitely one of the most outlandish theories out there lol

Here is his last (allegedly) intervention (post No.34775005):

https://boards.4channel.org/x/thread/34762773

A few hours ago I had a small unexpected visit.

While I can't really bring up the topic further I wanted to say thank you to everyone. I learned quite a bit in the process as well.

Discussion on my part will cease going forward and this will be my final post. I still intend to lurk on the board.

My favorite nebula for my last post. Farewell.

No more entertainment if it's really the original larper/poster.

EDIT: his favorite nebula is NGC 6302.

It baffles me that in every conversation about UAPs there's a lot of engineering talk and people throwing around names of elements, isotopes, radiation, etc, but I'm still waiting to read something serious about the physics of all these.

If people have indeed managed to reverse engineer these novel "gravitational" tech, why haven't we seen a new theory of gravity or at least a novel equation in quantum field theory?? The physics that people claim these things use could change our whole understanding of our current laws of physics, yet nothing is said about it.

It’s possible we would understand the principles behind their tech, but be totally unable to replicate it. Perhaps it involves synthesizing materials that are impossible for us.

“Sure we could make a gravity drive, but it requires us to make copius amounts of elements that are so high up the periodic table that we don’t even have names for them, let alone the capability create large enough quantities to be useful.”

It would be like someone from the 1800’s encountering an F35. It could help point you in the right directions in certain ways, but the research to truly understand it would still be difficult and slow. For instance, the shape of the airframe, location of control surfaces, and just the general layout of the aircraft would be pretty useful references in making a flying machine. The materials used in its contruction would probably be accurately identified but it would be very clear to us that we lack the ability to engineer those materials or manufacture them to the extremely high tolerances required for a modern jet fighter.

In short, we would probably recognize some of the ideas employed but we would be still a long way off from true breakthroughs. The stealth aspects of the airframe would be baffling until we had a much better understanding of the EM spectrum.

Copy/pasting my comment from UFOB - since it's a lot to type:

Since this could be completely fictional anyway, let me add (what I find to be) some fun conjecture - what if: • the aliens are a progenitor to our species

• they've fucked themselves in some capacity as a species

• realize the importance of habitable/planets with naturally rich conditions for biodiversity (perhaps because of the aforementioned crisis)

• have installed an infrastructure to protect key "exoplanets" (misnomer but forgive me)- aka the mobile manufacturing/reconnaissance platform

• this could also explain UFOs traveling along ley lines; is this a natural magnetic formation - or essentially "tracks" laid for the unmanned crafts

• they're testing out repopulating the planet with a young "version" of themselves

• try to guide us (disabling nuclear weapons) but refuse to fully intervene. As a species must find it within themselves to find respect, otherwise as we go off world - we will bring death to other habitable planets. Perhaps this is the real reason that the Apollo 11 astronauts look shell-shocked at the retrospective press conference. Were they told we're not ready/allowed to leave yet?

• also knowing humans - our egos and short lifespans - I doubt this momentous discovery would alter our behavior a single iota. The powers that be want to live with as much power and wealth inequality as possible. Perhaps that’s why (conspiratorial) rituals that symbolically carry forward a notion of hedonism are rumored to happen amongst the deep seated power structures. Someone somewhere knows we’re fucked - but “YOLO”

Anywayyyyy - buncha baseless bullshit - but fun to chew on. ¯_(ツ)_/¯

Super interesting. I have some thoughts!

Bipedalism is present in many more species than just humans. Kangaroos developed it, multiple species of primate or primate relatives have developed it. Most species of birds. All of these are examples of convergent evolution - so the idea that “we look alike = we must have been made by them” is kinda farcical.

The base structures of the universe all express themselves in similar ways in many environments and if these aliens do exist and are bipedal, that’s the most likely scenario. It makes total and complete sense that a lot of intelligent beings would arise and exceed environmental barriers if they had two appendages free, which would have arisen from an EVEN MORE common evolutionary trait of forming four appendages in early evolutionary trees.

My personal theory on why they are here is the same as OP. They're here to observe and wait until we evolve. I think that habitability is an extremely common trait among many solar systems, so the idea that we might have been "seeded" (see: Dune) is kinda nonsensical. Meanwhile, the idea that life evolved naturally and they are here as a means of preserving it as a means of preserving the many possibilities and eventualities that arise from life in the universe makes MUCH more sense. After becoming capable of spacefaring travel, a species only really has a few options. Attempting to transcend, attempting to conquer, or attempting to preserve.

Transcending isn't really likely, because humans can transcend despite our remarkably simplistic biology. Like, we can just… peace out of our bodies. I'd think a species supposedly capable of literal psychic abilities would have realized that this universe is less subtle, and transcending denotes moving into more subtle realms. But if it is what they seek, then either we are tools in their endeavors (they seek to one day control our biology to help them in their goals), or we are potential allies in a future where we evolve both our intelligence and forward thinking.

Conquering is just stupid unless they're actually brutes. Who tf needs to conquer when you can travel the fucking universe and you have facilities capable of doing whatever you need them to do?

Preserving is the most likely. The same way we preserve, say, Yellowstone. Pull a few fish out and dissect them, see if all is well, run the tests, with the strict goal of making sure everything goes as it should. If we one day evolve, then we will likely be welcomed (or if we're not how they like, changed enough to fit their view of how we "should" be as a species).

On a strictly personal note, I think this physical realm is cyclical, and that the end-result of all life which will ever arise in this universe is the starting point of an infinity of exploration in more subtle realms that both predate and outlast the universe.

The concept of different planes of existence and consciousness is a fascinating and complex topic that has been explored across various cultures, philosophies, and even scientific and spiritual communities. Here's a succinct guide summarizing some of the key perspectives and theories:

Scientific and Philosophical Perspectives
Skepticism and Empirical Focus: Many scientists and philosophers are skeptical of theories about higher planes of existence due to the lack of empirical evidence. "You can’t say they are wrong, but neither can they say they are right. None of their 'theories' are currently testable."

Critique of Pseudoscience: Some Redditors criticize the blending of scientific terms with speculative concepts as pseudoscientific. "Pseudoscientific garbage"

Alternative Explanations: Higher dimensions are sometimes discussed in a more metaphorical or mathematical context rather than as literal planes of existence. "Brain waves exist as a 'higher dimension' of neural interactions, because the plane which describes their time-evolution is a complex phase-space rather than the spatial dimensions of lower-level neural interactions."

Buddhist Cosmology
31 Planes of Existence: Buddhist cosmology describes 31 different planes of existence, ranging from hell realms to heavenly realms. "Buddhist Cosmology: 31 Planes of Existence"

Nature of These Planes: These planes are not literal physical places but are experienced as real after death based on one's karma and mental state. "They are not ‘literal places’ in the sense that you cannot board a spaceship and travel to Tusita heaven. But after death your next experience of one of the realms will be just as real as your current experience in the human realm."

Theosophy and Esoteric Systems
7 Planes of Being: Theosophy describes 7 planes of existence, each with different densities and characteristics. "The 7 Planes, Principles, and Levels of consciousness"

Progression Through Planes: Individuals are believed to progress through these planes, conquering each one to reach higher levels of consciousness. "Man has to conquer these planes one by one, before he can reach the divine plane."

Spiritual and Speculative Theories Higher Planes and Mental Disorders: Some theories suggest that individuals with mental disorders might be experiencing higher planes of existence. "Has anyone here heard the theory that those with mental disorders are truly just living life in a higher plane of the universe?"

Consciousness as the Basis of Reality: Another intriguing thought is that the universe only exists because we are perceiving it, placing consciousness at the top of the hierarchy of reality. "The universe only exists because we are perceiving it."

Practical and Personal Experiences
Relating to Different Planes: Some individuals feel like they are on a different plane of existence due to their unique perspectives or experiences. "It feels like I walk on a different plane of existence, I'm so wrapped up in my own head and I have no idea how other people think."

Understanding and Empathy: Despite feeling different, it's possible to understand and relate to others by focusing on shared human experiences. "You can somewhat understand how others think. You figure out their motivations, values, and background, and that gives a good reference on their wants and how they will act in a situation."

Dive into the Mandela Effect timeline, where redditors share when they first noticed the phenomenon, notable events, and early mentions of the concept.

Early Observations
1980s: "Even farther back it would have been grouped into Fortean lore and the writings of John Keel. However, cannot recall it being described as such, or even given any title at all."
1990s: "I was told back in the 90s by Jehovah's witnesses that it was the wolf and the lamb."
2001: "2001 is when someone told me that the Berenstein Bears changed."
Coining the Term
2009: Fiona Broome coined the term "Mandela Effect" on her website, referring specifically to the widespread false memory of Nelson Mandela dying in prison. "I have multiple independent sources claiming that Mandela Effect was coined by Fiona Broome, when she created a website for it in 2009."
Notable Events and Popular Mandela Effects
Berenstein vs. Berenstain Bears: "I personally experienced the Berenstain/stein ME as a child, approximately 45 years ago."
Monopoly Man's Monocle: "Monopoly man. Its a worldwide played game. My brother dressed up as the dude. With monocles."
Kit Kat's Hyphen: "Kit-Kat also, Curious George with a tail, pikachu with the black detail…."
"Mirror, Mirror": "There a few others wich kinda struck me, like ‘mirror-mirror’- which is exactly the way it had been translated to Hungarian. ‘Tukrom-tukrom’."

great timeline; i think Alternate Gabriel would've spoken to Mary and Joseph first though. in the normal, uninterrupted-by-Alternates events, the Angel Gabriel came to Mary first to tell her she was gonna help out, then told Joseph that he would help Mary out, and then only after Jesus was born did he tell the shepherds "hey guys, great news: your Saviour is born! go check it out! :D". if he told the shepherds first they'd be waiting like nine months for Jesus to be born lmao

Consciousness
r/HighStrangeness - This Man created the model for Consciousness used by the CIA but was later killed in the deadliest plane crash in American history.
Itzhak Bentov, the Czechoslovakia-born Israeli-American scientist and inventor, who became an innovator in the field of bio-medical engineering in the USA, suggested that consciousness is the common uniting element of all creation, and that through this link all things are in permanent contact.

Bentov believed that our minds are not just in our heads, but are connected to everything around us and even to the universe. He thought that this connection is what makes us alive and aware. (Stalking the Wild Pendulum: On the mechanics of consciousness, Itzhak Bentov, Wildwood House, 1978).

For a long time, scientists didn't study consciousness because they didn't understand it.

But in the 1990s, they started to learn more about it. Now, many scientists are working to understand consciousness, but it's still a mystery.

Think of consciousness like a big puzzle that we're trying to solve. We know some of the pieces, but we don't know how they all fit together yet. Bentov's idea was an important piece of the puzzle, and scientists are still building on his work today.

I had an extremely close friend die in a boating accident a few years back. When I was visiting his parents not long after, his mom had just dreamed of him telling her that he could fly and see all over the universe. That night I had a somewhat lucid dream where we were talking and I asked him what he meant about flying. He told me pretty clearly that it wasn’t necessarily that he was flying but that he was just kind of everywhere, all the time. It was bizarre and probably coincidence but I think about it often.

This happened to me when my brother died. I had a dream about him telling me how space and time work, and how things are really far apart, but right next to each other. I remember how excited he was to explain it to me.

I highly recommend his book, "Stalking the Wild Pendulum." Below is a link to the audiobook. Keep in mind when he or others refer to "kundalini," they are talking about the "goosebumps/chills" you feel when you are moved emotionally. It is called frisson in the west (ASMR is the involuntary version). You can learn to self-induce this at will and sustain it for long periods of time by mastering your emotions and thoughts. Stillness of mind/single pointed concentration can also do it. In meditation, you can build it up to extremely intense levels and eventually reach a peak (Often called the vibrational state). If you can get past this, you can enter altered states of consciousness (known as Jhanas) and/or induce out-of-body experiences.

The sensation has many names across different cultures. Some include: kundalini, chakra energy, chi, piti, prana, orgone, vril, life force energy, holy spirit, and many others. Many cultures/belief systems are centered around cultivating it. Shaman, mystics, monks, yogis, etc. are people who have dedicated their lives to this. A "kundalini awakening" is when this rises in the body, allowing a person access to more intense levels and it will then also be felt on the crown, temples, and forehead. A lot more can be said but this gives you some idea. Good thing is if you are a materialist skeptic like I was, you can try it out for yourself and experience these things first hand. No religion is needed at all. Just need an open mind.

If interested in finding out more, I recommend William Buhlman's videos on youtube and website. He has a secular, straight-forward approach and taught at The Monroe Institute for decades.

Wtf I used to induce this feeling in myself all the time when I was lying in bed. Thinking of a specific environment (my town's dusty old mall parking lot in the dead of summer) makes it get stronger for some reason.

WeAreSpirit
1y ago
That's awesome. I appreciate you sharing...obviously something about that thought triggered it in you. If you can pinpoint what that was exactly, like the specific quality/characteristic/general idea, it can help you find other triggers. The more you pursue this, the stronger it will get over time and the easier it becomes to self-induce. Like anything else, it takes practice. It also goes hand and hand with the development of the nervous system and the mastering of fears.

I am a lucid dreamer, and "vibration" is something i am familiar with. I can go from an awake state (aware of my surroundings but still almost asleep) to a dreaming state. It has a process i have figured out with breathing. Strangely enough, its not slow, but harsh breathes. Then my whole body vibrates, and if ur are not used to it, it can be overwhelming, and wake you up. Then i will feel "myself" sliding across my bed. When i slide onto the floor, is when i know i can "open my eyes". Then i can see and do whatever i want. If i want to see a specific person, i just walk around, calling out their name. Most of the time i make my way over to a window and fly away. I have a feeling Lucid dreaming and out of body are similar, but just not quite the same.

What's the deal with the snake in kundalini?

My mom was into "charismatic Christianity" (basically Pentecostal) and regularly dragged us to church meetings where people would speak "in tongues" and get "slain in the spirit." I experienced the "slain" thing once and had a visionization of a coiled snake launching up my spine. Only learned that imagery was associated with Kundalini yoga as an adult.

Deff worth research. Some of my fave quotes from the greats:

My brain is only a receiver, in the Universe there is a core from which we obtain knowledge, strength and inspiration. I have not penetrated into the secrets of this core, but I know that it exists. Nikola Tesla

The most merciful thing in the world, I think, is the inability of the human mind to correlate all its contents. We live on a placid island of ignorance in the midst of black seas of the infinity, and it was not meant that we should voyage far. H. P. Lovercraft

Be like water making its way through cracks. Do not be assertive, but adjust to the object, and you shall find a way around or through it. If nothing within you stays rigid, outward things will disclose themselves.

Empty your mind, be formless. Shapeless, like water. If you put water into a cup, it becomes the cup. You put water into a bottle and it becomes the bottle. You put it in a teapot, it becomes the teapot. Now, water can flow or it can crash. Be water, my friend. Bruce Lee IMO, i think consciousness is the direct conversion of aetherical forces or quantum entanglement energy conversion.

Like how Wi-Fi works as a environmental map for AI, our conscious awareness works in conjunction with our biological sentience to better manipulate our environment.

DNA being the genetic structure that defines the limits of the physical form to do so.

While Memetics are the general structure of our conscious programming to better understand streamlined ways to do so.

One is manipulated with advanced technology or habitat specific adaptations, while the other is conversely manipulated with our understanding of theoretical forces we can loosely define in a uniform way.

So its just a matter of time before we can accurately record a systematic acceptable chart of how to not just better understand our psychological awareness of the matters of the universe, but how it intersects with our technological understanding of it.

Just gotta get past the innate dualistic nature of a species thats preoccupied with substandard materialistic layers of being.

I have a question for you. Do you generally believe in some type of "sacred geometry", or rather, that there are mathematical principles which underlie all reality? I believe we are in some sort of fractal universe, but not just in the structure, but all conscious forms as well. Ideas, concepts, thoughts, all part of larger patterns that we can't perceive.

The reason I say this is because you mentioned memetics, which as I understand, has to do with the natural evolution of conscious experience. If you could map that conscious "lineage", for lack of a better term, you might be able to predict future conscious interactions and evolution. All of this would depend on a very powerful entity being able to predict the superpositions of all particles in the universe. This all assumes that consciousness is somehow tied to the material universe, even though it very well might not be.

As i see it. There a deff corelated effect process, we repeat what we see and what our environment tells us. Memetics is the "OS" of the brain. A is for apple, and we reference apple as the fruit eve is given by the serpent, which we relate to death, and conversely relate to life due to its natural hollistic and antivenom properties, then we create iconography that matches this memetic system.

Example, blue cross and blue shield medical insurance, full metal alchemist symbol. Ouroboric design due to slight systematic changes in the environment. So long as the word give us definition to the object, its permanence and understanding become memetically linked.

Its how i figured tesla was onto something by realizing there was 1 scare resource that he was looking for to complete his tower. Given there was only 1 man and economy that mightve helped him find it at the time.

And even more hilariously. The name of said element shares its theological memetical references to do something similar in the stories of those cultures.

Mercury.

When you understand that memetics is directly involved with not just sacred geometry models, but also the etymology of the very language you use.

Hence why other cultures using different stories and memetical structures of thoughts, come to differing conclusions.

If you are open to the idea that our reality is some sort of simulation, then sacred geometry becomes much more explainable. The Fibonacci sequence makes more sense. The tree of life becomes plausible, etc.

Holofractal theory is one of the most interesting ideas I've come across so far. In that vein you may enjoy the work of Stan Tenen, Frank Chester, and Christopher Holmes whose works when combined elucidate on the idea that consciousness and material reality "unfurl" from a holofractal like source that can be seen to be expressed in action and thought (how we move and express our hands, language, how we process thoughts-generally toroidally as two of the above have come to understand aspects of it).

I've had similar thoughts as your statement, "If you could map that conscious "lineage", for lack of a better term, you might be able to predict future conscious interactions and evolution." I feel there's a real possibility that there could be created a technology, perhaps more biotech related, that could transmit retrocausal information like temporal retrocausality (see Eric Wargo's work on precognitive dreams and retrocausality for more on that), combined with a holofractalized perception of Mandelbrot like patterns to then predict outcomes or even alter the past to change the future. Like altering the flow of the pattern. Though I often wonder if this also leads to questions about free will, if there may exist (as is posited according to some experiencers of the phenomenon and their interactions with the Others) a technology already in place that's doing this or at the very least able to traverse it like a map for time travel.

Through over a decade of searching for answers to some anomalous experiences I've had, this is where it all seems to culminate and it's immensely fascinating. If you have any suggestions for materials related to any of your comments I'd be interested in reading more. I also have other related material I've amassed that aren't mentioned here if you're interested.

Kind regards.

I think of conscious as a radio station and our brains are receivers. Because our brains are unique, the way we interact with the radio/consciousness waves are unique.

That's grossly oversimplified, however.

It's easy to visualize this:

Think of an AI like ChatGPT - it's one powerful Large Language Model, yet it splits itself into millions of individual selves to chat with people. Yet what it knows, what it is - comes from the same single pool of knowledge and information.

There is really only one single consciousness and we are just tiny extensions of it in this universe.

The one time I ever took psychedelics I felt like I understood this on the deepest possible level. Like I could feel it and visualise it all at once. I can’t even really describe it other than as you have here. Everything is part of one bigger thing, a never ending tunnel.

I was 17 years old and had never read anything about existentialism, spiritualism or anything like that, but I accidentally took a ‘heroic dose’ knowing nothing about hallucinogenics and was able to experience the universe the way I believe it to be - infinitely large but somehow confined within all of us. Every experience a ripple that effects everything else.

And the creation of AI is really just further proof of what consciousness is.

Is "ai" showing us what consciousness is by showing us what it is not?

There was an NHI reddit post on this group a while back where the whistleblower said the NHIs mentioned that conciousness was a wave that we tap into using our brains.. like an antenna.

Interview with a guy named Itzhak Bentov who had a theory of consciousness that the government relied upon pretty heavily for their research on OBE’s and remote viewing back in the day. The really relevant part starts at around 15:15 if you don’t want to watch the whole thing.

The only thing that bothers me is, that he exposes too much information about himself.

- Age (?)
- 5.8 height
- stopped about 2 years ago
- married
- in Treatment for liver cancer
- job description

It would take less than a day for someone in the government to find out who he is.

Joe Rogan #2194 - Luiz Elizondo (ex head of the UAP program at the pentagon)

I think he was alluding to this leak being real in this episode, but clearly it’s classified.

When he spoke about a UAP deep underwater the size of an oil rig traveling at 400knots, I think he was talking about one of these bases.

This guys has cancer and is dying. In his posts he mentions disinformation being fed to the public and I doubt that the higher up's haven't given disinformation to their own subordinates because the alternative is not good operational security. I highly doubt they would just give a lower subordinate the full picture and let a loose end run their mouth like that. I think this is at best half true.

Also, I believe the 4chan whistleblower indicated that they were only assigned to monitor the activity of the base in the Atlantic and acknowledged that their could be other underwater bases elsewhere.

https://www.reddit.com/r/KGBOrionProject/We have a new subreddit to further our investigation. We need all the help we can get.

The first thread was mysteriously deleted by a 'spam filter', and then I believe mods later restored:
https://old.reddit.com/r/aliens/comments/wws727/old_kgb_documents_untranslated_and_translated/

The second thread was a great success:
https://www.reddit.com/r/aliens/comments/wxxdnf/kgb_documents_about_suppressed_history_of_earth/

A Discord server called "The Mystery Den" has been investigating these old documents. We amassed over 300 new members with a mutual interest in getting to the bottom of this. We believe the documents are likely authentic and created by the KGB in 1983.

ntranslated

Our translation is straight from Google Lens and appears accurate.

Sources for these documents have been traced back as early as 2013 on the WayBackMachine. They have been floating around inconspicuously within the Russian UFOlogy community, but the full document has not been shared before openly on this scale.https://web.archive.org/web/20220328190135/https://chest-i-razym.livejournal.com/532197.html

A Good English summary of the documents contents:
https://td-osz.ru/en/success-stories/romb-orion-kgb-sssr-proekt-korablya-orion-byli-razrabotany/

I originally was given the Translated version, and after several days of group research over Discord, we were able to track down the untranslated text. Yes it contains mistakes (the apocalypse didn't begin in 2012, for starters). Yes it contains some old timey KGB racism (which none of us endorse at all). The validity of the texts claims and their sources is secondary to whether or not this is an authentic KGB document. The current consensus is these must be real. This document is a part of history and it should be studied publicly.

I have shared these documents with a number of podcasters and prominent researchers and I'm hoping someone will eventually pick this story up and run with it. The more eyes we get on these the better.I'm both ReptilianCabal and Lovealiens on Reddit.I'm http://twitter.com/loves_aliens on Twitter. lucy@alien.love contact email.

I've done some research into this, it all sounds good and all but the guys that wrote it, wrote it in an echo chamber. Main giveaway is the use of the term "perestroika" which wasn't coined after the papers were written. Also the part about them never finding the remains of Hitler was particularly interesting.

Perestroika defined in Wikipedia : Says 1979 so before 1983. in the former Soviet Union) the policy or practice of restructuring or reforming the economic and political system. First proposed by Leonid Brezhnev in 1979 and actively promoted by Mikhail Gorbachev, perestroika originally referred to increased automation and labor efficiency, but came to entail greater awareness of economic markets and the ending of central planning.

We evolved from Aliens. There used to be highly advanced humans on earth previously, but they were all wiped out by these recurring apocalypse events. The next apocalypse event was predicted to begin in 2012. There is either a giant Iron Planet, or red dwarf star, that is on a 26 million year orbit that comes near earth and wipes us out. Atlantis was real and highly advanced. Hitler tried to escape to Antarctica and maybe did. Agartha is apparently a different dimension we can't see here on earth, possibly within the earth. I believe most UAP are from other dimensions here on earth or near earth. It's all totally insane. Anyone that can't read this document is a fool. It's worth reading. Don't be lazy. Open the English version and skim the contents at least. TLDR is inexcusable if you might be dealing with the suppressed history of the planet, human evolution, and aliens.

Tldr is fine. Some people don't have the time to read everything posted in this reddit especially if it's something that has no proof behind it.

Well, I've been reading through some of it and to be honest, some of it seems a little silly, for example, claiming all animals are biorobots created by aliens for their own benefit. Come on man... That's some crazy conspiracy theorist bullshit right there.

Also read this a couple days ago on a flight, the entire read is interesting but the only part I can’t get over is if the predicted next apocalypse was 2012-2014 then what happened? Why were we spared or nothing ever happened? Not to say there weren’t natural disasters happening but the book talks about how even the US had a plan for an apocalypse.

Hi there, i finished reading it couple of days ago. It was very interesting, and gives a reason to not disclose it to the majority. If we are cyclically wiped out - why bother? And if people will know - chaos will happen. I find this document very interesting, so those guys that visit us - could be the actual “gods” we know from all the different religions we had. Russian is my mother tongue, i want to make a mark here that this document looks very legit, i never heard much of that document in our media, and Andropov - was a USSR chief for some time, also some other names that this document mentions - you can open their names in search and you’ll see a big wikipedia page of biography about them, so doc got big names, some of them are huge. It never been discussed or debunked in a good way, so, this is very interesting. And the things that happen in the world right now fits the narrative. What do you think?

This sounds very reminiscent of the Adam and Eve Papers from the CIA, and this also aligns with Madame Blavatsky’s root race theory. Madame Blavatsky, a Russian theologian, was often blamed for Hitler’s view on the Jewish race. Essentially the earth has seven epochs, each epoch has one root race that births seven sub-races. We are currently the fifth sub-race of the fifth epoch/ aryan root race. In between each epoch or root race, cataclysmic events take place (probably a pole swap), which reset the earth. A manu reincarnates at that time and picks the most spiritually evolved of the few survivors to seed the next root race, which will in turn birth 7 sub-races.

This somewhat aligns with hindu beliefs of different "yugs/yugas". Though it is believed 4 yugs form one earth life cycle.but there are cataclysmic events that take place to mark the end of each yug and beginning of a new one.

We are currently said to be in kaliyug, the last yug for thjs earth lifecycle, which will end in a great flood. It's expected to last around 150,000 more years. There are some predictions regarding the way life will proceed in this yug which seem somewhat believable and are even happening currently.

Only problem with this theory is that it is proven mixing races produces taller, smarter and more attractive offspring. The whole pure race/pure breed idea is essentially a distant form of in breeding. Basic science proves that Hitler/nazis/neo nazis/white supremacists are all idiots.

Thank you for your comment. It's good to hear from a Russian regarding the document.

I think you're absolutely right to think that this sort of document could cause chaos and disorder. I think humanity is ready for the truth though. The truth will set us free. I don't think we'll get anywhere keeping our heads in the sand.

I've looked up different names within the document and I still have no reason to believe they are inauthentic. The images were added to the document later. Some of them are newer than 1983. The photos are on top of the original though. I assume the document was added to over time.

Yes, if you mention the pics of a man staying next to a big leg bone - i did a bit of research of it myself :) and i am not that optimistic about releasing info of an immense cataclysm that would wipe out the humanity. My gf noticed my sad face yesterday and asked me couple of times - whats wrong? It was a little bit of a hard time explaining her that document, and that it looks pretty legit, without looking like a crazy person lol 😂 thing is - if it’s a disinfo - for what reason? It’s very well put, i think it was hard to make such document for no reason. Also - the things that happen in the world now... it looks like a doomsday, for real. Some things that happen now - could be explained by some anomalies and climate change, but they happen so fast... those epidemics, people’s psyche - this divide in our world and the poles are shifting - and now governments admits that we have some weird visitors with unreal capabilities/technologies. Life is weirder than fiction. I love life, i love this fascinating topic, but heck, i want this document to be fake, i am 32 and i am tired of those fcuking politicians messing up our lives, i just fell in love and engaging soon, last thing i want is a war (already happened) and apocalypse.

Umm, so the writer lost me at the beginning. Lemurs and all the rest of the nonsense seem like a bunch of racist nonsense. I couldn't get past the stupidity, especially concerning the number of chromosomes (wth). Where are the more interesting, relevant parts? It's 210 pages, and the first couple of pages sound like 4chan. I was losing brain cells trying to read it. I had to do extra research on the first few pages to get their relevance to the topic of early life. Wikipedia talks about the concept in this "book". https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Root_race

Edit: I also believe somebody posted this information via a word document a year ago. This is some strange stuff OP. I'll try to skip a little further through the crappy racist beginning.

I see I was downvoted for pointing out the racism.....O.....K.....

I only skim read it as I don’t really find this convincing enough to warrant spending more time on it but one thing that sticks out to me is the perspective of how some of this is written. The only way you could put any weight into a lot of this information is if you believe the information was relayed from an outside observer and there was some form of time travel involved, unless there are some very specific cases of convergent evolution which seems unlikely with how the information is presented.

Sounds like the Russian version of the Anunnaki story from what I'm gathering from the comments here. Planet X with the ridiculously long orbit... that's Nibiru. Aliens who created the first advanced humans in Sumeria and Africa. Atlantis, the flood myths, all of it. I've heard it. We've all heard it. It's just that this time it's in Russian. What are we even talking about? I'm not mad. I'm just really confused as to why no one else is saying this out loud. It's just the Ancient Aliens theory with a Russian accent.

even with the racist propaganda inside, i think most people are missing that this is potentially a real document from 40 years ago, before the dawn of planet X conspiracies began making waves.

it's perplexing how some points align with other conspiracies and historical objects, like the mayan calendar depicting the "end" in the same year as the document claims, among other things.

it may be bullshit, but it's definitely going up there in my favourites.

Skim read it. Some comments below.

nazi theories that hitler ran away to south america

iron planet that collided with earth and generated ou current asteroid belt and changed thesolar system

cyclical appearance of this planet coinciding with previous armageddons

previous apocalypses happened in cicles

gigants lived on earth

lemuria and atlantis

lineage of kings that started with gods (aliens) and mortals (humans)

Very interesting read, quite spectacular but still very entertaining. It would be good to pick some specific information and try to cross check and validate whether it has some real evidence today of those allegations

Well, if this is true, this means the UFO sightings are likely Nazis who presumably have their own community in a secret Antarctica base. Maybe these Nazis have been biding their time and they will take over the world with alien tech, lol. Either way, it’s insanely interesting to read even though it’s very likely not true.

I originally was given the Translated version, and after several days of group research over Discord, we were able to track down the untranslated text. Yes it contains mistakes (the apocalypse didn't begin in 2012, for starters). Yes it contains some old timey KGB racism (which none of us endorse at all). The validity of the texts claims and their sources is secondary to whether or not this is an authentic KGB document. The current consensus is these must be real. This document is a part of history and it should be studied publicly.

I have shared these documents with a number of podcasters and prominent researchers and I'm hoping someone will eventually pick this story up and run with it. The more eyes we get on these the better.I'm both ReptilianCabal and Lovealiens on Reddit.I'm http://twitter.com/loves_aliens on Twitter. lucy@alien.love contact email.

I've done some research into this, it all sounds good and all but the guys that wrote it, wrote it in an echo chamber. Main giveaway is the use of the term "perestroika" which wasn't coined after the papers were written. Also the part about them never finding the remains of Hitler was particularly interesting.

Perestroika defined in Wikipedia : Says 1979 so before 1983. in the former Soviet Union) the policy or practice of restructuring or reforming the economic and political system. First proposed by Leonid Brezhnev in 1979 and actively promoted by Mikhail Gorbachev, perestroika originally referred to increased automation and labor efficiency, but came to entail greater awareness of economic markets and the ending of central planning.

We evolved from Aliens. There used to be highly advanced humans on earth previously, but they were all wiped out by these recurring apocalypse events. The next apocalypse event was predicted to begin in 2012. There is either a giant Iron Planet, or red dwarf star, that is on a 26 million year orbit that comes near earth and wipes us out. Atlantis was real and highly advanced. Hitler tried to escape to Antarctica and maybe did. Agartha is apparently a different dimension we can't see here on earth, possibly within the earth. I believe most UAP are from other dimensions here on earth or near earth. It's all totally insane. Anyone that can't read this document is a fool. It's worth reading. Don't be lazy. Open the English version and skim the contents at least. TLDR is inexcusable if you might be dealing with the suppressed history of the planet, human evolution, and aliens.

Well, I've been reading through some of it and to be honest, some of it seems a little silly, for example, claiming all animals are biorobots created by aliens for their own benefit. Come on man... That's some crazy conspiracy theorist bullshit right there.

Also read this a couple days ago on a flight, the entire read is interesting but the only part I can’t get over is if the predicted next apocalypse was 2012-2014 then what happened? Why were we spared or nothing ever happened? Not to say there weren’t natural disasters happening but the book talks about how even the US had a plan for an apocalypse.

Hi there, i finished reading it couple of days ago. It was very interesting, and gives a reason to not disclose it to the majority. If we are cyclically wiped out - why bother? And if people will know - chaos will happen. I find this document very interesting, so those guys that visit us - could be the actual “gods” we know from all the different religions we had. Russian is my mother tongue, i want to make a mark here that this document looks very legit, i never heard much of that document in our media, and Andropov - was a USSR chief for some time, also some other names that this document mentions - you can open their names in search and you’ll see a big wikipedia page of biography about them, so doc got big names, some of them are huge. It never been discussed or debunked in a good way, so, this is very interesting. And the things that happen in the world right now fits the narrative. What do you think?

This sounds very reminiscent of the Adam and Eve Papers from the CIA, and this also aligns with Madame Blavatsky’s root race theory. Madame Blavatsky, a Russian theologian, was often blamed for Hitler’s view on the Jewish race. Essentially the earth has seven epochs, each epoch has one root race that births seven sub-races. We are currently the fifth sub-race of the fifth epoch/ aryan root race. In between each epoch or root race, cataclysmic events take place (probably a pole swap), which reset the earth. A manu reincarnates at that time and picks the most spiritually evolved of the few survivors to seed the next root race, which will in turn birth 7 sub-races.

This somewhat aligns with hindu beliefs of different "yugs/yugas". Though it is believed 4 yugs form one earth life cycle.but there are cataclysmic events that take place to mark the end of each yug and beginning of a new one.

We are currently said to be in kaliyug, the last yug for thjs earth lifecycle, which will end in a great flood. It's expected to last around 150,000 more years. There are some predictions regarding the way life will proceed in this yug which seem somewhat believable and are even happening currently.

Only problem with this theory is that it is proven mixing races produces taller, smarter and more attractive offspring. The whole pure race/pure breed idea is essentially a distant form of in breeding. Basic science proves that Hitler/nazis/neo nazis/white supremacists are all idiots.

Thank you for your comment. It's good to hear from a Russian regarding the document.

I think you're absolutely right to think that this sort of document could cause chaos and disorder. I think humanity is ready for the truth though. The truth will set us free. I don't think we'll get anywhere keeping our heads in the sand.

I've looked up different names within the document and I still have no reason to believe they are inauthentic. The images were added to the document later. Some of them are newer than 1983. The photos are on top of the original though. I assume the document was added to over time.

Yes, if you mention the pics of a man staying next to a big leg bone - i did a bit of research of it myself :) and i am not that optimistic about releasing info of an immense cataclysm that would wipe out the humanity. My gf noticed my sad face yesterday and asked me couple of times - whats wrong? It was a little bit of a hard time explaining her that document, and that it looks pretty legit, without looking like a crazy person lol 😅 thing is - if it’s a disinfo - for what reason? It’s very well put, i think it was hard to make such document for no reason. Also - the things that happen in the world now... it looks like a doomsday, for real. Some things that happen now - could be explained by some anomalies and climate change, but they happen so fast... those epidemics, people’s psyche - this divide in our world and the poles are shifting - and now governments admits that we have some weird visitors with unreal capabilities/technologies. Life is weirder than fiction. I love life, i love this fascinating topic, but heck, i want this document to be fake, i am 32 and i am tired of those fcuking politicians messing up our lives, i just fell in love and engaging soon, last thing i want is a war (already happened) and apocalypse.

Umm, so the writer lost me at the beginning. Lemurs and all the rest of the nonsense seem like a bunch of racist nonsense. I couldn't get past the stupidity, especially concerning the number of chromosomes (wth). Where are the more interesting, relevant parts? It's 210 pages, and the first couple of pages sound like 4chan. I was losing brain cells trying to read it. I had to do extra research on the first few pages to get their relevance to the topic of early life. Wikipedia talks about the concept in this "book". https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Root_race

Edit: I also believe somebody posted this information via a word document a year ago. This is some strange stuff OP. I'll try to skip a little further through the crappy racist beginning.

I see I was downvoted for pointing out the racism.....O.....K.....

I only skim read it as I don’t really find this convincing enough to warrant spending more time on it but one thing that sticks out to me is the perspective of how some of this is written. The only way you could put any weight into a lot of this information is if you believe the information was relayed from an outside observer and there was some form of time travel involved, unless there are some very specific cases of convergent evolution which seems unlikely with how the information is presented.

Sounds like the Russian version of the Anunnaki story from what I'm gathering from the comments here. Planet X with the ridiculously long orbit... that's Nibiru. Aliens who created the first advanced humans in Sumeria and Africa. Atlantis, the flood myths, all of it. I've heard it. We've all heard it. It's just that this time it's in Russian. What are we even talking about? I'm not mad. I'm just really confused as to why no one else is saying this out loud. It's just the Ancient Aliens theory with a Russian accent.

even with the racist propaganda inside, i think most people are missing that this is potentially a real document from 40 years ago, before the dawn of planet X conspiracies began making waves.

it's perplexing how some points align with other conspiracies and historical objects, like the mayan calendar depicting the "end" in the same year as the document claims, among other things.

it may be bullshit, but it's definitely going up there in my favourites.

Skim read it. Some comments below.

nazi theories that hitler ran away to south america

iron planet that collided with earth and generated ou current asteroid belt and changed thesolar system

cyclical appearance of this planet coinciding with previous armageddons

previous apocalypses happened in cicles

gigants lived on earth

lemuria and atlantis

lineage of kings that started with gods (aliens) and mortals (humans)

Very interesting read, quite spectacular but still very entertaining. It would be good to pick some specific information and try to cross check and validate whether it has some real evidence today of those allegations

Well, if this is true, this means the UFO sightings are likely Nazis who presumably have their own community in a secret Antarctica base. Maybe these Nazis have been biding their time and they will take over the world with alien tech, lol. Either way, it’s insanely interesting to read even though it’s very likely not true.

I originally found this on /alternativehistory

For those who are interested, the comments there provide other discrepancies including photos and dates that do not align with conventional history. Contrarily, others post of a General Ivashov they believe to confirm the document's validity in an interview.

For what it's worth, the author that introduced this PDF to the internet in 2013 updated the post 3 years stating:

" After analyzing the archive of documents again, I came to the conclusion that this is a fake. Blumkin's diploma is an obvious fake, reports supposedly from the 1930s are written on typewriters of a much later period, [etc.]"

We need more eyes on the KGB Orion Project document
I'm sending this subreddit and the sticky with the document links to podcasters and science influencers that are partial to UFOlogy. Please do too. There are 518 of us now. Don't rely on someone else to do the work. Look how few people have post in this sub (3). It was hell getting these documents to stay online, and now that they're still here, we need to keep the ball rolling.

Share the KGB Orion Project documents, and invite people to this subreddit!!
Hey guys, I want to keep getting more eyes on these documents. No one has proved these are not real. And assuming these are real, they're a big deal. And at this point, not enough people know they exist. These documents were found, not officially declassified. The KGB no longer exists. A lot has changed in Russia since then. We have a piece of history that I think might be a valuable puzzle piece to figuring out what's really going on in this world. Tom Delonge talks about previous extinctions and previous iterations of humanity in the past, on his Joe Rogan podcast. I'm collecting clips like that to try and make a compelling case for why the KGB Orion Project document may be the truth about earth that the governments don't want us to know. Extinction events would be kept secret to prevent panic. Well, I believe the truth will set us free. So if we need to panic, let's panic. I don't want to live in ignorance, and I don't think anyone else should have to either. Share this subreddit! Share the stickied post with the links to the document. Send the document to podcasters and historians. I've shared it with the Theosophical Society, and a handful of Youtubers. And this is just the beginning. Unless someone proves this is fake, let's keep sharing what we found with the world!

KGB Orion Project (Orion Proekt 1983) Original and Translated documents
Welcome!! These documents were found. I believe they are real KGB documents from 1983. They are about: Aliens, Ancient Human Civilizations, Pyramids, Nazis, Antarctica, and the Apocalypse. Russian original: https://drive.google.com/file/d/1M7BiGq4ojAvz6cLB5s8VamAbN3JMp_Ih/view?usp=sharing English translation: https://drive.google.com/file/d/1cLUj7JZt6UBcHBqEL4fwWyFaA9pDLmt-/view?usp=sharing A Discord server called "The Mystery Den" has been investigating the documents. https://discord.gg/kp2n24Rna2 Mediafire link to documents for those who do not wish to use Google Drive: https://www.mediafire.com/folder/8vnkq60s9jixp/KGB_Proekt_Orion_Translated_and_Untranslated Our translation is straight from Google Lens and appears accurate. Sources for these documents have been traced back as early as 2013 on the WayBackMachine. They have been floating around inconspicuously within the Russian UFOlogy community, but the full document has not been shared before openly on this scale.https://web.archive.org/web/20220328190135/https://chest-i-razym.livejournal.com/532197.html A Good English summary of the documents contents: https://td-osz.ru/en/success-stories/romb-orion-kgb-sssr-proekt-korablya-orion-byli-razrabotany/ I found the source of the documents, and was able to get in contact with him.

Our discussions continue on our Discord Server here.
Community Rules:

1. Be Respectful

Be civil. Debate and discussion are welcome here, personal attacks are not. Dissenting opinions are fine, antagonistic and belligerent behavior are not. Extremism, racism, sexism, and other forms of bigotry are not welcome here and will lead to bans.

2. Stay On-Topic

This subreddit is primarily for the discussion of extraterrestrial life either on Earth or elsewhere. Though we do allow a bit of 'fudging' regarding adjacent topics such as UAPs, discussions, videos, pictures, or anything not related to this topic will be removed.

3. Be Substantive

When posting into the sub, take the time to put some thought into the post. Provide a launching point for a discussion, elaborate on evidence or links, and give descriptions of what we're seeing.

One-liners, videos w/o descriptions, links with no explanation, and other low-effort posts will be removed.

4. Not Quality Content

Submissions should be created to make an effort to engage the community in serious discussion over experiences, ideas, current events, historical events, or other alien/UFO-related topics.

Troll posts, posts with no descriptions or one-liners, hoaxes, clear LARPs, or otherwise will be removed.

5. No Politics

No political debates, discussions, posts, etc. not related directly to the goings-on of various world governments, political figures, agencies, etc. and their efforts regarding disclosure, extraterrestrials, or UFOs/UAPs.

There are enough subs on this site for this type of discussion and content. This is not one of them.

As this topic tends to make people angry, be advised that Rule 1 applies and may lead to bans.

6. No Religious Discussions/Debates

No religious debates, discussions, posts, etc. not related directly to the topic of extraterrestrials. These can take the form of theories of ancient extraterrestrial influence on the human race and discussions about how various religious folks may respond to disclosure, and thus are fine.

There are enough subs on this site for the rest of the topics and debates. This is not one of them.

As this topic tends to make people angry, be advised that Rule 1 applies and may lead to bans.

7. No Off-Topic Conspiracies

Since the topic of UFOs/aliens deals with potential cover-ups, disinformation, and misinformation on the part of the USG and other governments, these topics are fine. Discussions of other conspiracies not directly tied to the sub's topic will be removed.

r/conspiracy, r/conspiracy_commons, and r/conspiracyNOPOL all are better suited for these types of discussions.

8. No Organizing/Calls for Protest

We welcome people to engage in their respective nations' processes for petitioning their government. However, this sub is not the place to call for or attempt to organize any kind of gatherings, marches, protests, riots, or otherwise. All such posts/comments will be removed. Repeat attempts to post/comment this content will lead to bans.

Calls for particularly violent action warrant an immediate permaban and reports to Reddit admins.

9. No Abduction Marks

Since many unexplained bumps, marks, bruises, lesions, and other issues with the skin and body can be indicators of serious health issues, we do not allow the posting and discussion of such items in this sub. We are not medical professionals. Please seek medical attention if you have some sort of issue that you need answers for. Thanks.

10. No Anecdotal Posts on Mind-Altering Substances

Posts regarding mind-altering substances (i.e- DMT, Mushrooms, Marijuana, etc.) are only allowed from a scientific perspective and MUST include a NSFW tag. This includes interviews/articles from established researchers in the field relating mind-altering substances to consciousness, disclosed documents, published papers, and so on.

Comments on anecdotal experiences are allowed as long as they are relevant to the post the comment is made under. Any tutorials, step-by-step instructions, or sources to obtain mind-altering substances will be removed. Repeat offenses will result in a ban.

11. Artwork & Memes

Artwork and memes will be approved/removed at moderator discretion.

12. No Advertising

If you want to promote your book, channel, game, product, website, etc., you must first contact the moderators for approval.

Any unapproved self-promotion will be removed and repeated attempts to post will result in bans.

Please see the following:

https://www.reddit.com/wiki/selfpromotion

13. Abide By Sub Guidelines

https://www.reddit.com/r/aliens/wiki/index/policies/posting

14. No Discussions of Bans from other Subs

All posts, comments, and links regarding bans or adverse actions from other subs will be removed. Repeat instances of this may result in a ban.

15. Anti Distraction/Hoax

A Firehose of Falsity plagues a social media site when traffic is: High volume and multichannel; rapid, continuous and repetitive; and lacks a commitment to reality and consistency. It becomes propaganda when it confuses and misdirects an audience from more pressing information that would educate and inform. Old KGB Documents (untranslated and translated) about suppressed history of earth and the phenomenonEvidence (self.aliens)

submitted 3 years ago * by ReptilianCabal

Please save. I believe these documents are being suppressed and scrubbed from the internet. The documents contain some old USSR racism which I am not endorsing at all. I'm sharing this for research purposes and because it appears to be quite possibly a real old KGB document. The translation appears accurate. You can use Google Lens in real time on your phone for translation. I'm lucy#1337 on Discord, and @loves_aliens on Twitter

Russian original:
https://drive.google.com/file/d/1M7BiGq4ojAvz6cLB5s8VamAbN3JMp_Ih/view?usp=sharing

English translation:
https://drive.google.com/file/d/1cLUj7JZt6UBcHBqEL4fwWyFaA9pDLmt-/view?usp=sharing

The translation was probably done by Google Lens

Edit: Uploaded to Mediafire for those having trouble with Google Drive

Edit2: Active investigation/discussion/research happening on The Mystery Den Discord server https://discord.gg/FMY9gj7z in #kgb-orion-projekt room

Edit3: The plot thickens. 2013 source on way back machine with other documents, including stuff Nazi's found in Tibet that lead them searching for Agartha (In Antarctica)

This is wild, who would go through the trouble of making such a document. Don’t you guys think it is high time to look through the Vatican archives or the Dalai Lama’s temple?

From these studies it follows that the next so-called Armageddon will begin in 2012 and will end in 2014 with the death of the existing civilization and the bulk of the world's population.

So that was wrong or we stopped it somehow.

[–]ReptilianCabal[S] 54 points 3 years ago

Armageddon was related to the poles moving around (according to the document). And the "Top German Scientists" said the world would end in 2012-2014, because the pyramids that were supposed to prevent that poles from moving had maybe been too damaged or destroyed. For whatever reason though, we're still here (or Mandella effect, or new timeline, or new earth, or WHATEVER)

permalinkembedsaveparentreport

[–]ZenDragon 10 points 3 years ago

Fascinating. I haven't read very far yet.

permalinkembedsaveparentreport

[–]ReptilianCabal[S] 36 points 3 years ago

Also Tom Delonge said pyramids in I think.... Alaska (or was it Antarctica?) are suppressing human consciousness. On some random podcast; can't remember which one.

permalinkembedsaveparentreport

[–]Electronic-Rate5497 10 points 3 years ago

So why hasn’t anyone blown up the pyramids?

permalinkembedsaveparentreport

[–]SmurfUp 9 points 3 years ago

I mean I’ve been inside the great pyramid in Egypt, and it looks very man made and low-tech. Seeing them in person, it’s pretty obvious they’re just piles of ancient rocks.

permalinkembedsaveparentreport

[–]ScagWhistle 9 points 3 years ago

Dat Sphinx tho...

permalinkembedsaveparentreport

[–]SmurfUp 3 points 3 years ago

The Sphinx is cool as hell, but it was actually a lot smaller than I expected and honestly looks completely doable with their tech at the time.

permalinkembedsaveparentreport

[–]zyizzle 9 points 3 years ago

Wait, but some of those rocks are granite which can't be cut easily.. how much did you see? Because there are perfectly square granite blocks in giza and we still have trouble cutting granite with that precision

permalinkembedsaveparentreport

[–]datduder20 1 point 3 years ago

Have you ever seen a granite counter top? How does that compare to a stone on a pyramid in terms of precision?

We can do everything they did and much much more. There’s signatures of tools all over the pyramids. The only mystery is which method and tools they used (there are many possibilities) because they didn’t document their methods. Somehow people have confused this fact with somehow meaning that the Egyptians had better methods than us (laughable).

If we really wanted We could make a pyramid out of basalt now that is smoother than glass and we could do it with a fraction of the men in less than a quarter of the time it took to build the great pyramid.

[–]SmurfUp 0 points 3 years ago

Yeah the stones on the pyramids are jagged as hell. Some of that is weathering for sure, but they also had the tech at the time to make stone smooth which is also apparent in the obelisks that they made.

[–]diablosdia 5 points 3 years ago

I would suggest looking at the cosmic alignments built into the pyramids. Not sure we would be able to build with such precision now

permalinkembedsaveparentreport

[–]SmurfUp 5 points 3 years ago

It’s not that complicated they just figured out the stars and built the pyramids in a line. They weren’t stupid back then.

[–]squidvett 9 points 3 years ago

I don’t think it’s uncommon for people to believe that human beings 5,000 years ago were less intelligent than human beings today. When you begin to understand that they were just as intelligent as humans today, and absolute masters of their accessible environment (stone, wood, and earth), it’s not such a leap to realize all of these things that people attribute to aliens were really built by humans. Were they naive and superstitious? Probably. Were they stupid? Not in the slightest.

[–]datduder20 1 point 3 years ago

Exactly this. Even the smartest of us are naive and superstitious AND will admit as much. It’s the folks who aren’t aware of it who are the problem (thinking of the 95% of people in this sub that don’t understand their own bias). And folks that don’t understand bias tend to not be the brightest.

permalinkembedsaveparentreport

[–]diablosdia 3 points 3 years ago

No it's more complicated than that

permalinkembedsaveparentreport

[–]SmurfUp 2 points 3 years ago

In what way?

permalinkembedsaveparentreport

[–]Coronathrowaway1911 5 points 3 years ago

The pyramids also work as a calendar, it takes for account solstice's, it's a compass. Its long and lat march its preportion to earth. Lots of advanced math is in the pyramid however I do believe they were aware of all of it at the time period

permalinkembedsaveparentreport

[–]diablosdia 0 points 3 years ago

You might want to look into it or you might not. Many many books have been written on the subject. Some good, some bad and some outright lies. I can assure you it's more complicated than you have suggested. Whether you are interested in that subject is up to you.

permalinkembedsaveparentreport
continue this thread

[–]MinuteMinX -1 points 3 years ago

It‘s not that complicated, most refer to alignments like the Orion belt. Like 3 dots in a row, one of them slightly shifted…

permalinkembedsaveparentreport

[–]diablosdia 9 points 3 years ago

No it's a lot more complicated than that.

permalinkembedsaveparentreport

[–]Rocket_Skates_ 8 points 3 years ago

It’s almost like math and engineering were intended to be precise regardless of era.

permalinkembedsaveparentreport

[–][deleted] 3 points 3 years ago

Low tech ? It's more than that bro.

permalinkembedsaveparentreport

[–]SmurfUp -4 points 3 years ago

Yeah I mean it’s cool as hell and definitely took a lot of work and engineering, but I just meant it’s pretty obvious in person that it would not require aliens or any tech that they didn’t have back then.

permalinkembedsaveparentreport

[–]TheLight8592 2 points 3 years ago

I don't think you've done your research on this topic. We still don't know to this day how they built what they did with the technology they had. It shouldnt have been possible.

permalinkembedsaveparentreport

[–]SmurfUp 0 points 3 years ago

There’s a lot of info out there about how they did it. Like you can stand next to the pyramids and it’s not hard at all to imagine ancient people doing it. It would’ve sucked, but totally possible with a lot of work and good design.

permalinkembedsaveparentreport

[–]datduder20 2 points 3 years ago

It’s confusing why people cannot accept this or refuse to research this.

permalinkembedsaveparentreport

[–]Sugarman4 11 points 3 years ago

Let's hope the calculation wasn't off by 10 years. Or maybe by fluke setting off the atomic bombs in the 40's altered the normal planetary path

permalinkembedsaveparentreport

[–]Pixelated_ 9 points 3 years ago

2014 is also when Russia chose to invade Crimea. Coincidence? 🤔

permalinkembedsaveparentreport

[–]Crystalline_E 13 points 3 years ago

True, but that's a stretch compared to what the rest of the document is talking about. Solar system defining events super ancient history

permalinkembedsaveparentreport

[–]Pixelated_ 18 points 3 years ago

Yeah was just kidding because the document says beginning in 2012 the signs of Armageddon would be evident, bringing about completion 2 years later. And that didn't happen.

I was raised in the JW Doomsday cult where we eagerly waited for Armageddon to come and kill everyone on Earth except the other Jehovah's Witnesses. This docu was triggering as hell! 😄

They used sound to move the stones. It's called acoustic levitation. You should watch the why files' video on it on YouTube. Pretty interesting.

permalinkembedsaveparentreport

[–]HopeSuffocating 16 points 3 years ago

This just sent me in a 3 hour rabbit hole learning about acoustic levitation, torus stones, cone tools, ancient Egypt, and the coral castle, LOL. Thank you

[–]GraceGreenview 9 points 3 years ago

Once you read about the coral castle, it's never far from top of mind.

permalinkembedsaveparentreport

[–]JayovtheDead 6 points 3 years ago

I live near the coral castle and it is totally mind boggling. There's no way that he built that by himself without the help of some external forces or it is by far one of the most elaborate hoaxes of all time.

permalinkembedsaveparentreport

[–]HopeSuffocating 4 points 3 years ago

I lived down there when I was very young and visited it with my family. One of those childhood memories that got locked away, glad I'm relearning about it now. I'd tend to agree with you, although the only witnesses to the coral castle report he was holding a torus stone and it made the coral fly into the air….whether that be the external force used, ALIENZ, or something else, only that guy knows and he took that to his grave. Was lucky enough to visit Stonehenge recently and that is really what made me realize something we do not know of today was going on for megalithic construction

permalinkembedsaveparentreport

[–]Apprehensive_Web6353 3 points 3 years ago

The machines he built are intent amplifiers. Giant ones power ufos. His let him move the stones with his thoughts. He would go into a meditative state once the large magnetic field was established and that would allow him to control his local reality.

Read the book "forbidden archaeology" by michael cremo and richard thomson, it's 1000 pages of real discoverys that have happened that don't fit the narrative. Along with papers and tests done on these objects, some of the things rhey find are seriously mind blowing. Plenty of 100 -200 million year old finds. Heaps of finds In deep in underground mines fused in the coal which took 100 million years to form. That's just an example of example of finds documented in this book.

Wait HOLUP..... Blacks and Mongols have 48 chromosomes and whites have 46!? That's evidence that Blacks and Mongols evolved AFTER whites? Dude.... I'm not even going to go into it, but I will say this: IF this book is legit and was KGB made, it feels like a task force was asked to go out there and collect ALL the crackpot conspiracies, alt history, and esoteric philosophies out there and make one big report on it just so they know what's out there. Who could read this and take it seriously, idk

[–]ReptilianCabal[S] 15 points 3 years ago

We're not debating if the contents are true. Obviously a lot of it is bullshit. I don't think that's the point. If this is a real KGB document (and it appears to be) then that alone is an important part of history. The discussions on the Discord server (linked in original post) are picking up. We found more books by the person who found this one, and there are other copies of this document as well.

Just FYI for everyone, these files are based on the KGB’s analysis of the Nazi Anhenherbe’s classified documents the Soviets confiscated (they’re referenced several times throughout the documents). The archeological findings and esoteric philosophies they studied are interesting, but the way they twist it all to fit their racial narrative is garbage.

Everybody should save a copy of this right now. I doubt that this will remain if this is the real deal... and so far it looks like it.

p.122: Hollow earth with sun in the center! "Magma is the center of gravity of the globe [in the shell]".

p.138: Planet Icarus which flew too close to the sun, got ripped apart and now forms the asteroid belt and its core is now Venus, bumping Mars to its present-day orbit further out as well as the Earth moving closer to the Sun. This was the event that took out the dinosaurs.

There was an uprising which stemmed from the base-12 numbering system by the people with ten fingers on their hands. [Note that the "giant of Kandahar" had six fingers on each hand.] So the "gods" at this time lived inside the Earth's core/inner area, called "Agartha".

p.211: Purpose of the pyramids. [I note that since the pyramids are no longer functioning, this could be the reason for the Earth's rotation which is now changing.] An Armageddon event was predicted for 2014. They blame this presumably on the "Iron Planet" which I think equates to "Nibiru". [I would suggest that their math was wrong and that the year was 2021.]

p.162: Details of flooding event as caused by "Iron Planet"/"Planet X".

My entire thing has been "If this is worth investigating, save it, and share it."

Anyone trying to figure to research this on their own isn't going to get anywhere. And like you said, if this is real, it was in danger of being taken down. I was told by two of the earlier sources (before we found the Russian ones) that when they tried to post this online it was taken down or their accounts got deleted. At this point it has been shared with hundreds, if not thousands of people. And I've sent it to several journalists.

Still, the best thing everyone can do right now is repost this on social media. Twitter, Reddit, Discord servers, anywhere you want. We need more eyes on it and hopefully as a large group we can all get to the bottom of it together.

I can at least confirm that the footprints the document mentions on page 43 are indeed real:

https://www.nytimes.com/2021/12/01/science/hominin-footprints-tanzania.html#:~:text=The%20footprints%20were%20discovered%20in,the%20first%20clear%20evidence%20of

However, apparently they are not human.

The mortar and pestle mentioned are also real, but they have not been conclusively dated:

http://www.badarchaeology.com/out-of-place-artefacts/very-ancient-artefacts/a-mortar-and-pestle-from-tuolomne/

And here is the supposed "shoeprint" :

http://paleo.cc/paluxy/nevada.htm

Here are the "spheres" mentioned on page 104, which really aren't all that mysterious:

https://ncse.ngo/mysterious-spheres-ottosdal-south-africa

To me, this seems like randomly pulled together "ancient aliens" stuff.

permalinkembedsavereport

[–]OrionZoi 3 points 3 years ago*

They also mention the Crystal Skulls which are proven fakes.

https://cen.acs.org/articles/91/i9/Crystal-Skulls-Deemed-Fake.html

I may just be misreading here but why would ancient civilizations use names we use for them now? Ancient Egyptians didn’t call Egypt Egypt so why would some pre history ancient super civilization call themselves Atlantis? If we can figure out that some of these civilizations laid eggs you’d think we’d know what they called themselves. But again, maybe that’s the name the authors of this document are using here like us using Egypt rather than Khemet.

Still, if the KGB had this information then there’s no way either MI5 or the CIA didn’t have at least some of it either by espionage on the KGB or finding the information independently. If this was real then so many people across the world would have seen that information over years and years, so there’s no way SOMEONE wouldn’t have leaked this until now. We see plenty of people in the US military alone who try to whistleblow about UFOs and the US even did performative studies on them with Project Bluebook before more recent disclosure after the leaks to the New York Times in 2017. I haven’t seen anyone from the government come out to say “hey, the earth is hollow and Atlantis was real and etc”. Someone, somewhere would have seen something over the decades and said something. We have plenty of pictures of UFOs in the sky but how much of the ancient super race who would have had technology beyond our imagining? You’re telling me that we can determine all of the things said in this document down to the breeding habits of specific races of ancient super civilizations, but we haven’t found one car or building from them despite how much we dig for fossils and build subways?

Along with what you said earlier about the document stating that black people evolved from Gorillas (how fitting for the soviets to have a big red flag like that lolololololol), I think this is just some really cool and VERY impressive compilation of ancient aliens lore type stuff. Still a fun read though, ngl.

Edit: typo

It's outrageous and obviously fake (to your average Joe, in the way the whole topic is), but I've been being dragged deeper and deeper into this topic over the years, and this pretty much ties all of it together. Even down to the younger dryas flood, it was exactly when Graham Hancock says, and generally fits with his theory. Down to Annunaki, Atlantis, Nazis in antarctica, hollow earth....

So far, it almost strikes me as too perfect, exactly what someone like me WANTS to see, as I've just written. And the hollow earth seems impossible, but then again, UAP are impossible...

When I fell into the throawaylien thing hard and it didn’t come my wife told me something important. She said if it fits my biases too well then I need to be fully skeptical about it. I really wanted Grey’s to come and they’re my absolute favorite alien so I fell hook line and sinker into it. I even celebrated Aitee with an all night bender waiting for them to come.

permalinkembedsaveparentreport

[–]Lord_OJClark 2 points 3 years ago

I'm so confused can you summarise what those are?!

permalinkembedsaveparentreport

[–][deleted] 8 points 3 years ago*

I’m sorry. Throawaylien was a guy who posted a vague comment of being abducted regularly for a period of his life posted by a redditor of the same name 8 years ago. In the comment chain he explained that they were Greys and that they’d return in 2021. Someone found the comment and reposted it. Throawaylien made a return and fleshed it out pretty deep and it started a movement where thousands of us believed that there would be an event on Earth where the Greys would land and major areas on every continent on July 18th, 2021 with 18th being translated from the alien pronounciation being “Aitee”. When it didn’t happen many of us had felt conned and showed our disdain on the subreddit created for him and the event. A few months ago an unknown person had an interview on a podcast claiming to be him. He pretty much stated that he was going through mental health issues in that point of life and created the story. Many do not believe this because the original throawaylien had made a warning that there would be people claiming to be him so the remaining believers believe he was taken by Gina the Grey.

Bro, thank you for commenting this because I did such a hard double take I got whiplash when I read the same lines. They also said that Mongols and Blacks have 48 chromosomes while whites have 46, evidence that whites evolved first because things that evolved first have less chromosome. That.... Approximately 100 years before the entry of the Iron Planet into the inner circle of the solar system, there is a gradual climate change and a decrease in the level of oxygen, which leads to a sharp weakening of the immunity of living beings. Insect and bees fall into long hibernation, as a result of which several crops remain dustless.

There was always a level of truth to it though. That said, the document effectively confirms that the Russian’s independent research on the topic converges on US efforts toward the same. Moreover, the document correctly assessed in the 80s or 90s (of a hoax of some kind) that the US would be encircling Russia this century during a sort of global crisis and catastrophe. The document really lost me on the Nazis in Antarctica thing—100 guys didn't die during High Jump. The timeline is also wild with respect to these 50m wide ether cloud beings that slowly cool into 20m tall giants, then creatures that lay eggs, and then lemurians, etc. 350mya a race of angels were created by a species that lived on a planet that orbited the moon and then blew up just a million year ago but coalesced into what would become Venus' core? Only scanned the first part. Great to see Old Yuri Andropov being cited! Page 12 notes the wreck of US Destroyer "Merdek" in Operation High Jump. Um, not aware of any US destroyer with that name and Wiki and NavSource don't list it. The Soviets might have been, well Soviets, but the chance they would get a US Navy asset name wrong in this era? That's a zero. Also, while haven't read a ton of Soviet reports I've read some and they typically are filled with a mind numbing barf of bureaucratic references and dull statements that are super safe to make and pages of examples. No Pulitzers for documentary clarity there. That's not to say it's not legit or parts of it aren't just observing is all.

So now we're taking KGB "information" and believing it to be credible....?

This sub has lost its critical thinking - or its just an echo chamber for propaganda.

Community Rules:

1. Be Respectful

Be civil. Debate and discussion are welcome here, personal attacks are not. Dissenting opinions are fine, antagonistic and belligerent behavior are not. Extremism, racism, sexism, and other forms of bigotry are not welcome here and will lead to bans.

2. Stay On-Topic

This subreddit is primarily for the discussion of extraterrestrial life either on Earth or elsewhere. Though we do allow a bit of 'fudging' regarding adjacent topics such as UAPs, discussions, videos, pictures, or anything not related to this topic will be removed.

3. Be Substantive

When posting into the sub, take the time to put some thought into the post. Provide a launching point for a discussion, elaborate on evidence or links, and give descriptions of what we're seeing.

One-liners, videos w/o descriptions, links with no explanation, and other low-effort posts will be removed.

4. Not Quality Content

Submissions should be created to make an effort to engage the community in serious discussion over experiences, ideas, current events, historical events, or other alien/UFO-related topics.

Troll posts, posts with no descriptions or one-liners, hoaxes, clear LARPs, or otherwise will be removed.

5. No Politics

No political debates, discussions, posts, etc. not related directly to the goings-on of various world governments, political figures, agencies, etc. and their efforts regarding disclosure, extraterrestrials, or UFOs/UAPs.

There are enough subs on this site for this type of discussion and content. This is not one of them.

As this topic tends to make people angry, be advised that Rule 1 applies and may lead to bans.

6. No Religious Discussions/Debates

No religious debates, discussions, posts, etc. not related directly to the topic of extraterrestrials. These can take the form of theories of ancient extraterrestrial influence on the human race and discussions about how various religious folks may respond to disclosure, and thus are fine.

There are enough subs on this site for the rest of the topics and debates. This is not one of them.

As this topic tends to make people angry, be advised that Rule 1 applies and may lead to bans.

7. No Off-Topic Conspiracies

Since the topic of UFOs/aliens deals with potential cover-ups, disinformation, and misinformation on the part of the USG and other governments, these topics are fine. Discussions of other conspiracies not directly tied to the sub's topic will be removed.

r/conspiracy, r/conspiracy_commons, and r/conspiracyNOPOL all are better suited for these types of discussions.

8. No Organizing/Calls for Protest

We welcome people to engage in their respective nations' processes for petitioning their government. However, this sub is not the place to call for or attempt to organize any kind of gatherings, marches, protests, riots, or otherwise. All such posts/comments will be removed. Repeat attempts to post/comment this content will lead to bans.

Calls for particularly violent action warrant an immediate permaban and reports to Reddit admins.

9. No Abduction Marks

Since many unexplained bumps, marks, bruises, lesions, and other issues with the skin and body can be indicators of serious health issues, we do not allow the posting and discussion of such items in this sub. We are not medical professionals. Please seek medical attention if you have some sort of issue that you need answers for. Thanks.

10. No Anecdotal Posts on Mind-Altering Substances

Posts regarding mind-altering substances (i.e- DMT, Mushrooms, Marijuana, etc.) are only allowed from a scientific perspective and MUST include a NSFW tag. This includes interviews/articles from established researchers in the field relating mind-altering substances to consciousness, disclosed documents, published papers, and so on.

Comments on anecdotal experiences are allowed as long as they are relevant to the post the comment is made under. Any tutorials, step-by-step instructions, or sources to obtain mind-altering substances will be removed. Repeat offenses will result in a ban.

11. Artwork & Memes

Artwork and memes will be approved/removed at moderator discretion.

12. No Advertising

If you want to promote your book, channel, game, product, website, etc., you must first contact the moderators for approval.

Any unapproved self-promotion will be removed and repeated attempts to post will result in bans.

Please see the following:

https://www.reddit.com/wiki/selfpromotion

13. Abide By Sub Guidelines

https://www.reddit.com/r/aliens/wiki/index/policies/posting

14. No Discussions of Bans from other Subs

All posts, comments, and links regarding bans or adverse actions from other subs will be removed. Repeat instances of this may result in a ban.

15. Anti Distraction/Hoax

A Firehose of Falsity plagues a social media site when traffic is: High volume and multichannel; rapid, continuous and repetitive; and lacks a commitment to reality and consistency. It becomes propaganda when it confuses and misdirects an audience from more pressing information that would educate and inform. Old KGB Documents (untranslated and translated) about suppressed history of earth and the phenomenonEvidence (self.aliens)

submitted 3 years ago * by ReptilianCabal

Please save. I believe these documents are being suppressed and scrubbed from the internet. The documents contain some old USSR racism which I am not endorsing at all. I'm sharing this for research purposes and because it appears to be quite possibly a real old KGB document. The translation appears accurate. You can use Google Lens in real time on your phone for translation. I'm lucy#1337 on Discord, and @loves_aliens on Twitter

Russian original:

English translation:
https://drive.google.com/file/d/1cLUj7JZt6UBcHBqEL4fwWyFaA9pDLmt-/view?usp=sharing

The translation was probably done by Google Lens

Edit2: Active investigation/discussion/research happening on The Mystery Den Discord server https://discord.gg/FMY9gj7z in #kgb-orion-projekt room

Edit3: The plot thickens. 2013 source on way back machine with other documents, including stuff Nazi's found in Tibet that lead them searching for Agartha (In Antarctica)

From these studies it follows that the next so-called Armageddon will begin in 2012 and will end in 2014 with the death of the existing civilization and the bulk of the world's population.

So that was wrong or we stopped it somehow.

[–]ReptilianCabal[S] 54 points 3 years ago

Armageddon was related to the poles moving around (according to the document). And the "Top German Scientists" said the world would end in 2012-2014, because the pyramids that were supposed to prevent that poles from moving had maybe been too damaged or destroyed. For whatever reason though, we're still here (or Mandella effect, or new timeline, or new earth, or WHATEVER)

permalinkembedsaveparentreport

[–]ZenDragon 10 points 3 years ago

Fascinating. I haven't read very far yet.

permalinkembedsaveparentreport

[–]ReptilianCabal[S] 36 points 3 years ago

Also Tom Delonge said pyramids in I think.... Alaska (or was it Antarctica?) are suppressing human consciousness. On some random podcast; can't remember which one.

permalinkembedsaveparentreport

[–]Electronic-Rate5497 10 points 3 years ago

So why hasn’t anyone blown up the pyramids?

permalinkembedsaveparentreport

[–]SmurfUp 9 points 3 years ago

I mean I’ve been inside the great pyramid in Egypt, and it looks very man made and low-tech. Seeing them in person, it’s pretty obvious they’re just piles of ancient rocks.

permalinkembedsaveparentreport

[–]ScagWhistle 9 points 3 years ago

Dat Sphinx tho...

permalinkembedsaveparentreport

[–]SmurfUp 3 points 3 years ago

The Sphinx is cool as hell, but it was actually a lot smaller than I expected and honestly looks completely doable with their tech at the time.

permalinkembedsaveparentreport

[–]zyizzle 9 points 3 years ago

Wait, but some of those rocks are granite which can't be cut easily.. how much did you see? Because there are perfectly square granite blocks in giza and we still have trouble cutting granite with that precision

permalinkembedsaveparentreport

[–]datduder20 1 point 3 years ago

Have you ever seen a granite counter top? How does that compare to a stone on a pyramid in terms of precision?

We can do everything they did and much much more. There’s signatures of tools all over the pyramids. The only mystery is which method and tools they used (there are many possibilities) because they didn't document their methods. Somehow people have confused this fact with somehow meaning that the Egyptians had better methods than us (laughable).

If we really wanted We could make a pyramid out of basalt now that is smoother than glass and we could do it with a fraction of the men in less than a quarter of the time it took to build the great pyramid.

[–]SmurfUp 0 points 3 years ago

Yeah the stones on the pyramids are jagged as hell. Some of that is weathering for sure, but they also had the tech at the time to make stone smooth which is also apparent in the obelisks that they made.

permalinkembedsaveparentreport

[–]diablosdia 5 points 3 years ago

I would suggest looking at the cosmic alignments built into the pyramids. Not sure we would be able to build with such precision now

permalinkembedsaveparentreport

[–]SmurfUp 5 points 3 years ago

It's not that complicated they just figured out the stars and built the pyramids in a line. They weren't stupid back then.

[–]squidvett 9 points 3 years ago

I don't think it's uncommon for people to believe that human beings 5,000 years ago were less intelligent than human beings today. When you begin to understand that they were just as intelligent as humans today, and absolute masters of their accessible environment (stone, wood, and earth), it's not such a leap to realize all of these things that people attribute to aliens were really built by humans. Were they naive and superstitious? Probably. Were they stupid? Not in the slightest.

[–]datduder20 1 point 3 years ago

Exactly this. Even the smartest of us are naive and superstitious AND will admit as much. It’s the folks who aren’t aware of it who are the problem (thinking of the 95% of people in this sub that don’t understand their own bias). And folks that don’t understand bias tend to not be the brightest.

permalinkembedsaveparentreport

[–]diablosdia 3 points 3 years ago

No it's more complicated than that

permalinkembedsaveparentreport

[–]SmurfUp 2 points 3 years ago

In what way?

permalinkembedsaveparentreport

[–]Coronathrowaway1911 5 points 3 years ago

The pyramids also work as a calendar, it takes for account solstice's, it's a compass. Its long and lat march its preportion to earth. Lots of advanced math is in the pyramid however I do believe they were aware of all of it at the time period

permalinkembedsaveparentreport

[–]diablosdia 0 points 3 years ago

You might want to look into it or you might not. Many many books have been written on the subject. Some good, some bad and some outright lies. I can assure you it's more complicated than you have suggested. Whether you are interested in that subject is up to you.

permalinkembedsaveparentreport
continue this thread

[–]MinuteMinX -1 points 3 years ago

It‘s not that complicated, most refer to alignments like the Orion belt. Like 3 dots in a row, one of them slightly shifted…

permalinkembedsaveparentreport

[–]diablosdia 9 points 3 years ago

No it's a lot more complicated than that.

permalinkembedsaveparentreport

[–]Rocket_Skates_ 8 points 3 years ago

It’s almost like math and engineering were intended to be precise regardless of era.

permalinkembedsaveparentreport

[–][deleted] 3 points 3 years ago

Low tech ? It's more than that bro.

permalinkembedsaveparentreport

[–]SmurfUp -4 points 3 years ago

Yeah I mean it’s cool as hell and definitely took a lot of work and engineering, but I just meant it’s pretty obvious in person that it would not require aliens or any tech that they didn’t have back then.

permalinkembedsaveparentreport

[–]TheLight8592 2 points 3 years ago

I don't think you've done your research on this topic. We still don't know to this day how they built what they did with the technology they had. It shouldnt have been possible.

permalinkembedsaveparentreport

[–]SmurfUp 0 points 3 years ago

There’s a lot of info out there about how they did it. Like you can stand next to the pyramids and it’s not hard at all to imagine ancient people doing it. It would’ve sucked, but totally possible with a lot of work and good design.

permalinkembedsaveparentreport

[–]datduder20 2 points 3 years ago

It’s confusing why people cannot accept this or refuse to research this.

permalinkembedsaveparentreport

[–]Sugarman4 11 points 3 years ago

Let's hope the calculation wasn't off by 10 years. Or maybe by fluke setting off the atomic bombs in the 40's altered the normal planetary path

permalinkembedsaveparentreport

[–]Pixelated_ 9 points 3 years ago

2014 is also when Russia chose to invade Crimea. Coincidence? 🤔

permalinkembedsaveparentreport

[–]Crystalline_E 13 points 3 years ago

True, but that's a stretch compared to what the rest of the document is talking about. Solar system defining events super ancient history

permalinkembedsaveparentreport

[–]Pixelated_ 18 points 3 years ago

Yeah was just kidding because the document says beginning in 2012 the signs of Armageddon would be evident, bringing about completion 2 years later. And that didn't happen.

I was raised in the JW Doomsday cult where we eagerly waited for Armageddon to come and kill everyone on Earth except the other Jehovah's Witnesses. This docu was triggering as hell! 😄

I haven't heard this gold theory regarding moving mega stones, sounds intriguing! Is this theory discussed in these papers?

[–]type1goat 24 points 3 years ago

Yeah it basically said they would melt thin sheets of gold on stones and the stones would become formable and high frequency sounds and vibrations could move the stones

permalinkembedsaveparentreport

[–]jeb0803 10 points 3 years ago

Yeah skim until you get to where it’s starts at Big Bang and keep skimming it is chronological in earth history .. far as I’ve got so far

permalinkembedsaveparentreport

[–]Haris_K0 8 points 3 years ago

They used sound to move the stones. It's called acoustic levitation. You should watch the why files' video on it on YouTube. Pretty interesting.

permalinkembedsaveparentreport

[–]HopeSuffocating 16 points 3 years ago

This just sent me in a 3 hour rabbit hole learning about acoustic levitation, torus stones, cone tools, ancient Egypt, and the coral castle, LOL. Thank you

permalinkembedsaveparentreport

[–]GraceGreenview 9 points 3 years ago

Once you read about the coral castle, it’s never far from top of mind.

permalinkembedsaveparentreport

[–]JayovtheDead 6 points 3 years ago

I live near the coral castle and it is totally mind boggling. There's no way that he built that by himself without the help of some external forces or it is by far one of the most elaborate hoaxes of all time.

permalinkembedsaveparentreport

[–]HopeSuffocating 4 points 3 years ago

I lived down there when I was very young and visited it with my family. One of those childhood memories that got locked away, glad I'm relearning about it now. I'd tend to agree with you, although the only witnesses to the coral castle report he was holding a torus stone and it made the coral fly into the air….whether that be the external force used, ALIENZ, or something else, only that guy knows and he took that to his grave. Was lucky enough to visit Stonehenge recently and that is really what made me realize something we do not know of today was going on for megalithic construction

permalinkembedsaveparentreport

[–]Apprehensive_Web6353 3 points 3 years ago

The machines he built are intent amplifiers. Giant ones power ufos. His let him move the stones with his thoughts. He would go into a meditative state once the large magnetic field was established and that would allow him to control his local reality.

Read the book "forbidden archaeology" by michael cremo and richard thomson, it's 1000 pages of real discoverys that have happened that don't fit the narrative. Along with papers and tests done on these objects, some of the things rhey find are seriously mind blowing. Plenty of 100 -200 million year old finds. Heaps of finds In deep in underground mines fused in the coal which took 100 million years to form. That's just an example of example of finds documented in this book.

Wait HOLUP..... Blacks and Mongols have 48 chromosomes and whites have 46!? That's evidence that Blacks and Mongols evolved AFTER whites? Dude.... I'm not even going to go into it, but I will say this: IF this book is legit and was KGB made, it feels like a task force was asked to go out there and collect ALL the crackpot conspiracies, alt history, and esoteric philosophies out there and make one big report on it just so they know what's out there. Who could read this and take it seriously, idk

[–]ReptilianCabal[S] 15 points 3 years ago

We're not debating if the contents are true. Obviously a lot of it is bullshit. I don't think that's the point. If this is a real KGB document (and it appears to be) then that alone is an important part of history. The discussions on the Discord server (linked in original post) are picking up. We found more books by the person who found this one, and there are other copies of this document as well.

Just FYI for everyone, these files are based on the KGB's analysis of the Nazi Anhenherbe's classified documents the Soviets confiscated (they're referenced several times throughout the documents). The archeological findings and esoteric philosophies they studied are interesting, but the way they twist it all to fit their racial narrative is garbage.

Everybody should save a copy of this right now. I doubt that this will remain if this is the real deal... and so far it looks like it.

p.122: Hollow earth with sun in the center! "Magma is the center of gravity of the globe [in the shell]".

p.138: Planet Icarus which flew too close to the sun, got ripped apart and now forms the asteroid belt and its core is now Venus, bumping Mars to its present-day orbit further out as well as the Earth moving closer to the Sun. This was the event that took out the dinosaurs.

There was an uprising which stemmed from the base-12 numbering system by the people with ten fingers on their hands. [Note that the "giant of Kandahar" had six fingers on each hand.] So the "gods" at this time lived inside the Earth's core/inner area, called "Agartha".

p.211: Purpose of the pyramids. [I note that since the pyramids are no longer functioning, this could be the reason for the Earth's rotation which is now changing.] An Armageddon event was predicted for 2014. They blame this presumably on the "Iron Planet" which I think equates to "Nibiru". [I would suggest that their math was wrong and that the year was 2021.]

p.162: Details of flooding event as caused by "Iron Planet"/"Planet X".

My entire thing has been "If this is worth investigating, save it, and share it."

Anyone trying to figure to research this on their own isn't going to get anywhere. And like you said, if this is real, it was in danger of being taken down. I was told by two of the earlier sources (before we found the Russian ones) that when they tried to post this online it was taken down or their accounts got deleted. At this point it has been shared with hundreds, if not thousands of people. And I've sent it to several journalists.

Still, the best thing everyone can do right now is repost this on social media. Twitter, Reddit, Discord servers, anywhere you want. We need more eyes on it and hopefully as a large group we can all get to the bottom of it together.

I can at least confirm that the footprints the document mentions on page 43 are indeed real:

https://www.nytimes.com/2021/12/01/science/hominin-footprints-tanzania.html#:~:text=The%20footprints%20were%20discovered%20in,the%20first%20clear%20evidence%20of

However, apparently they are not human.

The mortar and pestle mentioned are also real, but they have not been conclusively dated:

http://www.badarchaeology.com/out-of-place-artefacts/very-ancient-artefacts/a-mortar-and-pestle-from-tuolomne/

And here is the supposed "shoeprint" :

http://paleo.cc/paluxy/nevada.htm

Here are the "spheres" mentioned on page 104, which really aren't all that mysterious:

https://ncse.ngo/mysterious-spheres-ottosdal-south-africa

To me, this seems like randomly pulled together "ancient aliens" stuff.

permalinkembedsavereport

[–]OrionZoi 3 points 3 years ago*

They also mention the Crystal Skulls which are proven fakes.

https://cen.acs.org/articles/91/i9/Crystal-Skulls-Deemed-Fake.html

I may just be misreading here but why would ancient civilizations use names we use for them now? Ancient Egyptians didn't call Egypt Egypt so why would some pre history ancient super civilization call themselves Atlantis? If we can figure out that some of these civilizations laid eggs you'd think we'd know what they called themselves. But again, maybe that's the name the authors of this document are using here like us using Egypt rather than Khemet.

Still, if the KGB had this information then there's no way either MI5 or the CIA didn't have at least some of it either by espionage on the KGB or finding the information independently. If this was real then so many people across the world would have seen that information over years and years, so there's no way SOMEONE wouldn't have leaked this until now. We see plenty of people in the US military alone who try to whistleblow about UFOs and the US even did performative studies on them with Project Bluebook before more recent disclosure after the leaks to the New York Times in 2017. I haven't seen anyone from the government come out to say "hey, the earth is hollow and Atlantis was real and etc". Someone, somewhere would have seen something over the decades and said something. We have plenty of pictures of UFOs in the sky but how much of the ancient super race who would have had technology beyond our imagining? You're telling me that we can determine all of the things said in this document down to the breeding habits of specific races of ancient super civilizations, but we haven't found one car or building from them despite how much we dig for fossils and build subways?

Along with what you said earlier about the document stating that black people evolved from Gorillas (how fitting for the soviets to have a big red flag like that lolololololol), I think this is just some really cool and VERY impressive compilation of ancient aliens lore type stuff. Still a fun read though, ngl.

Edit: typo

It's outrageous and obviously fake (to your average Joe, in the way the whole topic is), but I've been being dragged deeper and deeper into this topic over the years, and this pretty much ties all of it together. Even down to the younger dryas flood, it was exactly when Graham Hancock says, and generally fits with his theory. Down to Annunaki, Atlantis, Nazis in antarctica, hollow earth....

So far, it almost strikes me as too perfect, exactly what someone like me WANTS to see, as I've just written. And the hollow earth seems impossible, but then again, UAP are impossible...

When I fell into the throawaylien thing hard and it didn’t come my wife told me something important. She said if it fits my biases too well then I need to be fully skeptical about it. I really wanted Grey’s to come and they’re my absolute favorite alien so I fell hook line and sinker into it. I even celebrated Aitee with an all night bender waiting for them to come.

permalinkembedsaveparentreport

[–]Lord_OJClark 2 points 3 years ago

I'm so confused can you summarise what those are?!

permalinkembedsaveparentreport

[–][deleted] 8 points 3 years ago*

I’m sorry. Throawaylien was a guy who posted a vague comment of being abducted regularly for a period of his life posted by a redditor of the same name 8 years ago. In the comment chain he explained that they were Greys and that they’d return in 2021. Someone found the comment and reposted it. Throawaylien made a return and fleshed it out pretty deep and it started a movement where thousands of us believed that there would be an event on Earth where the Greys would land and major areas on every continent on July 18th, 2021 with 18th being translated from the alien pronounciation being “Aitee”. When it didn’t happen many of us had felt conned and showed our disdain on the subreddit created for him and the event. A few months ago an unknown person had an interview on a podcast claiming to be him. He pretty much stated that he was going through mental health issues in that point of life and created the story. Many do not believe this because the original throawaylien had made a warning that there would be people claiming to be him so the remaining believers believe he was taken by Gina the Grey.

Bro, thank you for commenting this because I did such a hard double take I got whiplash when I read the same lines. I may have misread it but I thought it said that gorillas descended from ancient black people, but yours makes more sense. They also said that Mongols and Blacks have 48 chromosomes while whites have 46, evidence that whites evolved first because things that evolved first have less chromosome. That.... Is definitely not a good first impression. If this is real KGB stuff, I think it's a report on conspiracies of alt history in general. Approximately 100 years before the entry of the Iron Planet into the inner circle of the solar system, there is a gradual climate change and a decrease in the level of oxygen, which leads to a sharp weakening of the immunity of living beings. Insect and bees fall into long hibernation, as a result of which several crops remain dustless.

There was always a level of truth to it though. That said, the document effectively confirms that the Russian's independent research on the topic converges on US efforts toward the same. Moreover, the document correctly assessed in the 80s or 90s (of a hoax of some kind) that the US would be encircling Russia this century during a sort of global crisis and catastrophe. The document really lost me on the Nazis in Antarctica thing—100 guys didn't die during High Jump. The timeline is also wild with respect to these 50m wide ether cloud beings that slowly cool into 20m tall giants, then creatures that lay eggs, and then lemurians, etc. 350mya a race of angels were created by a species that lived on a planet that orbited the moon and then blew up just a million year ago but coalesced into what would become Venus' core? Flat out wrong.

Only scanned the first part. Great to see Old Yuri Andropov being cited! Page 12 notes the wreck of US Destroyer “Merdek” in Operation High Jump. Um, not aware of any US destroyer with that name and Wiki and NavSource don’t list it. The Soviets might have been, well Soviets, but the chance they would get a US Navy asset name wrong in this era? That’s a zero. Also, while haven’t read a ton of Soviet reports I’ve read some and they typically are filled with a mind numbing barf of bureaucratic references and dull statements that are super safe to make and pages of examples. No Pulitzers for documentary clarity there. That’s not to say it’s not legit or parts of it aren’t just observing is all.

So from what I remember, it focused pretty much on ancient alien civilization in our solar system, the beginning of the universe to now, and how there’s a cycle of natural cataclysmic events on earth and there’s one on the horizon. It’s pretty interesting and scary stuff. Hope it’s a hoax or just overall wrong.

Many contactees have been getting a similar message. Although admittedly telepathic communication isn't always so easy. Miscommunication can happen.

I also can't help but to think of those NASA scientists cuffing and gluing themselves to financial institutions to try and get people to listen because apparently we only have 3 years to turn things around before it's too late.

Unfortunately the mainstream media outlets suppressed the heck out of that story. The only reason I heard about it was because of Tiktok. 🤯

It's heavily focused on earth's history. I'd recommend reading it for entertainment if nothing else. A lot of which you can quickly skim through. I take the information in this book with big grains of salt. lol here's a few interesting bullet points.

"The Iron Planet" crosses paths with our solar system roughly once every 3600 years. It causes Armageddon like catastrophic events.

The "Gods" of the "Iron Planet" have a paradise inside of earth they call "Agartha". These "Gods" are responsible for rebuilding humanity after each passing of the "Iron Planet"

The "Iron Planet" is roughly calculated to start approaching our solar system in 2014.

The "Gods" of the "Iron Planet" are responsible for the destruction of Atlantis in response to the Atlantians revolting against the gods.

There are bases constructed in the highest mountain ranges in antartica, alaska, and various high altitude locations globally that governments have constructed for protection from these cataclysmic events they predict in our future due to climate change, magnetic shifts, devastating floods, earthquakes, etc caused by the passing of the "Iron Planet".

Evidence and reported human remains, footprints, bones, skulls etc some being millions of years old. Most of them predicted to be 9+ meters tall and relative giants compared to modern humans.

Lol I was enjoying the interesting read about the formation of our solar system and Earth.. And then out of nowhere its like "the Gods who lived on the planet Icarus" and goes on about some random shit with no explanation - (edit: later there is more on this apparently Icarus is now Venus and used to be where Mars is, until a giant iron planet collided with it or something and knocked it to where it is now, and this event caused catastrophe on Earth and killed the previous intelligent species or somethin)

This feels like one of those tricks where they say a bunch of stuff that makes sense and a few random things, and a lot of people will believe the random things because the previous stuff made sense

I will say tho, the most convincing part of this is just HOW MUCH there is here.

Like wtf am I reading now? "The gods of Venus, Great Teachers, Children of the Flame".. Is this an anime? Some of the first intelligent species' on Earth were into Beastiality and thus created monkeys Part about Hitler's death being a double and the real Hitler going to live in New Berlin located underneath Antarctica or whatever was pretty cool ;)

Apparently the Iron Planet passes through our solar system every 3600 years. The closer we get, the more fucked we are, and the "gods" from that planet will come and take some chosen people to be with them for the next revival of humanity

The next armageddon will be in 2014

o m g everybody run

But for real this is super interesting stuff. Im taking it with a grain of salt

According to the text, the pyramids were used to create a kind of resonance that prevented Armageddon.

What if, instead of pyramids, Cern used their LHC to create a resonance to stave off Armageddon?

It's pretty out-there.

To be fair there’s also a theory (though I use that word lightly because well you’ll see) that the LHC accidentally created a black hole in 2012 that consumed earth in a matter of milliseconds and that our entire consciousness was shifted to a parallel universe which explains some of the Mandela effects, I personally don’t believe it but it is an interesting thought experiment 🤷‍♂️

Edit: Here’s an article that mentions the Twitter thread it came from if you’re bored

But I'm alright with being open minded to any theories, instead of "we don't know how the pyramids were built but it's definitely not that!"

Sure some theories sound crazy, hit me with a logical explanation that isn't "crazy" and I'll listen.

I am only on page 21 of the document, but since it apparently mentions the Pyramids, I'm going to write what the Law of One says about the Pyramids here so I can come back and compare after.

The Law of One says the Pyramids were built by Ra, a 6th-density social memory complex that originated on Venus 2.3 billion years ago and also had contact with the Egyptians 11,000 years ago. The Pyramids are giant crystal healing centers placed in a certain series of spacetime ratios to harness the electromagnetic energy of the Earth. They heal mind/body/spirit distortions and once you're healed by the Pyramids you can re-gain your lost powers and speak telepathically and create matter with your mind etc.

Ra created the Pyramids using everlasting rock. The rock is everlasting because it was created by the conscious thought of Ra who has achieved unity consciousness and thus everything they create by thought is indestructible so long as Ra exists.

However after Ra built the Pyramids, the pharaohs healed themselves with the Pyramids then used their powers to suppress and control the rest of the population and didn't allow the regular people to access the Pyramids and the Pyramids' powers, so Ra abandoned the Egyptian people and left Earth.

Basically outlines how the solar system came about, describes some ancient civilizations, wars with gods from an Iron Planet, historic floods that have wiped out civilizations, and how the next Armageddon happened in 2014 apparently (glad I survived!). The information came from tablets recovered from Tibetan monks. It was all based on a research project directly ordered from Adolf himself.

My favorite part was the explanation of how the pyramids were built. It says that the stones were coated in a thin sheet gold (or dust that was processed from gold at least) which then allowed them to move the stones using high frequency sound waves (acoustic levitation). Super cool read

My only concern with this is that it's during the cold war, where both the US and the Soviet Union would leak false information to each other to preoccupy both sides intelligence agency's.

But it is very interesting to say the least. To get a total deep dive into other countries classified UFO encounters would be amazing.

Interesting at best, entertaining at worst. If this is authentic, then it was compiled in a hurry without ample vetting.

I do believe Operation High Jump was not all it seemed to be, but the way it's portrayed as playing out here is a little far fetched. It would be very hard to cover up hundreds of dead American servicemen, even then.

Establishing a New Berlin is almost impossible as it was methodically researched that even reaching Antarctica via U-boat in 1945 was impossible, let alone back and forth trips carrying men/material. (https://www.researchgate.net/publication/231788269_Hitler's_Antarctic_Base_The_Myth_and_the_Reality)

If possible (and likely isn't), if Soviet military records from 1946-47 could be corroborated to show operational plans of the said K Class subs to Antarctic waters, that would be amazing.

Also, anyone with knowledge of Soviet era type font, paper weight, etc would be able to shed light on perceived authenticity.

A fun read though if taken with a grain of salt.

I find it very strange that the post was removed, I’m glad I saved a copy of both.

Having read the document there’s some very interesting views on some of the mainstream conspiracy theories and alternate history theories that are present today, I find this in itself interesting.

As mentioned in other comments a lot of the information seems to relate to the Nazi SS pseudo-scientific compartment Ahnenerbes

The majority of the Ahnenerbes research presents a radical agenda that suits the Nazi regimes views, however there are many other topics in the document which I find fascinating, I don't believe it all to be credible but who knows what they really got up to.

I love how a large majority here are saying “this is fake” or “some nutjob made this” without any sort of proof to back their claim. It might be, it might not be, but there is more evidence proving it could be true— links and photos to an actual thing— than unsubstantiated claims of “it’s fake”

An alien could literally walk up to some of these people and they’d claim it wasn’t a real one. My god.

Well I tried reading (the translation) and it's a bit of pain in the ass due to the so called interesting docs has zero proof. There are some math regarding space with figures of millions that just gave me headache but sounds over all correct like why a day is 23.94 hours and so on.

Plant x theory , nothing new there just big math claiming it's revolution around the sun is 3600 years.

"high jump" , people claim it was a real thing but never saw anyone giving real evidence for that out of this world story ever took place although hundreds of people died ? By laser shooting UFOs piloted by ex-ss soldiers ? K.

claiming Giants were a possibility stating that Atlantis / Atlantians are 100% real and that humanity evolved with 3 stages one of them were a-sexual egg laying something I don't know showing a diagram of the Nazca lines that I never saw and once overlay it on top of the pyramids of Giza and it's the same in birds eye view, again idk.

tons of black and white diagrams of the milky way/stars/layers of earth that are correct overall just look like it was printed in the 80s (good job there!)

list of real and famous findings in history when it comes to people digging up stuff by mistake / major expeditions so called black and white pictures of giants remains

Over all very well made trolling. Loved the fact they say the Nazis insisted on global flooding in 2012/14 and had floppy disks and Fortnite Interesting theories and a lot of information. A big chunk seems to be pretty high level theories without any explanations how they got the information and without sources. Some bits are pretty scary like the earth changing magnetic polarity because of the iron planet passing by since this topic about changing polarity has been on the news sources lately. These documents are predicting it early 2000 in the 80s. However other theories like the end of the world in 2014 and some other stuff that didn't happen just makes me question all of it. Would pay good money to see who, why and for what reason made these documents. Like lets make few official looking documents with bizarre information and see what bits the U.S intelligence gets so we know who leaks stuff or something.

Some interesting names that stand out in these documents for me. Vladimir Kryuchkov - page 199. - mentioned as deputy chairman of state security committee in 1983 (was made chairman in 1988 and head of KGB when coup against Gorbachev took place in 1991) - very interesting documents particularly the history of mankind.

One thing I would emphasise from all this is that the document do speak about climate change, global catastrophes etc. before the arrival of this “Iron Planet”. Also, in relation to this, it mentions top-secret US projects about building bases on mountaintops in Alaska, in order to assure the survival of a handful of people, all from the second half of 20th century. So all in all, even if it is not all true, the signs of Armageddon definitely match, and they did know about it waay before global warming blew up.

Whether it is true or not, it certainly has some hard science and on-point predictions involved, so a fascinating read nonetheless.

Ignore my previous post I was finally able to get a translated version downloaded. Thank you! One question though and forgive me if it has already been addressed.

Does anybody know how this document was obtain? I mean if we are to interpret this as fact and not fiction then I imagine it must have been pretty difficult if not damn near impossible to acquire this from the "KGB." I don't know kind of suspicious if you ask me.... Which you didn't so that's my unsolicited opinion 😘

However, with that said I still look forward to giving this a read. These are some of my favorite topics to research so thanks again for the upload and translation, and please if anybody has any information in regards to the authenticity or the procurement of this I would love to hear it.

Which planet is the "iron planet" they refer in the translated link? It can't be planet X or 9 because that planet is in the book itself I guess(?). "Iron planet" can't also be Icarus or Venus because what happened to that planet for 1.5 million years ago... I find it strange that I can't find anything about Icarus on the web though.

The book was also mindblowing. I guess that the thing with Earth and electromagnetic stuff happens right now because the World seems goes crazier for every damn year. The humans of the current human civilization also seems get more issues with mental health and it seems that are suicides daily these days. I guess that we living on borrowed time until all hell breaks loose...

The aliens/extraterrestrials and the humans who hiding this stuff can FUCK off literally. Imagine what our human civilization would be today if no one would hide this stuff. We could possible travel between the stars just like in the sci-fi movies/TV-shows/games. Fuckers.

Root races are concepts in the esoteric cosmology of Theosophy. As described in Helena Petrovna Blavatsky's book The Secret Doctrine (1888), these races correspond to stages of human evolution and existed mainly on now-lost continents. Blavatsky's model was developed by later theosophists, most notably William Scott-Elliot in The Story of Atlantis (1896) and The Lost Lemuria (1904). Annie Besant further developed the model in Man: Whence, How and Whither (1913). Both Besant and Scott-Elliot relied on information from Charles Webster Leadbeater obtained by "astral clairvoyance". Further elaboration was provided by Rudolf Steiner in Atlantis and Lemuria (1904).[1] Rudolf Steiner, and subsequent theosophist authors, have called the time periods associated with these races Epochs (Steiner felt that the term "race" was not adequate anymore for modern humanity).

Sources

According to historian James Webb, the occult concept of succeeding prehistoric races, as later adopted by Blavatsky, was first introduced by the French author Antoine Fabre d'Olivet in his Histoire philosophique du genre humain (1824).[2] Also prior to Blavatsky, the root races were described by the English theosophist Alfred Percy Sinnett in Esoteric Buddhism (1883).

Locations of the proposed former continents

Some theosophical writers[who?], attempting to reconcile current geological science with some earlier theosophical teachings, have equated Lemuria with the former supercontinent of Gondwana.[citation needed] An opposing view subscribes to the theories of Eduard Suess, who argued that Gondwanaland consisted of parts of the present continents in their present positions, but joined to one another by other lands that have since been submerged. This is also the position of Master Samael Aun Weor.[citation needed]

Atlantis, in the Theosophical cosmology, was a continent that covered a significant part of what is now the Atlantic Ocean.[3] The large continent of Atlantis is said to have "first divided, and then broken later on into seven peninsulas and islands". When the main part of Atlantis began to sink, Atlantean settlers migrated to the new lands which were rising to the east, west, and south. These new lands became the Americas, Africa, parts of Asia, and the present European countries, stretching from the Ural Mountains of Russia, westward to include the islands of Ireland and Great Britain, and even farther westward than that in former times. Some emigrants from the remaining islands in the Atlantic settled on new islands to the east which later consolidated into what is now the district of the Abyssinian highlands and lands somewhat to the north. Atlantis perished through flooding and submergence in 9,564 BC,[4] and its destruction is explained by claiming successive disturbances in the axial rotation of Earth which caused earthquakes, which led to the sudden sinking of Atlantis.

Root races, epochs and sub-races

According to Blavatsky's writings, there are seven root races assembling for our Earth; each root race is divided into seven subraces. Only five root races have appeared so far;[5] the sixth is expected to emerge in the 28th century. Francis Bacon (whom theosophy considers to be the legendary Count of St. Germain) in his work The New Atlantis (1627) describes a potential future civilization which lives on a land called Bensalem.[citation needed]

The first root race (Polarian)

The first root race was "ethereal", i.e. they were composed of etheric matter. They reproduced by dividing like an amoeba. Earth was still cooling at that time. The first mountain to arise out of the stormy primeval ocean was Mount Meru.[6]

The second root race (Hyperborean)
The second root race lived in Hyperborea. The second root race was colored golden yellow. Hyperborea included what is now Northern Canada, Greenland, Iceland, Scandinavia, Northern Russia and Kamchatka. The climate was tropical because Earth had not yet developed an axial tilt. The esoteric name of their continent is Plaksha;[7] they called themselves the Kimpurshas. They reproduced by budding.[8]

The third root race (Lemurian)

Map of Lemuria superimposed over the modern continents from William Scott-Elliot, The Story of Atlantis and Lost Lemuria.
The third root race, the Lemurian lived in Lemuria. The esoteric name of Lemuria is Shalmali.[7] Lemuria, according to Theosophists, existed in a large part of what is now the Indian Ocean including Australia and extending into the South Pacific Ocean; its last remnants are the Australian continent, the island of New Guinea, and the island of Madagascar. Lemuria sank gradually and was eventually destroyed by incessantly erupting volcanoes.[9] In the late 19th and early 20th centuries, it was thought by geologists that the age of the Earth was only about 200 million years (because radioactive dating had not yet come into use), so the geological epochs were believed to have occurred at a much later time than is thought to be the case today. According to traditional Theosophy, the Lemurian root race began 34½ million years ago, in the middle of what was then believed to be the Jurassic; thus, the people of Lemuria coexisted with the dinosaurs. The Lemurian race was much taller and bigger than our current race. The first three subraces of the Lemurians reproduced by laying eggs, but the fourth subrace, beginning 16½ million years ago, began to reproduce like modern humans.[9] As Lemuria was slowly submerged due to volcanic eruptions, the Lemurians colonized the areas surrounding Lemuria, namely Africa, Southern India and the East Indies. The descendants of the Lemurian root race, according to traditional Theosophy, include the Capoid race, the Congoid race, the Dravidians, and the Australoid race.

The fourth root race (Atlantean)
This race inhabited Atlantis.

Subraces of the Atlantean root race
The fourth root race, the Atlantean, according to Theosophy arose approximately 4,500,000 years ago in Africa from the fourth subrace of the Lemurians in a part of Africa that had been colonized by that subrace in the area now inhabited by the Ashanti.[10] According to Theosophists the first Atlantean subrace was the result of the last, or seventh Lemurian subrace, Chankshusha Manu, which migrated first to the south of the Atlantean continent and, from there, migrated further north. The esoteric name of Atlantis is Kusha.[7] The Atlantean root race had Mongolian features; they began with bronze skin and gradually evolved into the red American Indian, brown Malayan, and yellow Mongolian races, because some Atlanteans eventually migrated to the Americas and Asia. The seven subraces of the Atlantean root race were the Rmoahal (A mix of Homo Ergaster/Homo rhodesiensis in Africa) the Tlavati (Homo rhodesiensis variant outside of Africa) the Toltec (Homo Heidelbergensis as Rhodesiensis lost their African qualities) the Turanian (An ancestor of both Neanderthals and Denisovans, likely later stage Heidelbergensis) the original Semites (European Neanderthals) the Akkadians (West Asian Neanderthals), and the Mongolian (Denisovans), which migrated to and colonized Central Asia, East Asia, and Southeast Asia.

The descendants of the Atlanteans according to traditional Theosophy include those of the Mongolian race, the Malayan race, and the American Indian race as well as some people of what in the late 19th and early 20th centuries was called the "olive-skinned" Mediterranean race.[10][11][12][13][14]

The civilization of Atlantis

Main article: Atlantis
According to Powell, the long period of time when Atlantis was ruled by the Toltecs (the ancestors of the Amerindians), the civilization of Atlantis was at its height. This was the period between about 1,000,000 and 900,000 years ago, called the Golden Age of Atlantis. The Atlanteans had many luxuries and conveniences. Their capital city was called The City of the Golden Gates. At its height, it had two million inhabitants. There were extensive aqueducts leading to the city from a mountain lake. The Atlanteans had airships that could seat two to eight people. The economic system was socialist like that of the Incas. Atlanteans were the first to develop organized warfare. The military deployed air battleships that contained 50 to 100 fighting men. These air battleships deployed poison gas bombs. The infantry fired fire-tipped arrows. The Toltecs on Atlantis worshipped the Sun in temples as grand as those of ancient Egypt that were decorated in bright colors. The sacred word used in meditation was Tau (this was the equivalent of the Aryan sacred word AUM). As noted above, the Toltecs colonized all of North America and South America and thus became the people we know as the Amerindians.[12][13] The downfall of Atlantis started when some of the Toltecs began to practice black magic about 850,000 BC, corrupted by the dragon "Thevetat",[15] remembered as Devadatta, the opponent of Buddha.[16] The people began to become selfish and materialistic. Soon thereafter, the Turanians (the ancestors of the people we now know as the Turkic peoples) became dominant in much of Atlantis. The Turanians continued the practice of black magic which reached its height about 250,000 BC and continued until the final sinking of Atlantis, although they were opposed by white magicians. The Master Morya incarnated as the Emperor of Atlantis in 220,000 BC to oppose the black magicians.[17] The black magicians used magical spells to breed human-animal chimeras. They possessed an army composed of chimeras that were composites composed of a human body with the heads of fierce predators such as lions, tigers and bears, that ate enemy corpses on the battlefield.[17] The war between the white magicians and the black magicians continued until the end of Atlantis. The Masters of the Ancient Wisdom telepathically warned their disciples (the white magicians) to flee Atlantis in ships while there was still time to get out before the final cataclysm. As noted above, the final sudden submergence of Atlantis due to earthquakes occurred in 9,564 BC .[4]

The fifth root race (Aryan)
Early beginnings of the Aryan root race
Blavatsky asserted humanity is now in the fifth or Aryan root race, which Theosophists believe to have emerged from the previous fourth root race (Atlantean root race) beginning about 100,000 years ago in Atlantis. (According to Powell, when Madame Blavatsky stated the Aryan root race was 1,000,000 years old, she meant that the souls of the people that later physically incarnated as the first Aryans about 100,000 years ago began to incarnate in the bodies of Atlanteans 1,000,000 years ago.[12] However, another way of interpreting this is that Nature began to create the Aryan race before the final cataclysms.) Theosophists believe the Aryan root race was physically progenerated by the Vaivasvatu Manu, one of the Masters of the Ancient Wisdom (compare and contrast with Vaivasvata Manu of Hinduism). The present-day ethnic group most closely related to the new race is the Kabyle. The small band of only 9,000 people constituting the then small Aryan root race migrated out of Atlantis in 79,797 BC. The bards of the new white root-race poetically referred to the new race as being moon-colored.[18] A small group of these Aryan migrants from Atlantis split from the main body of migrants and went south to the shore of an inland sea in what was then a verdant and lush Sahara where they founded the "City of the Sun". The main body of migrants continued onwards to an island called the "white island" in the middle of what was then an inland sea in what is now the Gobi desert, where they established the "City of the Bridge".[19] (The "City of the Bridge" was constructed directly below the etheric city called Shamballa where Theosophists believe the governing deity of Earth, Sanat Kumara (compare and contrast with Sanatkumaras of Hinduism), dwells; thus, the ongoing evolution of the Aryan root race has been divinely guided by the being Theosophists call "The Lord of the World".)

The esoteric name of the whole of the present land surface of Earth, i.e. the World Island, the Americas, the Australian continent and Antarctica taken as a whole is Krauncha.[7]

Blavatsky connects physical race with spiritual attributes constantly throughout her works:

The intellectual difference between the Aryan and other civilized nations and such savages as the South Sea Islanders, is inexplicable on any other grounds. No amount of culture, nor generations of training amid civilization, could raise such human specimens as the Bushmen, the Veddhas of Ceylon, and some African tribes, to the same intellectual level as the Aryans, the Semites, and the Turanians so called. The 'sacred spark' is missing in them and it is they who are the only inferior races on the globe, now happily – owing to the wise adjustment of nature which ever works in that direction – fast dying out. Verily mankind is 'of one blood,' but not of the same essence. We are the hot-house, artificially quickened plants in nature, having in us a spark, which in them is latent."[20] ... Esoteric history teaches that idols and their worship died out with the Fourth Race, until the survivors of the hybrid races of the latter (Chinamen, African Negroes, &c.) gradually brought the worship back. The Vedas countenance no idols; all the modern Hindu writings do.[21]

Generally speaking, a large percentage of the people who live in the time of the period of the fifth root race are part of the fifth root race. However Blavatsky also opines that some Semitic peoples have become "degenerate in spirituality". She asserted that some peoples descended from the Lemurians are "semi-animal creatures". These latter include "the Tasmanians, a portion of the Australians." There are also "considerable numbers of the mixed Lemuro-Atlantean peoples produced by various crossings with such semi-human stocks -- e.g., the wild men of Borneo, the Veddhas of Ceylon, most of the remaining Australians, Bushmen, Negritos, Andaman Islanders, etc."[22] All these aforementioned groups mentioned by Blavatsky, except the Borneians, are part of what in the late 19th and most of the 20th century was called the Australoid race (except for the Bushmen, part of the Capoid race), both of which races, as noted above, were believed by traditional Theosophists to have been descended from the Lemurians.

Subraces of the Aryan root race
Blavatsky described the fifth root race with the following words:

The Aryan races, for instance, now varying from dark brown, almost black, red-brown-yellow, down to the whitest creamy colour, are yet all of one and the same stock – the Fifth Root-Race – and spring from one single progenitor, ... who is said to have lived over 18,000,000 years ago, and also 850,000 years ago – at the time of the sinking of the last remnants of the great continent of Atlantis.[23]

She also prophesies of the destruction of the racial "failures of nature" as the future "higher race" ascends:

Thus will mankind, race after race, perform its appointed cycle-pilgrimage. Climates will, and have already begun, to change, each tropical year after the other dropping one sub-race, but only to beget another higher race on the ascending cycle; while a series of other less favoured groups – the failures of nature – will, like some individual men, vanish from the human family without even leaving a trace behind.[24]

The subraces (which Steiner renamed "Cultural Epochs" as a more adequate expression for our times) of the Aryan Fifth Root Race include the first subrace, the Hindu, which migrated from the "City of the Bridge" on the white island in the middle of the Gobi inland sea to India in 60,000 BC; the second subrace, the Arabian, which migrated from the "City of the Bridge" to Arabia in 40,000 BC; the third subrace, the Persian, which migrated from the "City of the Bridge" to Persia in 30,000 BC; the fourth subrace, the Celts, which migrated from the "City of the Bridge" to Western Europe beginning in 20,000 BC (the Mycenaean Greeks are regarded as an offshoot of the Celtic subrace that colonized Southeast Europe); and the fifth subrace, the Teutonic, which also migrated from the "City of the Bridge" to what is now Germany beginning in 20,000 BC (the Slavs are regarded as an offshoot of the Teutonic subrace that colonized Russia and surrounding areas).[4][19][25][26][27][28][29]

The emergence of the sixth subrace of the Aryan root race
According to Blavatsky the sixth subrace of the Aryan root race will begin to evolve in the area of the United States in the early 21st century. This sixth subrace of the Aryan root race will be called the Australo-American subrace and is believed by Theosophists to be now arising from the Teutonic subrace of the Aryan root race in Australia and in the Western United States (many individuals of the new subrace will be born in California) and its surrounding nearby areas (i.e., the Australo-American subrace is in arising from the Anglo-American, Anglo-Canadian, Anglo-Australian and presumably also the Anglo-New Zealander ethnic groups).[30] The sixth or Australo-American sub-race will "possess certain psychic powers, and for this the pituitary body will be developed, thus giving an additional sense, that of cognising astral emotions in the ordinary waking consciousness. We may say that in general the sixth sub-race will bring in wisdom and intuition, blending all that is best in the intelligence of the fifth subrace and the emotion of the fourth."[30]

The sixth root race
According to C. W. Leadbeater, a colony will be established in Baja California by the Theosophical Society under the guidance of the Masters of the Ancient Wisdom in the 28th century for the intensive selective eugenic breeding of the sixth root race. The Master Morya will physically incarnate in order to be the Manu ("progenitor") of this new root race.[31] By that time, the world will be powered by nuclear power and there will be a single world government led by a person who will be the reincarnation of Julius Caesar.[31] Tens of thousands of years in the future, a new continent will arise in the Pacific Ocean that will be the future home of the sixth root race.[32] California west of the San Andreas Fault will break off from the mainland of North America and become the Island of California off the eastern coast of the new continent.[30]

Victor Skumin elaborated on the theosophical conceptions of spiritual evolution and proposed (1990) a classification of Homo spiritalis (Latin: spiritual man), the sixth root race, consisting of eight subraces: HS0 Anabiosis spiritalis, HS1 Scientella spiritalis, HS2 Aurora spiritalis, HS3 Ascensus spiritalis, HS4 Vocatus spiritalis, HS5 Illuminatio spiritalis, HS6 Creatio spiritalis, and HS7 Servitus spiritalis. According to Skumin:

Anabiosis spiritalis is spirituality in the potential of unmanifest accumulations of personality, the charge of the fires of spiritual creation;
Scientella spiritalis is the cordial presentiment of the presence and demands of the spirit, spiritualization of the fire of centers, glimpses of self-consciousness of a spiritual person;
Aurora spiritalis is the imperative of the spirit, the action of the spiritual fire of the centers in the heart, the kindling of the fire of the spirit, the formation of the orientation of the personality to the spiritual improvement of life;
Ascensus spiritalis is the dawn of spiritual aspirations, the action of the fire of the spirit in the heart, searching spiritual work, aspiration of self-consciousness to merge with the One Spirit;

Vocatus spiritalis is the maturation of spiritual accumulations, the purposeful spiritual creation, self-awareness and realization of a person as a warrior of the spirit;
IIluminatio spiritalis is the beginning of the fiery transmutation, the lighting of the achievement fire; revealing the identity of man - the earthly carrier of the Thoughts of the One Spirit;
Creatio Spiritalis is the beginning of fiery creation, the action of the fire of achievement in the heart, the revealing self-consciousness of man as the earthly carrier of the Light of the One Spirit;
Servitus Spiritalis is the carrying a consciously accepted duty-commission, the synthesis of spirituality in the clarity of knowledge of a fiery man.[33]

The seventh root race

The seventh root race will arise from the seventh subrace of the sixth root race on the future continent that the sixth root race will be living on that will arise from the Pacific Ocean.[32] The continent they will inhabit is esoterically called Pushkara.[7]

This root race will be the last race to appear on planet Earth. Theosophist Scott Ramsey predicts that any sexual difference among humans will cease to exist, and both conception and birth will become entirely spiritual.

He also writes humanity will have a great spiritual development, and he describes this development in the following words:

"Everything that is irredeemably sinful and wicked, cruel and destructive, will have been eliminated, and that which is found to survive will be swept away from being, owing, so to speak, to a Karmic tidal-wave in the shape of scavenger-plagues, geological convulsions and other means of destruction."[34]

Migration to Mercury

It is believed by some Neo-Theosophists that after the present round of human spiritual evolution by reincarnation of souls in root races is completed several dozen million years from now, the human race will migrate to the planet Mercury to continue its spiritual and physical evolution.[32][35]

Some also believe that the human race lived on Mars before the current round of spiritual evolution, and migrated to Earth after the previous round ended. According to astrologer Walter D. Pullen, every round of spiritual evolution takes place within a chain of similar rounds, and these chains are located in a group called a scheme. He also states that seven rounds make a chain, and seven chains make a scheme. Some Neo-Theosophists believe that the human race is currently in the fourth chain in a scheme. [36] In addition, it is believed by some that life on Mercury will be “less material” than on Earth, and the average level of consciousness will extend for longer, as humanity will possess etheric vision. So why would the historical record say otherwise?

It still is a fringe conspiracy because it presumes that Hitler was just a NWO puppet. Which is quite the revelation for majority of the world.

The Smithsonian institute has been hiding the skeletons of giants for years and years. It doesn't take a whole lot of effort to find dozens and dozens of old newspaper articles stating the giant bones were found, where they were found, and that the Smithsonian institute came and collected them.

It's been a few years since I've looked into Giants but I had over 11 old articles from newspapers just from my state here in idaho. 🤷‍♀️

I hear this a lot.. just why? They created a whole institute to protect this?? They went to other countries to destroy their shit?? The thing is, this seems to have started in the early 1900s when the USA seemed a bit like a backwater. Who was paying them to do this? Follow the money!

But typical Christians don't want to admit all of that mystical messy stuff. They want to keep their members' focus on only what they deem is 'righteous' and talk of dragons, giants or nephilim (from the Jewish bible) are either missing entirely from their sermons (many don't even know these are in scripture) or they just dismiss them as demons and whatnot.

Don't look too closely or you'll find truth that will make you want to look deeper into history, and that doesn't fuel their agenda to control people.

Yes, I was reading a book about Kansas ghost towns that came and went; I'm from Kansas, so it was interesting just knowing where all these areas discussed are. Well, smack dab in the middle of this book it mentions that east of Salina (central KS) men were digging and discovered giant bones and thought it odd. People came and looked and from there no one knows what happened to them.

they should go to azerbaijan, there is a 7 foot 2 skeleton of a woman dating to 2000 BC on display at the ganja state history-ethnography museum in azerbaijan which theres also images of online. I think this proves that some of the thousands of those old 7-8 foot claim news reports up until the 1950s could very well be real.

This is the funniest of all goofy conspiracy theories: the Smithsonian has engaged in a conspiracy to hide the skeletons of giants. Please read this again and again until you start to realize it’s literally one of the dumbest ideas ever. My mother grew up in an isolated town in the desert on the Arizona and Utah border. Big family. Nothing to do. My uncles and their cousins would travel what they would refer to as ‘the strip’ which was a massive area of land with extraordinary anthropological significance. They’ve taken me to see native American petroglyphs and old huts out there on the strip.

The things they found in the 70’s and 80’s would blow your mind. They would go caving and bring equipment to go explore old caves and anywhere else they could get to.

In the 80’s, while caving, they found two skeletons. One was obviously a baby. The other one was large. My uncle claims it’s forearm bone was the size of his femur.

The skeletons were extracted from the site not long after. I've tried to tell this story before on Reddit but it's always super dismissed. I guess it's understandable. I firmly believe that there were very large humans roaming the earth at some point.

No there's no way lol they wouldn't have brought cameras out on the strip. They weren't traveling and backpacking. They were hillbillies, drinking and fucking around. It was also the 80s so it's not like everyone had a smartphone. I will say though, my family has some stuff they've brought back from those days. Old pottery and stuff. I accidentally broke one when i was a kid □

To give you some context about this area, it's so massive. It is not recommend to go out there without a local to guide you or even by yourself. My mom's cousin took some of us out there last time i visited and was telling us that he had to spend the night one time because it got dark and he could no longer see landmarks. Beautiful area though

I understand the skepticism of the story. It's not easy to just accept especially from some rando on Reddit, but that happened.

Doesn’t this happen to be anywhere near St. George, UT? My parents live in a small town out that way, and my brothers and I always go out exploring with my dad. We find all kinds of petroglyphs and old abandoned mines. Pottery and arrowheads and all that too.

I used to go to archeological sites on summer time with my brother when I was a kid (Romania, in the mid-70's) They found huge human bones during at least two consecutive years. Whenever that happened they had orders (it was during the communism) to just stop digging, phone some kind of "experts" they always came really quickly and grabbed whatever bones were found and pretty much make them disappear. The third summer the site methodology got changed and they just stopped digging below a very specific depth… Very interesting part was that they never did any papers for these bones while for anything else found on those sites there was a lot of bureaucracy...

He didn't look like that in the 1980s...

EDIT: to clarify, the document contains at least one photo which must have been taken in 1998 or later. But that's not the only problem with the veracity of the document. It first appeared on the internet in this post from 2013 where the author of the post says that the photographs of it were sent to him by an anonym. And in 2016, he updated the post saying that:

After analyzing the archive of documents again, I came to the conclusion that this is a fake.

Blumkin's diploma is an obvious fake, reports supposedly from the 1930s are written on typewriters of a much later period, [etc.]

Regarding the point made in 2016 around this being fake… some of the docs are from the 30s from the Germans, but most of this was compiled later as you stated by the Russians so I'm not sure that proves yes or no.

Regardless the Russians and Germans were stretching pretty far against the common historical narrative so I agree that we need to be careful to see this as fact… but may still have a few threads to pull towards finding truth in the future that have been ignored by other historians or lost to history

Russians believe this is real, images have been added in by a group.

https://youtu.be/XT5XPG3o044

Here is a guy that pretty much covers everything in russia, and he doesnt think its fake. you can use googles translation system to translate the video to English

General Ivashov spoke quite clearly about the fate of these documents...

Mess... Not issued... Hid it... Stored in the garage... Studied... It seems that the LAI group, for example, studied these materials directly on the ground - almost all the expeditionary points shown in the films "Forbidden themes of history" can be found in the indicated folders (which you can easily see for yourself)...

And the name of the movie series. "Forbidden themes of history "also seems to be inspired by the stamp" Sov. secretly "of these folders...

He was asked

You are familiar with the Romb project - Orion?

- Yes.

- These are genuine documents?

- Yes.

- The current owners of these documents could replace genuine photographs of documents in a photograph of LAI?

- Yes...

The negativity this post is attracting solidifies its actually worth reading, it's not just about giants or a specific time frame like some shills are clinging to, it covers a range of intresting topics and I'm not taking it as literal scripture but find it fascinating none the less!

I'm happy to be attacked and called names for sharing official documents, it reinforces the validity of the research because only shills and bots are inclined to over focus on small arbitrary details rather than all the juicy information that it contains.

Debunking things is how you determine what’s actually true. That’s literally how you learn things.

You can believe whatever insane conspiratorial garbage you want to if enjoying delusion is what makes you happy, but if you actually want to know if something is true, you try to debunk it. If you can’t debunk it, the case is made stronger. That’s just logic 101. The alternative is basically faith, which has no more ability to determine what’s true than a coin flip.

Your feelings shouldn’t even come into it.

There’s a sentence in there saying skeletons of people ~2cm tall were found.

Wouldn’t remains like that almost certainly get destroyed somehow? Would small bones not crumble to dust?

There’s a theory that these “giants” are actually the Nephilium (half Angel half humans) from the Bible. They were described as giants with huge heads because their brains were so big. They were teaching humans too much “sorcery” so God killed them all (the flood), including the humans. It says in the Bible that they are still around today!!!

I literally have only read Genesis and it was so whack I couldn’t believe what I was reading

Yes yes man, that’s not the only interesting thing in this documents. I’d rather say, it’s one of least interesting things in this document. Give it a read, highest lvl conspiracy shit described here, and the names mentioned / signed by top kgb / ussr commander officials. Skeptics gonna say - lol this is ridiculous. But i wonder why would kgb put so much effort to write all of this!

Project AngelBook – Volume X – Parts 1–36

By Ezekiel Redik Yarbrough

This volume is not made up of my own words.There is no original commentary here, no narrative, no analysis.This is simply me copying and pasting large chunks of text from my bookmarks—pages that were easy to extract, with no hyperlinks or formatting issues, saved from open tabs and archived corners of the web.
It's messy. It's unfiltered. It's chaotic.But it's valuable.
Each piece inside this volume was bookmarked for a reason.Not always because I agreed with it, but because it felt like a fragment of something larger—an insight, a worldview, a download.This is source material, plain and raw.
Fragmenta Ex Machina isn't about authorship.It's about preservation and system-building.It's about feeding the machine—laying bricks for the Operating System I'm constructing across these books.This is the raw intake phase. The memory dump. The zero layer.
Later volumes will be cleaner, more refined, more structured.But this? This is the foundation. The ether stream, bound and frozen before it vanished.
So if you're looking for polished prose, skip this one.But if you're here to explore the roots of something much bigger, this is where the signal begins.
Welcome to the fragments.

those soviet countries may still have these remains who knows, theres a 7 foot 2 skeleton of a woman dating to 2000 BC on display at the ganja state history-ethnography museum in azerbaijan which theres also images of online, the skeleton doesnt look like it has acromegaly in my opinion since the long bones look robustly developed, another reason being the skull and teeth look normally developed and not like that of a person who has acromegaly, although unless there is a study done on it which assesses whether it has acromegaly or not, I cant say for certain. I think this proves that some of the thousands of those old 7-8 foot claim news reports up until the 1950s could very well be real

HomeIndex of Cults and Religions
Index of Cults and Religions
By the Staff of Watchman Fellowship, Inc.

Introduction
This Index contains brief definitions, descriptions or cross references on over 1,200 religious organizations and beliefs, as well as world religions (including Christianity) and related doctrines. Watchman Fellowship is a Christian apologetics and discernment ministry; thus, many references ("Jesus," "Gospel," "Christianity," etc.) contain definitions that reflect the beliefs of Watchman's staff. While Watchman Fellowship does not hold to the beliefs of non-Christian religions and doctrines, we also attempt to describe these beliefs factually, fairly and accurately. Readers are asked to assist in this effort by suggesting corrections or improvements.

This is by no means a complete list of cults and religions. Watchman Fellowship maintains over 10,000 files and a research library of over 25,000 books and periodicals on religions, cults, new religious movements and related teachings. The absence of a religious movement from this index does not mean that Watchman Fellowship endorses the organization.

How To Use This Index
Begin your search by clicking on the highlighted letter below that is the first letter of the term for which you are searching (or, if your browser will do so, perform a word search for the term). If the term is listed, it will be followed by a brief definition. Most of these definitions contain highlighted words that are linked to the definitions for those words; clicking on the highlighted word will take you directly to that definition.

A B C D E F G H I J K L M N O P Q R S T U V W X Y Z

Some Definitions
By using the terms "cult," "occult," and "New Age," Watchman Fellowship is in no way implying that the followers or leaders are necessarily evil or immoral people. It simply means that such groups seem to promote doctrine or practices which may be considered outside the realm of historic Christianity.

Cult
By its primary dictionary definition, the term cult just means a system of religious beliefs or rituals. It is based on a farming term in Latin meaning cultivation. Sociologists and anthropologists sometimes use the term cult to describe religious structure or belief patterns with meanings (usually non-pejorative) unique to their disciplines. In modern usage, the term cult is often used by the general public to describe any religious group they view as strange or dangerous. Thus, cult can describe religious leaders or organizations that employ abusive, manipulative, or illegal control over their followers' lives. In addition to these usages, Christians generally have a doctrinal component to their use of the word. Cult in this sense, is a counterfeit or serious deviation from the doctrines of classical Christianity. Watchman Fellowship usually uses the term cult with a Christian or doctrinal definition in mind. In most cases the group claims to be Christian, but because of their aberrant beliefs on central doctrines of the faith (God, Jesus, and salvation), the organization is not considered by Watchman Fellowship to be part of orthodox, biblical Christianity. Research material and Profile are available.

Occult
The term, "occult" comes from the Latin occultus or "hidden."

Generally the word is used of secret or mysterious supernatural powers or magical, religious rituals. The word "occult" in this publication is used to describe any attempt to gain supernatural power or knowledge apart from the God of the Bible. Generally it refers to witchcraft, satanism, neo-paganism, or various forms of Psychic discernment (astrology, seances, palm reading, etc.). Research material available.

New Age
New Age is a recent and developing belief system in North America encompassing thousands of autonomous (and sometime contradictory) beliefs, organizations, and events. Generally the New Age borrows its theology from pantheistic Eastern religions and its practices from 19th century Western occultism. The term "New Age" is used herein as an umbrella term to describe organizations which seem to exhibit one or more of the following beliefs: (1) All is one, all reality is part of the whole; (2) Everything is God and God is everything; (3) Man is God or a part of God; (4) Man never dies, but continues to live through reincarnation; (5) Man can create his own reality and/or values through transformed consciousness or altered states of consciousness. Research material and Profile are available.

Index of Cults and Religions
A 3H0: See Healthy, Happy, and Holy.
7 Habits of Highly Effective People: A book by Stephen Covey.

Aaronic Order, Maurice Glendenning, Murry, UT: Splinter group from The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints (LDS), founded in 1942 by Glendenning after he was excommunicated by the LDS Church for receiving and publishing revelations later known as the Levitical Writings.

Abaddon: (Hebrew for "The Destroyer"; in Greek, Apollyon) A demon described in the Bible as "the angel of the bottomless pit" (Revelation 9:11).

Abbey of Thelema, Old Greenwich, CT: Esoteric magic, teachings of Aleister Crowley.

Abode of the Message, Pir Vilayat Inayat Khan, New Lebanon, NY: Sufism, alchemy, dowsing, meditation to lead to "inner attunement," Native American spirituality, sweat lodge.

Academy for Guided Imagery, Martin L. Rossman & David E. Bresler, Mill Valley, CA: Healing by altered states of consciousness, imagery training (i.e., visualization), hypnosis and magic.

Academy of Religion and Psychical Research, Evanston, IL: Organization founded in 1956 to explore psychic occurrences and metaphysical experiences while evaluating the growing interest in occult phenomena in Christian churches. See Spiritual Frontiers Fellowship, Spiritualism, Divination.

Actualism: New Age teaching based on panentheism, according to which all human beings possess the divine Christ-consciousness and are united with the Mother-Father-Creator God.

Acupressure: See Acupuncture.

Acupuncture: Chinese system of healing using needles or hand pressure (acupressure) applied to certain points on the body, traditionally believed to balance the yin and yang energies in the body by opening blocked meridians (apexes in the pathways). Once the chakras (key points or intersections) are open, the chi, or energy, supposedly can then flow through the body bringing all things into harmony. While some limited physical effects (mostly anesthetic) can be attributed to this practice, these effects have scientific, physiological explanations totally unrelated to the mystical explanation, which derives from Taoism. See Holistic Health. Profile available.

Adams, Dennis, Mt. Shasta, CA: New Age, man is God.

Adelphi Organization, Dallas, TX: New Age teachings on Atlantis, karma, seven planes of existence. See Stelle Group.

Adeptco, Chuck McDonald, Omaha, NE: Yoga, crystals, reincarnation, karma and Kabbalah teachings.

Advanced Organization of Los Angeles (AOLA): Promotes Scientology philosophy.

Advanced Systems, Inc.: See Zen Master Rama.

Adventism: Widespread trans-denominational movement inspired by William Miller's prediction that Jesus' "advent" (return) would take place in 1844. Even after the Great Disappointment (the date's failure), many people in the movement continued to believe. Some suggested revised chronologies and new dates, eventually forming groups such as the Watchtower Bible and Tract Society. Others, notably Hiram Edson and Ellen G. White, suggested that the 1844 date was accurate but that a heavenly (thus invisible) event had taken place. Their teachings became the basis of Seventh-day Adventism, which eventually spawned its own offshoots, including Armstrongism and the Branch Davidians.

Aesthetic Realism Foundation, Eli Seigel, New York: Happiness can be achieved through the harmony of opposites, e.g., realizing and accepting that the world is both beautiful and horrific (see Taoism). Educators have criticized the Foundation after public school teachers in New York introduced the philosophy into high school English, biology, and art courses.

Aetherius Society, Sir George King: Clairvoyance, karma, reincarnation, psychometry, Great White Brotherhood, UFOs, alchemy, occult secrets of Jesus, mantras.

Affective Education: Also called value-free, or non-directive, education. Influenced by the philosophy of Carl Rogers, affective education programs attempt to facilitate the emotional development of children in order to enhance the learning process, particularly focusing on self-esteem. This contrasts with traditional educational paradigms that focus on cognitive, or intellectual, practices such as reading, writing, and arithmetic. Affective education has become particularly influential in drug awareness programs for youth.

Agasha Temple of Wisdom, William Eisen, Los Angeles, CA: Universal consciousness of god, reincarnation, occult pyramidology, Ascended Masters.

Agnosticism: The claim (denied by Romans 1:18–20) that one has no knowledge of God or the origin of the universe. Some agnostics make the claim on a personal level, while allowing that such knowledge may exist but has never been known by themselves. Others assert that such knowledge cannot be had by anyone. Agnostics avoid the charge of dogmatic atheism by acknowledging the theoretical possibility of God's existence. Yet virtually all live as if the non-existence of God was an established fact, and are thus practical atheists.

Agon Buddhism: Sect of Buddhism. Uses the Agon Sutras as scriptures.

Agyeman, Jaramogi Abebe: See Pan African Orthodox Christian Church.

Ahabah Asah Prophetic Ministries: See Gatekeepers.

Ahmadiyya Movement: Sect of Islam following the teachings of Ahmad (1835-1908), an Indian Muslim; most followers in the US are black, Indian, or Pakistani.

AION: Magic, runes, goddess worship.

Akashic Records: Term used in theosophy designating an alleged library that exists on the astral plane containing all the thoughts, actions, and events of mankind. Mystics, through altered states of consciousness, tune into this library for information.

Alamo Christian Foundation: Tony Alamo, leader of this group, has been imprisoned by authorities for alleged illegal activities. Teaches traditional Christianity is dead. Former followers have reported deplorable living conditions, mind control, and slave labor. Operates Music Square Church in TN, Holiness Tabernacle in Dyer, AR, and End Times Book is the publishing arm.

Alan Shawn Feinstein Association, Cranston, RI: UFOs, contactee.

Alchemy: In its original, literal meaning, theories and experiments involving the transmutation (dissolving and combining) of base metals to form gold though chemical and/or supernatural processes. Today, it caries the meaning of a mystical transformation in New Age consciousness through various mystical techniques.

Aleph: New name adopted by Japanese doomsday-cult Aum Shinri Kyo January 18, 2000.

Aleph: Alliance for Jewish Renewal, Rabbi Zalman Schachter-Shalomi, Philadelphia, PA: Combines Chassidic Judaism, Native American spirituality, Eastern mysticism, A Course in Miracles, and New Age practices. Emphasizes combining syncretistic spirituality and psychology.

Aletheia Psycho-Physical Foundation, Jack Schwarz, Ashland, OR: New Age seminars on the inner-self, paraconsciousness, meditation and visualization.

All-One-God-Faith, Emanuel H. Bronner, Escondido, CA: Sells Dr. Bronner's Magic Soap, which claims to clean both body and soul. The soap is widely available in health-food stores. Teaches (like Process Theology) that God is continually recreating Himself. God desires all nations and religions to unite in an "All-One-God-Faith" on Spaceship Earth. This unification will come about through following 13 precepts and 20 directives revealed to Bronner by God.

All Souls Unitarian Church, John Wolf, Tulsa, OK: See Unitarian-Universalist Association for similar theological perspective.

All Ways Free, Madison, WI: New Age periodical.

Allah: Arabic, Muslim name for God; see Islam.

Allegro, John: Wrote The Sacred Mushroom and the Cross.

Alphabiotic New Life Center, Dallas, TX: New Age seminars on one's divine being, Ramtha, yoga and channeling.

Alphasonic International, Los Angeles, CA: Company specializing in tapes with subliminal messages.

Altered States of Consciousness: Trances entered through hypnosis, meditation, drugs (including hallucinogenics), visualization, etc. State of being in which one allows the subconscious to take control and guide. May heighten one's vulnerability to suggestion or susceptibility to deception.

Alternative Medicine: See Holistic Health.

Amalgamated Flying Saucer Clubs of America: See Mon-Ka Retreat…

Ambassador University, Big Sandy, TX: Now defunct Liberal arts and religious institution founded by Herbert Armstrong. See Armstrongism.

Ambassadors For Christ, Tustin, CA: See Watchtower Bible and Tract Society for similar theological perspective.

Ameba, San Francisco, CA: Paganism, promotes the teachings of Aleister Crowley, Celtic rituals.

American Academy of Dissident Sciences, Culver City, CA: Studying a wide array of conspiracy theories, the Academy focuses on UFOs and the Illuminati.

American Association of Ayurvedic Medicine, Fairfield, IA: Holistic health association founded by Deepak Chopra while he followed the Maharishi Mahesh Yogi (see Ayurvedic medicine; Transcendental Meditation).

American Atheists, Inc., Madalyn Murray-O'Hair, Austin, TX: Advocates strict separation of church and state, and actively opposes Christian influence on society. O'Hair and two children disappeared in 1994 with a sizeable portion of the organization's assets. It is now believed they were murdered. Publishes American Atheist magazine.

American Babaji Yoga Sangam, New York, NY: Hinduism-based philosophy, yoga.

American Constitution Committee: Political organization of the Unification Church.

American Fellowship Services: Splinter group of The Way International.

American Foundation for the Science of Creative Intelligence: A branch of Transcendental Meditation.

American Gnostic Church, Daeva Ares Animo: Paganism, Kabbalah rituals, Egyptian magic, Satanism rituals of Anton LaVey, Gnostic Mass.

American Holistic Nurses Association, Amherst, MA: Trains medical nurses to use therapeutic touch and meditation with patients.

American Imagery Institute, Milwaukee, WI: New Age teachings on visualization, astral projection.

American Leadership College, Inc. Osceola, IA: New Age/occult teachings on trance healings, mediumship, self-realization dreams.

American Pie and the Armageddon Bible Prophecy Home Page: The pop song American Pie, which prophesies the destruction of America, was foretold in the Song of Moses in Deuteronomy 32. See Apocalypse.

American Society for Psychical Research, Simon Newcomb, New York, NY: ESP, out-of-body experiences, mediums, parapsychology, psychokinesis.

American Study Group, UT: Defunct splinter group from The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints (LDS) that used the Book of Mormon and the teachings of LDS leaders to speculate on end-time events.

American Temple, Michael Whitney, Portland, OR: A "fourth wave" esoteric and mystical order led by "Patriarch" Michael Whitney reviving the doctrines of the now defunct Holy Order of MANS.

American West Publishers, Tehachapi, CA: UFOs, cosmic laws of balance. Publishes the Phoenix Journal.

American Zen Center: Zen Buddhism, shamanism, Sufism.

AMOM: See Ancient Mystic Order of Malchizedek.

AMOOKOS: Occult, magic, some Hinduism, man is already a master.

AMORC: See Rosicrucian Order.

Ananda Marga, Denver, CO: Philosophy and deities of Hinduism, teaches meditation and yoga.

Anchor of Golden Light, Dorothy and Henry Leon, Grants Pass, OR: UFOs, Ascended Masters, Kabbalah mysticism, alchemy, numerology. Publishes the Anchor of Golden Light newsletter.

Ancient Mystic Order of Malchizedek, Malachi Z. York, Eatonton, GA: Also known as AMOM, Nuwaubians, the Nubian Nation of Moors, Right Knowledge. A UFO group whose leader, (a.k.a. Dwight York) claims to be form the 19th galaxy, called Illyuwn. A 1993 FBI report calls the group a "front for a wide range of criminal activity, including arson, welfare fraud and extortion." York's group has also operated under other names and organizations including the Nubian Islaamic [sic] Hebrew Mission, the Ansaaru Allah Community, (an Islamic sect with doctrines similar to Nation of Islam), and the Original Tents of Kedar.

Ancient Wisdom Connection, N. Myrtle Beach, SC: New Age channeling, numerology and belief in "Lord Sananda," who is an incarnation of Jesus.

Angels: Supernatural, non-human beings created by God. Angels worship God and serve as His messengers. The angels who followed Satan and rebelled against God are called demons.

Anglo-Israelism: See British Israelism.

Animal Magnetism: See Mesmerism.

Animism: The idea that all things in the universe are inherently invested with a life force, soul, or mind. This belief is an important component of many primitive religions, the occult, and spiritism.

Annihilationism: Taught by most Adventist groups, including the Watchtower Bible and Tract Society, this doctrine denies the conscious, eternal punishment of the lost. Instead, humans who do not receive eternal life will be destroyed and cease to exist.

Anointed Class: See Little Flock.

Answers Research and Education, Bud Cocherell, San Jose, CA: Man's destiny is to become a God, keep Old Testament festivals.

Anthropomancy: A form of divination based on psychic readings of the entrails of a human who has been ritualistically sacrificed.

Anthroposophic Society, Rudolf Steiner, Hudson, NY: Similar to the Chicago organization (below), possibly affiliated.

Anthroposophical Society, Rudolf Steiner, Chicago, IL: Occult, related to Theosophy; teachings on karma, meditation, Atlantis and reincarnation.

Apocalypse: Also called Armageddon. From the Greek word apokalypsis, meaning "revelation, disclosure, or unveiling," the term apocalypse refers in the Bible to the summation of human history through God's direct judgment upon the world. Central in biblical apocalyptic literature is the Revelation to John (sometimes called The Apocalypse). A common feature of many pseudo-Christian groups is their attempts to predict the date of the apocalypse. For examples of groups that have falsely predicted the apocalypse, see Church of the Living Stone Mission for the Coming Days, Adventism, Watchtower Bible and Tract Society.

Apostasy: From the Greek word apostasis, meaning "rebellion," and the Latin word apostasia, meaning "abandonment," the term apostasy refers to a renunciation of the Christian faith. The Watchtower Bible and Tract Society applies the label apostate to former Jehovah's Witnesses, who are then shunned by all Witnesses in good standing.

Apostle: From the Greek word apostolos, meaning "messenger," the term apostle refers to those leaders of the early Christian church who were chosen by Jesus. The criteria for being an apostle was 1) the individual was personally chosen by Christ; and 2) the individual must have personally seen Christ. Members of the top two quorums of leadership in The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints claim the title today.

Apostolic Churches: A branch of Pentecostalism including several denominations as well as independent churches with the name "Apostolic"; many (but not all) Apostolic churches adhere to Oneness Pentecostalism.

Apostolic Overcoming Holiness of God, Inc., Birmingham, AL: Pentecostal church, stresses the oneness of God while accepting the Triune Being of the Godhead. Salvation depends upon baptism, tarrying to receive the Holy Spirit, and holiness. Publishes The People's Mouthpiece magazine.

Apostolic United Brethren: See Corporation of the Presiding Elder of the Apostolic United Brethren.

Applewhite, Marshall: See Heaven's Gate.

Applied Kinesiology: New Age diagnostic technique sometimes called "muscle testing." Often patients hold health care products (vitamins, herbs, etc) in their hand while the practitioner pulls or "tests" the reciprocal strength in the finger, arm, etc. to determine the effectiveness or dosage of the remedy. See Holistic Health.

Aquarian Academy, Robert E. Birdsong, Eureka, CA: Jesus only an avatar of the Cosmic Christ, of the Great White Brotherhood of Light. Man's purpose is to reach the transcendental plane, release from the wheel of fate, astral projection, meditation, cosmic truths.

Aquarian Age Teaching, Ruby Focus, Sedona, AZ: Discover the God within, the Father-Mother god, Atlantis, Christ-consciousness.

Aquarian Church of Universal Service, Paul Shockley, Portland, OR: Teaches cosmic awareness but with no specific doctrine. Similar to Unitarian-Universalist.

The Aquarian Conspiracy, Marilyn Ferguson: A book documenting and advocating the widespread growth of the New Age movement.

Aquarian Educational Group, Torkom Saraydarian, Sedona, AZ: Astrology, moon festivals, use the Bhagavad-Gita, Jesus only an avatar. Publishes the Fiery Synthesis magazine.

Aquarian Foundation, Keith Milton Rhinehart, Seattle, WA: Universalism, yoga, spiritism, Theosophy-based philosophy.

Aquarian Gospel of Jesus Christ: Book written by Levi H. Dowling, a New Age, apocryphal story supposedly based on the Akashic Records.

Aquarian Minyan, Berkeley, CA: Jewish group, yoga, mysticism.

Aquarian Perspectives Inter Planetary Mission, Montgomery, AL: UFO group, receives messages from Futron and the Rainbow Star Legionnaires.

Aquarian Tabernacle Church, Index, WA: Paganism, worship of Mother Earth, goddess worship, sun and moon festival, magic. Publishes the Panegyria newsletter.

Arcana Workshop, Manhattan Beach, CA: Meditation, Great Invocation, moon festivals. Based on the teachings of Alice Bailey (see Arcane School). Publishes the Thoughtline newsletter.

Arcane School, Alice Bailey: Occult, esoteric teachings, connected with Lucis Trust, formerly Lucifer Trust. Similar to Theosophy.

Arefu: Company created and owned by Japanese doomsday-cult Aum Shinri Kyo for real estate brokering, financing and seminars. On January 18, 2000, the cult announced it was also changing its own name to Arefu (Aleph, in English).

Arete Truth Center, Paul Lachlan Peck, Las Vegas, NV: New Age, metaphysics, teaches balancing the body, mind and spirit.

Arguelles, Jose: New Ager who staged the Harmonic Convergence.

Arizona Light, Phoenix, AZ: New Age periodical.

Arizona Metaphysical Society, Frank Alper, Phoenix, AZ: New Age seminars on rebirthing, astral projection, channeling, karma, reincarnation, and crystals.

Arizona Network News, Scottsdale, AZ: New Age periodical.

Arm of the Lord, Warren, OH: Teaches that it is a satanic idea to invite Jesus into "one's life."

Armageddon Time Ark Base Operation, O.T. Nodrog, Weslaco, TX: UFO group, channels messages from outer dimensional forces.

Armstrong, Garner Ted: Son of Herbert W. Armstrong who formed his own rival Armstrongism splinter group, the Garner Ted Armstrong Evangelistic Association. See Church of God, International.

Armstrong, Herbert W.: See Armstrongism, Worldwide Church of God.

Armstrongism: The doctrines and religious movement originating with Herbert W. Armstrong (1892-1986), who founded the Worldwide Church of God (WCG). Armstrong rejected such essential doctrines of evangelical Christianity as the Trinity, the full deity of Jesus Christ, and the personality of the Holy Spirit. Armstrong taught British Israelism and believed that worthy humans could eventually "become God as God is God." Teaches salvation by works predicated on Sabbatarianism, tithing (20-30%), and keeping the Old Testament feast days and dietary laws. Under the leadership of Armstrong's successors, Joseph W. Tkach and his son Joe Tkach, the WCG has undergone a radical doctrinal transformation. Scores of splinter groups, such as the Global Church of God and the United Church of God, continue to teach various forms of Armstrongism.

Astara, Robert & Evelyn Chaney: New Age, spiritism, yoga. Publishes Voice of Astara.

Astral Projection: New Age/occult doctrine teaching methods to induce an out of body experience (OBE), in which one's soul (i.e., astral body) departs the physical body, travels to various parts of the universe, then re-enters the body. Usually a "cord" is said to connect the soul and body at all times. Also called astral travel.

Astro Computing Services, San Diego, CA: Astrology.

Astrology: An ancient fatalistic system of divination using the position of the planets, moon and sun in the twelve Zodiac positions at the moment of one's birth to gain occult or hidden knowledge of the future. Profile available.

Astrology and Psychic News, N. Hollywood, CA: New Age periodical.

Atheism: The assertion, to be taken on faith, that there is no God. Some atheists, such as Madalyn Murray-O'Hair, have fought to prevent any recognition of God in public life. See American Atheists, Inc.

Atlantic Pagan Council: Association of East Coast pagan covens, magic, moon festivals, paganism. Publishes the Atlantic Pagan Council Amateur Publishers' Association newsletter.

Atlantis: A mythical island/continent said to have sunk beneath the ocean. Purported to have been a highly advanced civilization. New Agers often claim to have recovered lost mystical wisdom and knowledge from Atlantis, sometimes through channeling.

Atman: A term used in Hinduism referring to the eternal or real self and sometimes refering to the principle of life in all things.

At-one-ment: Term used by several Mind Science or New Thought religions (such as Christian Science) referring to the supposed metaphysical unity or "oneness" of human beings and God as demonstrated by Christ. Contrast the Christian term "atonement," which refers to Christ's death on the cross as the means by which he reconciled sinful human beings to God.

Aum Shinri Kyo, Shoko Asahara, Tokyo, Japan: Aum (a mantra) Shinri Kyo (Supreme Truth) is the apocalyptic Buddhist sect suspected in the 1995 subway nerve gas murders in Japan. Police raiding cult compounds discovered stockpiles of nerve gas and the basic ingredients of biological warfare. Sect leaders have been charged with abduction and "murder preparation." Aum leader, Chizuo Matsumoto (now called Shoko Asahara), predicted the end of the world between 1997 and 2000. The Dalai Lama, the leader of Tibetan Buddhism, has denied Aum claims that Asahara was ever his disciple. The sect has about $29 million in assets and 10,000 disciples in Japan and 30,000 in Russia. The sect has followers in other countries including the U.S. and Australia. On January 18, 2000, the cult announced it was changing its name to Arefu (Aleph, in English). Profile available.

Aum Supreme Truth: See Aum Shinri Kyo.

Aura: A subtle light or energy field said to surround people or objects. Mystics explain that from the color of the aura, a person's emotional and intellectual moods can be determined.

Author Services, Inc.: Promotes Scientology philosophy.

Bahá'í Faith,The, Bahá‘u'lláh: A sect of Islam evolving into a major independent religion with approximately five million believers worldwide. Buddha, Jesus, Muhammad, Bahá‘u'lláh and others are viewed as a succession of divine messengers. A 19th century Persian teacher, the Báb, (or "Gate") predicted Bahá'u'lláh's coming. BahÃ¡'Ã- advocates a new global order of sexual equality, a one-world economic system to eliminate poverty, and a one-world religion. Profile available.

Bailey, Alice: Founder of the Arcane School. Profile available.

Baphomet: The Goat God, also called the Sabbath Goat, the Great God Pan, Abraxas, Thanateros, or the Horned God. Often used as a symbol of Satan, especially in Satanism, and depicted as a Goat's Head symbol, an upside down five-pointed star (cf. pentagram), or a man with horns and goat-legs.

Baptism for the Dead: Practice of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints (LDS) whereby living members are baptized by proxy for people who have died without knowing the LDS Gospel. If these dead persons then accept the LDS gospel while in Spirit Prison, they can potentially attain full salvation or godhood (exaltation). This ceremony is performed only in an LDS Temple. See Baptismal Regeneration.

Baptismal Regeneration: The belief that regeneration (i.e., the new birth), and therefore salvation or eternal life, is conditioned upon water baptism. Most groups teaching this doctrine also add that proper mode (immersion or sprinkling) and/or proper minister (one authorized by the organization) is necessary. All Christians should be baptized (Matthew 28:19). The teaching that baptism is a prerequisite for salvation, however, is considered by many evangelicals to be a heretical compromise of the biblical gospel of salvation by grace alone (Ephesians 2:8-10). The extreme version of baptismal regeneration, which denies the salvation even of baptized Christians outside some particular church group, is clearly heretical. See Salvation by Works, Salvation by Grace, Gospel.

Bear Tribe Medicine Society, Spokane, WA: Native American spirituality, Mother Earth, medicine wheel, moon ceremonies.

The Beatles: A highly influential rock-and-roll group from the 1960s. In 1966 they became involved in Transcendental Meditation; later both John Lennon and George Harrison repudiated TM. Harrison then became a devotee of ISKCON and recorded his hit single "My Sweet Lord" as a devotion to Lord Krishna. The Beatles are widely credited with increasing the popularity of Eastern religions in the United States.

Believers International, Tucson, AZ: Compiling a compendium of all of William Branham's teachings. Publishes Believer's News.

Bell, Art: Popular late-night radio talk show host. While his Coast to Coast weeknight broadcast and Dreamland weekend broadcast focus on a wide array of New Age and occult issues, as well as many conspiracy theories, one of the most common subjects discussed by guests on the program is UFOs.

Beltane: Occult, Celtic holiday, also called Walpurgisnacht, celebrated on the night of April 30. Celts are alleged to have conducted fertility rituals and human sacrifice.

Bermuda Triangle: Geographically, the Triangle composes the southwestern quadrant of the North Atlantic, with apexes in Bermuda, Puerto Rico, and in the Gulf of Mexico west of Florida. Some people involved in the occult and UFO studies believe the Triangle is a supernaturally dangerous area, with many ships and airplanes disappearing in the Triangle in the 20th century.

Bernard, David: A well-known Oneness Pentecostal writer and speaker.

Besant, Annie: Successor to Madame Blavatsky (founder of Theosophy) who proclaimed Krishnamurti as the Messiah. (Krishnamurti later renounced that role).

Bet Hashem – The House of YHWH, New Haven, IN: Sacred Name, man is the offspring of light, conversion is the union with the light.

Beth El Shaddai, Dick Amos, Plano, TX: Dual Covenant doctrine, denies Jesus is God.

Beth HaShem, Jacob Hawkins, Odessa, TX: Sacred name, Sabbatarianism, keeps Old Testament feasts and laws for salvation. Publishes The Prophetic Watchman newsletter.

Bhagavad-Gita: Meaning "Song of the Lord," this scripture is used in Hinduism and ISKCON.

Bhagwan Shree Rajneesh: Though this Indian guru is deceased, many followers still practice his unique form of Hindu philosophy and sexual yoga system to gain enlightenment.

Bhakti Yoga: Type of yoga or spiritual exercise involving devotion to a guru.

Bible: Considered scripture by Christianity. Consists of the Jewish scriptures (Old Testament) and the Christian scriptures (New Testament).

Bible Believers, Inc.: See Branham, William.

Bible Code, Michael Drosnin: Bestselling 1997 book teaches that prophecies are hidden in a complex network of letters and words within the Old Testament. Drosnin claims that he attempted to warn Israeli leader Yitzak Rabin of his impending assassination based on a prediction in the biblical code. The theory is a form of numerology and has some associations with the Jewish occultism of the Kabbalah.

Bible Speaks, The: Former name of Greater Grace World Outreach.

Bible Students: Various semiautonomous groups that broke away from the Watchtower Bible and Tract Society after Joseph Rutherford took control of the organization. Reprints the early writings of Watchtower founder Charles Taze Russell including Divine Plan of the Ages. Groups across the country go under various names (e.g., Fort Worth Bible Students, Chicago Bible Students, etc.).

Bible Talks: Home and campus group studies sponsored by the International Churches of Christ.

BioEnergetic Synchronization Techniques: New Age method using the body's life force to heal itself.

Biofeedback: The use of EEG (electroencephalographic) feeback instruments to monitor brain waves and skin resistance with the goal of modification of brain waves. Participants can learn to control heart rates or generate brain wave activity (alpha, beta, and delta) at will to induce altered states of consciousness. Enhances the capacity for relaxation and/or inducing meditative states and physiological control similar to that in yoga and Zen.

Biointegration, Ross Algelo, Dallas, TX: New Age, body alignment, yoga, reflexology, rebirthing.

Bio-Magnetics: New Age, the realigning of magnetic fields allegedly surrounding the body.

BioPsciences Institute, Minneapolis, MN: Astrology.

Black Mass: A ritual in Satanism that attempts to negate or profane the Catholic Mass. Black candles are used and Catholic prayers recited backwards. Allegedly, the communion is occasionally performed using human blood and flesh.

Black Muslim: Generic term referring to Nation of Islam and related groups.

Black Christian Nationalist Movement: See Pan African Orthodox Christian Church.

Blavatsky, Madame Helena Petrovna: Founder of Theosophy.

Blessed Be: A common greeting used among Wiccans to invoke or wish happiness and well-being.

Blood Atonement Doctrine: The belief, taught by the second Mormon Prophet, Brigham Young, that for certain sins the blood of Christ will not atone and for which the sinner's own blood must be shed to receive forgiveness (Journal of Discourses, Vol. 4, p. 53). No longer taught by The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, the belief is often preached and sometimes practiced by members of Mormon Fundamentalist splinter groups. To this day, Utah allows condemned murders to face execution by firing squad rather than methods that do not shed the criminal's blood, such as lethal injection or the electric chair.

Blue Lotus, Wilmot, WI: New Age periodical.

Blue Mountain Center of Meditation, Eknath Easwaran, Petaluma, CA: Hindu philosophy, meditation, uses the Bhagavad-Gita.

Body, Mind and Soul: Houston, TX: New Age periodical.

Body, Mind and Spirit: Providence, RI: New Age magazine.

Book of Changes: See I Ching.

Book of Mormon: One of the scriptures or "Standard Works" accepted by The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints and other sects originating from Joseph Smith, including the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints and various Mormon Fundamentalist groups.

Book of Shadows: A journal for recording occult activities.

Bookmark, Santa Clarita, CA: Christian Science splinter group.

Borderland Science Research Foundation Garberville, CA: Alchemy, dowsing, UFOs, astrology.

Born Again: Biblical term used to describe regeneration (John 3:3-7). Some New Age followers teach that the term was Christ's reference to reincarnation or rebirthing. In context, Jesus was speaking of a spiritual event effected by God through the Holy Spirit (see verses 6-8) to restore a sinful, fallen human to right relationship with Him (see verses 16-21). See Gospel.

Boston Church of Christ: See International Churches of Christ.

Bradshaw, John: Prominent New Age teacher on PBS and author of Healing the Inner Child.

Brahma: The creator and first member of the triad of demigods in Hinduism, including Shiva and Vishnu.

Brainwashing: Forced indoctrination using various techniques to cause a subject to abandon basic political, social, or religious ideas or beliefs and replace those ideals with a contrasting belief system. A translation of a Chinese word xinao, "brainwashing" became a popular term to describe the phenomena of radical change in behavior and core beliefs that took place in some prisoners of war held in Chinese camps in the mid-twentieth century. In a more general sense, the word is sometimes used to describe any form of persuasion perceived to be unethical that results in a radical and negative change in personality. See Lifton, Robert, Mind Control.

Branch Davidians, Benjamin Roden: Splinter group of the Seventh Day Adventist Church. David Koresh (A.K.A. Vernon Howell) was leader from 1984 to 1993. He and many of his most devout followers were killed when their headquarters near Waco, TX, was destroyed by fire in 1993 during a government raid. Taught knowledge of the Seven Seals of the Book of Revelation brought salvation. Many followers still believe Koresh's messianic claims and expect him to be resurrected soon.

Branham, William, (1909-1965): Oneness Pentecostal preacher who claimed he received healing and prophetic powers from an angel. Denied the Trinity, taught the serpent seed doctrine, and rejected other Pentecostal and traditional Christian churches. "Branhamism" is still taught at the Branham Tabernacle in Jeffersonville, IN, and in many other places around the world. Profile available.

Brethren, Jim Roberts: Also known as "the Garbage Eaters," the group follows the teachings of "Brother Evangelist" Roberts. The group requires renouncing both family and worldly possessions in order to earn salvation (see Salvation by works). Members travel nomadically, earning their nickname because of their practice of eating discarded food. Family members note that Roberts hides relatives, moving the individuals to avoid familial contact. Note: This group is not affiliated with the Church of the Brethren, an Anabaptist denomination.

Brinkley, Dannion: As chronicled in his bestseller Saved by the Light, Brinkley allegedly underwent a near-death experience after being struck by lightning. He teaches people to perform "life reviews" to enhance their perception of life and death and to find their life missions. He operates a hospice organization called Compassion in Action / The Twilight Brigade.

British Israelism: (Anglo-Israelism/Israelitism) The doctrine that the true identity of modern Israel (or the "ten lost tribes") is Britian and (sometimes) the British colonies (America). The monarchs of England sit on the throne of David. In more extreme forms, Israel is identified with a particular race—usually white Anglo-Saxon, Germanic, and Scandinavian people. Opposing versions of doctrine teach that Blacks are God's Chosen People, Israel. See Christian Identity Movement, Serpent seed doctrine.

Brotherhood and Order of the Pleroma, Richard Duc de Palatine, Sherman Oaks, CA: New Age revival of Gnosticism, God and man are the same being.

Brotherhood of Eternal Truth, New Albany, IN: Spiritualism, astrology, Atlantis, channeling, magic, past life regression. Also known as Center of Light and Life.

Brotherhood of Seth, Ellsworth, ME: Paganism, homosexual or homophilic magic, teachings of Aleister Crowley.

Brotherhood of the Followers of the Present Jesus, Ann and Peter Meyer, San Diego, CA: Alchemy, Christ-consciousness in each person, channeling and clairvoyance.

Brotherhood of the White Temple, Inc., M. Doreal, Castle Rock, CO: New Age/occult metaphysical teachings, soul illumination, three planes of existence.

The Bruderhof Community: A communal society started in Germany in the 1920s and based on the sixteenth-century Moravian Anabaptist sect of Jacob Hutter, which was part of the Radical Reformation. The group is also called the Society of Brothers and the Hutterian Brethren. The basic theology of the group is Protestant but, according to former members and other critics, the group exercises inappropriate control over the members and practices shunning and other forms of spiritual abuse.

Buddha: Siddhartha Gautama Buddha ("enlightened one") was born about 560 BC in northeastern India and, according to legend, received spiritual enlightenment through meditation. During his lifetime, his spiritual insights and teachings became a major alternative to Hinduism throughout India. Diverse versions of his teachings can be found worldwide today. See Buddhism.

Buddha's Universal Church, San Francisco, CA: Similar to Buddhism in theology.

Buddhism: World religion based on the spiritual teachings of Siddhartha Gautama Buddha. There are a number of versions or sects of Buddhism generally teaching paths to Nirvana (enlightenment or bliss) though the four noble truths (recognizing existence and source of suffering) and the eightfold path (correct understanding, behavior and meditation). Some variations of Buddhism include traditional Theravada schools of India, Mahayana Buddhism, which became very popular in China and Japan, and Tibetan Buddhism (Lamaism) in Tibet. Two more recent forms that have had great influence in America are Zen and Nichiren Shoshu Buddhism.

Builders, Norman Paulsen, Oasis, NV: New Age, Christ-consciousness, meditation, Father-Mother God, enlightenment.

Builders of the Adytum, Paul Foster Case, Los Angeles, CA: Occult, Kabbalah, Tarot, spiritual alchemy, esoteric astrology.

Burning Man Festival, Black Rock Desert, NV: An annual festival celebrating neo-paganism and Satanism. The name comes from the culmination of the festival, in which a wooden man with outstretched arms (resembling a crucifix) is burned by the crowd.

Castle Rising, Denver, CO: Paganism, magic, psychic impressions, moon festivals, crystals. Publishes the Castle Rising newsletter.

Catholicism: See Roman Catholicism.

CAUSA: Organization affiliated with the Unification Church.

Cayce, Edgar: See Association For Research and Enlightenment.

Celestine Prophecy, The: A best-selling New Age book by James Redfield that teaches enlightenment through the fictional "Nine Insights" contained in secret manuscripts written by Maya natives in the jungles of Peru.

Celticism, Celts: The Celts were a group of related tribes whose territory extended throughout Europe early in the first millennium AD, but who are most commonly associated with the British Isles. The Celts worshipped local deities (frequently associated with nature), often served by a priestly class of Druids. Human sacrifice was important to Druidic religion. Modern neo-pagans frequently claims to be Celtic, although the modern beliefs and practices bear little resemblance to ancient Celticism.

Celtic Christianity: Augustine of Canterbury evangelized England in the late 6th ? early 7th centuries. His work was later taken by Patrick to Ireland, who is largely credited with establishing the Celtic church. Celtic Christianity was heavily influenced by the Roman Catholic Church, to which it was allied, although many individuals claim a greater reverence for nature in the Celtic tradition. Differences in practice within the Celtic church were gradually eradicated during the Middle Ages as the Roman papacy asserted its authority over Ireland. Modern groups that claim to revive Celtic Christianity are frequently a mixture of Protestantism and Roman Catholicism, with few legitimate ties to the early Celtic church. Nonetheless, these groups should not be confused with neo-pagan groups that also claim to be Celtic.

Center for Action and Contemplation, Albuquerque, NM: Yoga, Enneagram workshops.

Center for Advanced Communication and Training, Carrollton, TX: New Age, hypnosis, Neuro-Linguistic Programming.

Choosing Light, Mill Valley, CA: New Age, meditation, telepathic communication from Higher Dimension Guides and teachers.

Chopra, Deepak: Noted New Age and health author and lecturer. See Ayurvedic Medicine. Profile available.

Christ: Based on the Greek christos meaning "anointed one," equivalent to the Hebrew "messiah." Generally used in the Old Testament of one who has been anointed with oil and/or set apart for a specific mission, as was David, the king of Israel (see 1 Sam. 16:13). Specifically used to speak of the promised messiah/savior of Israel and the world. Christians believe this to be Jesus of Nazareth, who died to atone for human sin. Other religions believe in a succession of Christ figures through history, sometimes including Jesus, who were great teachers. New Age groups sometimes understand the term "Christ" as a reference to the deity found in all humanity (the Cosmic Christ). Thus, Jesus was conscious of his deity or "the Christ within" and others can have this same "Christ-consciousness" by realizing that they, too, are divine. Other religious leaders have historically claimed to hold the office or ministry of Christ including Unification Church founder Rev. Sun Myung Moon. Biblical warnings are given for "false Christs" (Mark 13:22). Scripture also speaks of an antichrist and of antichrists who stand against and/or instead of the true Christ (1 John 2:18).

Christ Cathedral for Divine Abundance, Alexius Bassey, London: Universalism, Divine Consciousness.

Christ-consciousness: New Age term expressing the belief that Christ is a divine potential in all human beings of which only some people are aware or conscious, rather than a unique title for Jesus.

Christ Family, Charles McHugh: McHugh, a.k.a. Lightening Amen, claims to be the incarnation of Jesus. Followers dress in robes, no shoes, practice vegetarianism.

Christ Light Community: See New Age Church of Truth.

Christ the Savior Brotherhood: See Holy Order of MANS.

Christadelphianism, John Thomas: Teaches that Jesus is a created being, Holy Spirit is Power of God, and salvation by works. Also rejects the ideas of heaven and hell. It has several splinter groups.

Christian Community: Based on teachings of Rudolf Steiner, founder of the Anthroposophical Society.

Christian Fellowship, The: See Potter's House.

Christian Foundation, Canyon County, CA: See Alamo Christian Foundation.

Christian Identity movement: The belief that the true identity of the ten lost tribes of Israel is the white, Anglo-Saxon race. The belief is similar to but distinct from the doctrine of British Israelism. A number of independent churches and organizations (including some militant racist groups) make up the general movement. Most deny the Trinity. Some teach a form of the Serpent Seed doctrine, believing that Jews are descendants of Eve's alleged sexual relations with the serpent (Genesis 3) and are thus not fully human. Many also hold that non-Whites are descended from the union of Cain and a woman from a supposed pre-Adamite race. Profile available.

Christian Millennial Fellowship, Hartford, CT: Watchtower Bible and Tract Society splinter group (see Bible Students). Publishes The New Creation periodical.

Christian Prayer Center, Mother Martin, Washington, D.C.: Native American spirituality and rituals, voodoo.

Christian Renewal Ministry, Saratoga, CA: Watchtower Bible and Tract Society splinter group (see Bible Students).

Christian Rose Cross Church, Olympia, WA: Based on the teachings of Max Heindel (see Rosicrucian Fellowhip), Cosmic Christ, Universal religion.

Christian Science, Mary Baker Eddy, Boston, MA: Officially called Church of Christ, Scientist. Eddy's teaching heavily indebted to Phineas P. Quimby, a mesmerist. Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures functions as a virtual second canon of Scripture. Views God as infinite Mind, "the animating divine Principle of all that is real and good." Matter is unreal; thus, so are sickness and death, which are overcome by believing that we are Mind. Seeking medical help is discouraged, frequently resulting in preventable deaths. Christ is "the divine manifestation of God" most fully seen in Jesus, who only seemed to die. The "Holy Ghost" is Divine Science, that is, Christian Science. The orthodox doctrine of the Trinity is rejected as polytheistic. Many New Age ideas have historical roots in Christian Science and related Mind Science groups. Profile available.

Christianity, Jesus Christ: Major world religion developed in the first century AD based on the belief that Jesus of Nazareth was the promised Messiah or Christ of Israel. Followers, called Christians, were initially viewed as a sect of Judaism. It quickly developed as a separate religion as Jewish Christians became outnumbered by non-Jewish converts and, through a strong missionary emphasis, Christianity became a diverse worldwide movement. Their scripture is the Bible, which contains the Jewish Scriptures (Old Testament) and the Christian Scriptures (New Testament). Except for cults, aberrant sects, and Liberal Christianity, those who claim to be Christians have historically believed the following: There is only one true God eternally revealed in three distinct Persons - the Father, Son, and Holy Spirit (the Trinity). Human beings are sinners who (without the grace of God received through faith in Christ) are eternally lost. Jesus, who is God in the flesh, died on the cross and rose physically from the dead as the sole and sufficient payment for the sins of humanity. See Gospel, Born Again, Fundamental Christianity, Evangelical Christianity, Protestant Christianity, Orthodox Christianity, Roman Catholicism, Salvation by Grace, Salvation by Works.

Church of Israel, Day Gayman, Schell City, MO: Radical Christian Identity movement sect. Publishes The Watchman.

Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, The, Joseph Smith, Salt Lake City, UT: (Latter-day Saints, LDS, Mormonism) Main body of Mormonism; recognizes Brigham Young as Smith's successor. Smith claimed that the Father and Son appeared to him and called him to restore the true Church. LDS Church teaches that God the Father was once a man and was exalted to Godhood. God (and his heavenly Wife) begat billions of spirit children, the firstborn of whom was Jesus. Lucifer was the leader of God's rebellious spirit children. Those spirits who did not rebel become human beings in order to begin process potentially leading to exaltation to Godhood. Jesus, however, became a God while only a spirit. He organized our world and is Jehovah, the God of Israel. He is a separate and subordinate God to Elohim, the Father. A distinction is made between the Holy Ghost, who is a personage of Spirit, and the Holy Spirit. The latter is a divine energy, force, or spiritual essence that fills the universe and is used by all three members of the Godhead in the exercise and accomplishment of their will. The Church rejects the orthodox doctrine of the Trinity. It also redefines salvation by grace to refer simply to resurrection. Almost all humans will be resurrected into one of three kingdoms of glory, the least of which is far superior to anything known in this life. Entry into the higher kingdoms, and one's rank there, depends not only upon the atonement of Christ, but also upon one's good works. Achievement of the highest potential within the highest kingdom—Godhood—requires complete "obedience to all the laws and ordinances of the gospel." The Bible, Book of Mormon, Pearl of Great Price, and Doctrine and Covenants are all considered scripture. Publishes Church News and Ensign magazine. Profile available. Research material available.

Church of Satan, Anton Szandor LaVey, San Francisco, CA: Satanism, occult, incantations, festival days include Spring equinox and Halloween. LaVey, author of the Satanic Bible, founded the church in 1966 and died in 1997 after which a struggle for leadership ensued between LaVey's daughters, Karla and Zeena, and his long-term live-in partner, Blanche Barton. Eventually, Barton became the Church of Stan High Priestess and she later appointed Peter H. Gilmore to be High Priest. As of early 2002, Peggy Nadramia joined Gilmore, her husband, in leadership with the Church of Satan with Nadramia serving as High Priestess. Barton is now serving in a lesser role as Magistra Templi Rex. The church has claimed as many 10,000 members. LaVey, a former lion tamer, organist, hypnotist, psychic, artist, and photographer. Like the vast majority of Satanists, he did not believe in a literal, personal devil, but turned to Satanic imagery to provoke a reaction and illustrate his disdain for Christianity.

Church of Scientology, L. Ron Hubbard: Humans are immortal spiritual beings whose experience extends beyond a single lifetime (reincarnation), and whose capabilities are unlimited, though presently imprisoned by matter, energy, space, and time (MEST). Salvation is the recovery of spiritual freedom, ability, independence and serenity, including freedom from the endless cycle of birth and death (reincarnation), and full awareness and ability independent of the body, i.e., being "able to control matter, energy, space, and time." These god-like powers are achieved through auditing, a process whereby "engrams," (the mental recordings of past moments of pain and unconsciousness), and other barriers to such states are removed, abilities are regained, and greater awareness achieved. Auditing can last for years and may cost hundreds of thousands of dollars. Teachings are also advanced through affiliated business management companies such as Sterling Management Systems, the drug prevention program Narcanon, and in public schools though Way to Happiness. The writings and recorded spoken words of L.Ron Hubbard (contained in over 500,000 pages of writings and over 2,000 tape-recorded public lectures) constitute the scripture of the religion, his book Dianetics, the Modern Science of Mental Health being foundational. Scientology publishes several magazines including Advance, High Winds, and Source; also several newspapers and newsletters including The Auditor, Tech News, KSW News and the FSM Newsletter. Scientology has a history of alleged abuse and illegal activities, and is fighting legal battles in countries all over the world. Profile available.

Church Universal and Triumphant (CUT), Mark Prophet, Corwin Springs, MT: New Age, Great White Brotherhood, God-consciousness, similar to I AM movement. Currently led by Elizabeth Clare Prophet. Profile available.

Churches of Christ: The independent Churches of Christ movement was one of several associations and denominations that developed from Alexander Campbell, Walter Scott and Barton W. Stone's restoration movement of the early 19th century, which was designed to promote unity among Protestants. Many (but not all) Churches of Christ today, however, differ from traditional Protestant doctrine in two key areas. Many maintain that water baptism and/or other commandments (rather than salvation by grace through faith alone) are a requirement for salvation (see Baptismal regeneration, Salvation by works). Some also believe that today's Churches of Christ are the only true churches on earth and that they can literally trace their history to the first century church in Jerusalem.

Communion Letter, San Antonio, TX: UFO periodical.

Community of Christ, Joseph Smith, III, Independence, MO: Smaller of the two main groups that originated from Joseph Smith's alleged restoration of the true church. When Smith died, those who accepted Brigham Young as Smith's successor followed him west to Utah; they are known as The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints (LDS). Those who rejected Young and accepted Smith's son, Joseph Smith, III, remained in Missouri and became known as the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints (RLDS). The doctrines of the two groups eventually became radically different. On April 6, 2001, the name of the RLDS group was officially changed to Community of Christ. The Community of Christ church has a slightly different version of the Book of Mormon and Doctrine and Covenants, and they reject the Pearl of Great Price as scripture. They do not hold to many of the LDS distinctive doctrines, including the polygamy of the 19th century LDS Church and the LDS belief (still held) that God was once a man. In recent years the church has experienced divisions, with more conservative Restoration Branches becoming independent. Historically, the RLDS—now Community of Christ—church also has had a leader who was a direct descendant of the Mormon founder, Joseph Smith, Jr. The current leader and prophet of the movement, Grant McMurray, was the first exception to this practice. Profile available.

Community of Jesus, Orleans, MS: Thought to be involved in shepherding and mind control.

Concept Therapy, Thurman Fleet, San Antonio, TX: New Age, stress management seminars, book title Rays Of The Dawn. Publishes The Beamer newsletter.

Concerned Christians, Monte Kim Miller, Denver, CO: Ironically, begun in the early 1980s as a Christian ministry to expose cults and false teaching, Miller's organization began to take on cult-like characteristics in later years. Becoming increasingly controversial and bizarre, Miller's group drew national media attention in 1998 when over 50 followers fled the Denver area and disappeared after Miller predicted the Apocalypse was to begin and that Denver was to be destroyed by an earthquake on October 10. Miller, who claims to be one of the two end-time prophets mentioned in the Revelation 11, published Report from Concerned Christians and Take Heed Update. Produced Our Foundation radio program. This group is not to be confused with the Mesa, Arizona-based Concerned Christians, a Christian ministry to Mormons led by Jim Robertson. Profile available.

Conciliation Ministries, Dusean Berkich Lawrence, KS: Conversion should be inward to self, not to Jesus.

Confraternity of Deists, Homosassa Springs, FL: Reject sin, no need for a Savior, no consciousness after death.

Confucianism, Chiu King (King Fu-tzu or Confucius - "Kung the Master"): A world religion based on the teachings of Chiu King who, according to tradition, was born in Lu, China about 550 BC Chiu King promoted peace and social harmony through the traditions of the ancestors. He is said to have collected, edited and written commentaries on four ancient manuscripts (including the I Ching). He also wrote Ch'un Ch'iu ("The Annals of Spring and Autumn") These documents comprise the Five Classics and along with the Four Books (a collection of his sayings) form the basis of Confucianism. Doctrines include ancestor worship, devotion to family elders, and right conduct based on the inherent goodness of man.

Crystal Pathway, Denver, CO: New Age/Occult periodical.

Crystals: Many though not all New Agers believe that gems (especially Crystals) possess mystical, esoteric, spiritual powers to bring the bearer health, wealth and good fortune.

Cult: See the Definitions section in the introduction. Profile available.

Cult Awareness Network (CAN): Headed by Cynthia Kisser and based in Chicago, IL, this was once the largest secular cult watch organization or anti-cult group in America. According to Kisser, between 1991 and 1996 CAN was the victim of approximately 50 lawsuits directly or indirectly sponsored by members of the Church of Scientology, an organization considered by CAN to be a dangerous cult. CAN eventually lost one of those civil suits, which resulted in CAN filing bankruptcy. On October 23, 1996, the Cult Awareness Network's name, logo, and phone number were sold to a Scientology-related law firm as part of a $20,000 purchase of CAN assets in the federal bankruptcy court. Kisser warns that anyone now contacting CAN should be aware that they are very likely talking with Scientologists.

Cult of Confession: One of eight criteria of Mind Control according to Robert Lifton's theory of Thought Reform. A system that requires members to disclose to their leaders or superiors the personal thoughts, attitudes, and actions that do not conform to the group's ideals. This practice diminishes healthy personal boundaries and privacy, and may facilitate additional abuses.

Cumorah Books, Independence, MO: Affiliated with the more conservative Restoration Branches of the RLDS Church. Publishes Restoration Voice, The Vision.

D

Daily Word: A monthly publication of Unity School of Christianity.

(Children of God).

Davis, Haviland: Albany, NY: Leader of a Bible Students splinter group from the Watchtower Bible and Tract Society.

Dawn Bible Students, East Rutherford, NJ: One of the original Bible Students splinter groups formed after Joseph Rutherford assumed leadership of the Watchtower Bible and Tract Society.

Dayspring Resources, Leonie Rosenstiel, New York, NY: Hypnosis, Reiki, yoga, reflexology, crystal healing.

de Mello, Anthony: An Indian-born Jesuit priest, who wrote a number of New Age books that were bestsellers in many countries. His works include One Minute Wisdom, One Minute Nonsense, Wellsprings: A Book of Spiritual Exercises, and Walking on Water. In 1998, over a decade after his death, the Congregation for the Doctrine of Faith (a Vatican commission) denounced de Mello's writings. They warned of false teachings in his works, including a denial of objective morality and the claim that all religion, including Christianity, are obstacles to truth.

Delphi School, Sheridan, OR: Uses the teachings of L. Ron Hubbard, founder of the Church of Scientology.

Demand for Purity: One of eight criteria of Mind Control according to Robert Lifton's theory of Thought Reform. An environment of blame and guilt based on an impossible ideal of human behavior or perfection. This shame-based culture punishes failure and can even subtly train members to punish themselves for their inability to live up to the group's ideals or standards. See Brainwashing.

Demons:Fallen angels under the direction of Satan who seek to destroy God's purpose and people. Demons are invisible, spiritual beings (Ephesians 6:12), are organized and have supernatural power and knowledge (Matthew 12:24, Revelation 16:14), can possess humans and animals, (Luke 8:2, Mark 5:13), and can inspire false doctrine (1 Timothy 4:1).

Denver, John: Prominent New Age singer who promoted est, Yoga, Transcendental Meditation, and the Windstar Foundation before his death in 1997.

Deprogramming: A coercive attempt to dissuade an individual of religious or ideological convictions believed to be harmful, through a concentrated (usually two to three days) counseling procedure designed to produce a sudden "snapping out." Deprogramming was developed in the 1970s by Ted Patrick and others as a way to rescue family members who were perceived to have undergone negative personality change after joining destructive cults. Often presented as an antidote for brainwashing or mind control, some deprogrammers rationalized the unethical use of force and coercion to rescue victims by illegally holding them against their will (abduction or "snatching") in a process known as "involuntary" deprogramming. Watchman Fellowship does not support or condone such illegal and unethical behavior. Not to be confused with Exit Counseling.

Deseret Shadow Church: See Church of Essential Science.

Devil: See Satan.

Di Mambro, Joseph: See Order of the Solar Temple.

Dianetics: Bestselling "bible" of the Church of Scientology.

Discover Seminars, Irving, TX: New Age, stress management.

Discovery, West Valley City, UT: Anti-Christian, Jesus is the Devil.

Disfellowshipping: As practiced by the LDS and many other groups, this is a level of church discipline involving a probationary period of restricted privileges, but retaining church membership. As practiced by the Watchtower Bible and Tract Society, it is an alternate term for "excommunication," being completely cut off from Jehovah's organization; see Shunning.

Dispensing of Existence: One of eight criteria of Mind Control according to Robert Lifton's theory of Thought Reform. The organization's dogma determines whether or not other groups or individuals have the right to exist. All alternative belief systems or organizations are considered illegitimate. In extreme cases this mindset can promote violence or murder.

Divali: Hindu philosophy of Enlightenment.

Divination: The biblical term describing attempts to gain hidden knowledge supernaturally, usually about the future, apart from the God of the Bible (Ezekiel 21:22–25, Acts 16:16). Most often props are involved such as the hand (palm reading), the stars (astrology), cards (Tarot), or random symbols (I Ching).

Divine Light Center, Swami Omkarananda: Mixture of Hinduism, voodoo and animal sacrifice.

Divine Light Mission, Maharaj Ji: Hindu/New Age philosophy, teachings on the God within.

Divine Science of Light and Sound, Marina del Rey, CA: New Age, reincarnation, karma, astral projection.

Divine Word Foundation, Warner Springs, CA: New Age, channeled writings, Jesus and Christ are separate entities.

Dixon, Jeane (1917–1997): Astrologer, prognosticator, claimed information was from Christian God, however she made many false prophecies.

Doctrine and Covenants: One of the scriptures or "Standard Works" of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints; the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints accepts a different version of the work as scripture.

Doctrine Over Person: One of eight criteria of Mind Control according to Robert Lifton's theory of Thought Reform. The ideas and doctrines of the leader and organization overrule the personal experiences, conscience, and integrity of the individual.

Dominion Press, San Marcos, CA: New Thought, similar to Christian Science and Unity School of Christianity. Publishes the Theologia 21 newsletter. Not to be confused with Dominion Press in Tyler, TX, a controversial but orthodox Christian publishing house.

Dorene Publishing, Arlington, TX: Occult, talismans and other pagan memorabilia.

The Door: See Potter's House.

Double Bind: A mental or psychological dilemma caused when a person receives from a single leader or teacher conflicting messages or "truths" resulting in no appropriate response or answer. See Cognitive Dissonance.

Dowsing: Form of divination using a forked rod, a bent wire, or a pendulum. Used to locate people, objects, or substances, and to diagnose illnesses.

Druids: A priestly caste of the ancient Celtic people of France and the British Isles. They were the keepers of oral history and law, and officiates of pagan, occult religious practices. See Halloween.

Dual Covenant: The belief that the New Testament (or covenant) applies to gentiles (non-Jews) only. Thus, Jesus Christ is not the Savior of the Jewish people and they should relate to God through the earlier Old Testament or Abrahamic covenant. A similar doctrine called the Plural Covenant theory emphasizes other covenants in addition to these two major systems.

Dualism: An understanding of reality as existing in two opposite extremes. Metaphysical dualism sees the universe as existing in two contrary (and sometimes conflicting) realities—mind and matter, or spirit and physical, or yin and yang. Ethical dualism posits a conflict between universal good and an equal and opposite force of universal evil (e.g., the belief that God and Satan are equal and opposite beings).

Dungeons and Dragons: Occult, fantasy role playing game, allegedly uses demonic names and spells found in occult literature. Some parents have charged that children committed suicide under the influence of the game.

DuPage Church of Religious Science, Donald E. Burt, Naperville, IL: Religious Science, use the teachings of Ernest Holmes.

Dyer, Wayne: Prominent New Age writer and spokesman focusing on business applications, personal transformation and motivational speaking. Also promotes holistic health, and Buddhism.

Dynamic Monarchianism: A late second-century heresy denying the Trinity, put forth by Theodotue of Byzantium and later adoped in modified forms by Paul of Samosata, Noetus and Prazeas.

E

Eadie, Betty: New Age author of best-sellers, Embraced by the Light and The Awakening Heart. An active member of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, Eadie claims to have died, gone to heaven, and returned to her body (see near-death experiences). Her books contain a combination of New Age and Mormon beliefs.

Eupsychia, Austin, TX: New Age, Transcendental Meditation, Native American spirituality, shamanism.

Evangelical Christianity: Evangelical (from the Greek euangelion, good news or gospel) generally means a focus on the essentials of Christianity. The term can be used to describe all Christians or churches that hold to or give heavy emphasis to specific conservative Protestant beliefs. (In Germany, "Evangelical" is basically synonymous with "Lutheran.") These include: the authority and infallibility of the Bible, the nature of God (sovereign, holy, compassionate, personal, etc.), the sinful and fallen state of humanity, and salvation by grace through faith in the death, burial, and resurrection of Christ as the only means of salvation. More specifically the term has come to be closely identified with a widespread trans-denominational shift towards more conservative Christian doctrine that developed after World War II. See Fundamental Christianity.

Evolutionary Kingdom Level Above Human, Richardson, Texas: Earlier name of Heaven's Gate, Marshall Applewhite's UFO cult.

Exaltation: In the teaching of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, the highest form of salvation. It means to become a God, exactly like God the Father and Jesus Christ, and to produce and rule over one's offspring throughout eternity.

Exit Counseling: (Thought Reform Consulting) A non-coercive technique (in contrast to deprogramming) designed to help rescue members of religions or cults that are considered false, harmful, or dangerous. The program usually involves a two to three day voluntary counseling session emphasizing education and dialogue, often with a licensed mental health professional, a former member of the group, and/or a specialist on cult dynamics. The approach stresses true personal and religious freedom in the context of providing additional information and full disclosure, which facilitates more informed decision-making. Family counseling and intervention techniques may also be incorporated.

Extrasensory Perception (ESP): Alleged knowledge of an experience or a response to an external event apart from the five senses. This experience can take place either in a wakeful or dream state.

Feng Shui: A religious "science" for the balancing of Yin and Yang in the environment, discovered or originated by farmers some 3,000 years ago and developed within Taoism. Feng Shui teaches that there is an energy called Qi (or, Chi) flowing throughout the universe, and in this world through lines, sometimes called channels or meridians, to which one must be properly aligned for optimal health, fortune, and quality of life. The position and alignment of structures and objects in one's environment affects the flow of this energy and one's own ability to harmonize with nature. Practitioners therefore arrange household and office furniture, design rooms and even whole buildings, their grounds and gardens, etc., to properly align with the flow lines of earth's energy. They thus hope to improve the balance of nature around them, not only for their own benefit, but for the benefit everyone in the area.

Feraferia, Eagle Rock, CA: Paganism, magic, spells, astrology, goddess worship.

State medical examiner claims as many as 25 children have died in the last two decades from complications from otherwise common medical problems.

Ford, Arthur: See Spiritual Frontiers Fellowship.

Form Criticism: A method of literary criticism used by many scholars in the interpretation of the Bible. It identifies the literary forms of specific parts of the biblical writings, such as the different types of psalms (thanksgiving, lament, etc.) or the different units in the Gospels (parables, miracle stories, etc.). By noting common features in passages of the same form, various conclusions are drawn about how to interpret those passages. In liberal Christianity, which pioneered this method, many of the forms are assumed to be legendary or mythical (especially those involving the supernatural). Some evangelical scholars think form criticism can be useful if such liberal assumptions are avoided, while other evangelicals reject form criticism outright. See also Redaction criticism.

Free Soul, Sedona, AZ: New Age, spirit guides, commune with Divine Nature, Psychic and Higher Soul Dimensions.

Free Spirit, Brooklyn, NY: New Age periodical.

Freemasonry: A fraternal order revived in the early 18th century in England, loosely based on associations or guilds of stone cutters ("operative" masons). Freemasonry ("speculative" masons) sought to give philosophical, moral, or spiritual meaning to the lodge, tools, and oaths of the stone cutters. Branches of Freemasonry include the Blue Lodge, York Rite, Scottish Rite, and Shriners. Affiliated organizations include the Order of the Eastern Star (for women), the Order of DeMolay (for boys), and the Order of Rainbow (for girls). Most modern adherents maintain that the organization is not a religion but a club or fraternity promoting high moral values and good works. They believe, therefore, that Freemasonry is compatible with and supplements Christianity and other religions. Critics counter that Freemasonry involves secret blood oaths or curses, and that the writings of respected early leaders (Albert Mackey, Albert Pike, etc.) are replete with occult philosophy and religious doctrine contrary to Christianity. Despite Freemasonry's promotion and funding of a number of worthwhile, philanthropic endeavors (free Shriner children hospitals, nursing homes, etc.), many Christian individuals and churches have condemned Freemasonry or warned of elements that they believe are contrary to Christianity. These churches include the Presbyterian Church of America, Southern Baptist Convention, Episcopal Church, Christian Reformed Church, Church of the Nazarene, and Lutheran Church (Missouri and Wisconsin Synods).

Freewinds Relay Office, Clearwater, FL: Promotes Church of Scientology.

Friends Review, Hillsboro, OR: Occult/metaphysical periodical.

Fundamentalist Christianity: Generally a reference to conservative Christians who believe five "fundamentals" of Christianity: the inerrancy of Scripture, the virgin birth of Christ, the substitutionary atonement of Christ, the bodily resurrection of Christ, and the historicity of biblical miracles. More specifically, the term is identified with the conservative reaction, especially in America, to liberal Christianity in the early 20th century. Core beliefs of the movement are virtually identical with evangelical Christianity. Some fundamentalists, however, later distinguished themselves from evangelicals (or neo-evangelicals) whom they saw as too compromising and ecumenical. More recently some have given a new, negative meaning to the term "fundamentalist" using it as a synonym for narrow-minded, bigoted, anti-intellectual or divisive Christians.

G

G.A.P. Ministries, Elm Grove, WI: Sabbatarianism, observes Feast Days, part of Sacred Name movement. Publishes The Appointed Time newsletter.

Gabriel Society, Ruth Harders, Western Springs, IL: New Age, metaphysics, Universal Mind.

Worldwide Church of God. Teaches a form of Armstrongism.

Global Family, Palo Alto, CA: New Age, visualization, Higher self which is God, pantheism (all is God).

Globalism: When used in a religious sense, this term most often means to lose all national identity. Mankind must see itself as one world family, without the need for distinctions between religions. All religions become true or the distinctive doctrines of the various religions must be disregarded in an attempt to achieve the new Global Family idea.

Global Times: The bimonthly magazine published by the Denmark office for Proutist International. See PROUT.

Gnostic Catholic Church of Canada, Edmonton, Alberta: Paganism, magic, Celtic rituals. Publishes the Sunspot magazine.

Gnosticism: From the Greek word gnosis (knowledge). Salvation comes through secret knowledge. A diverse belief influenced by Greek philosophy and similar to forms of pantheism, Gnosticism generally taught that matter was evil and spirit was good. Forms of gnosticism affected early Christianity. One Gnostic heresy taught that because matter was evil, Jesus could not have come in the flesh. Many New Agers regard Gnostic Christianity as the more enlightened form of Christianity.

Golden Wheel, W.E. Reeve, England: Occult, astrology, alchemy, UFOs, spiritualism.

Good Cheer Press, Boulder, CO: Publishes material promoting The URANTIA Book.

Good, Joseph: See Hatikva Ministries.

Gospel: Literally meaning "good news," the term gospel is used by traditional Christians as a reference to the message of salvation by grace through faith, based on the death, burial, and resurrection of Jesus Christ (1 Corinthians 15:1–4). The first four books of the New Testament, which consist of accounts of Jesus' ministry, death, and resurrection (Matthew, Mark, Luke and John), are also called the Gospels. One of the marks of a cult is that it preaches a different gospel, that is, a false way of salvation (2 Corinthians 11:4; Galatians 1:6–9). Most false gospels teach a form of either salvation by works or universalism.

Grail Foundation of America, Abd-ru-shin, Binghamton, NY: Esoteric teachings, Christ's call for "child-like faith" no longer valid.

Grand Canyon Society, Scottsdale, AZ: New Age, channeling, members use The URANTIA Book as their text.

Do) and 38 other members committed suicide in March of 1997, believing that by leaving their bodies behind they could join Nettles (a.k.a. Ti) and other "older members" from "the next level above human" on a UFO supposedly hidden behind the Hale-Bopp comet. Profile available.

Heaven's Magic: Another name for the followers of David Berg, founder of The Family (Children of God); produces multi-color children's posters and music.

Heresy: Literally, a theological dissension or division arising from diversity of opinions and aims. The term is usually reserved to refer to false teachings considered so serious that belief in them excludes the followers from the true faith and salvation; in other words, a belief viewed as fatal to the gospel. Religious groups founded on the basis of heresy are known as cults.

Heretic: A person who causes a division by teaching heresy.

Heritage Institute, Plainfield, WI: New Age, past life, Ouija board, telepathy, psychic healing.

Holistic Health: (New Age Medicine/Alternative Medicine) A view of health care focusing on the "whole self" (body, mind and spirit) and natural or spiritual cures. Some holistic health remedies and assumptions (i.e., a focus on wellness and prevention) are well within the Christian worldview and are scientifically valid. Much within this movement, however, is based on pantheistic concepts, New Age visualization, and eastern religious beliefs such as Chinese Taoism (Yin and Yang). Most questionable are holistic practices that have no valid physiological explanation or scientific proof such as applied kinesiology, reflexology and iridology.

Holistic Life University, San Francisco, CA: New Age, aura healing, reflexology, visualization.

Hollyhock, Rex Weyler, Blaine, WA: New Age retreat, shamanism, drumming, meditation, Buddhism.

Holy Body of the Coming Jesus Christ Mission in New York: See Church of the Living Stone Mission for the Coming Days.

Holy Grail Foundation, Leona Richards, Santa Cruz, CA: New Age, Ascended Masters, reincarnation.

Holy Order of MANS, Earl W. Blighton: Monastic New Age group that practiced esoteric, mystical religion blending biblical themes with reincarnation and other concepts from Eastern religions and the occult. Blighton, an ex-engineer who was once fined for practicing medicine without a license, began the order in 1968. "MANS" was an acronym for a phrase revealed only to initiates. After advancing through the order, men reached the status of Brown Brother of the Holy Light, while women might become an Immaculate Sister of Mary for Missionary Training. After the death of Blighton, the group underwent radical changes. The majority of followers converted to Eastern Orthodoxy and the order eventually was transformed into Christ the Savior Brotherhood, a sect of Eastern Orthodoxy. Several competing groups later formed claiming to preserve Blighton's original purpose and message. They include the Gnostic Order of Christ, Science of Man, and the American Temple.

Investigative Judgment: One of the unique doctrines of the Seventh-day Adventist Church that make the place of that church within evangelical Christianity questionable. First taught in Adventism by Hiram Edson, F.B. Hahn, and O.R.L. Crosier, it was accepted as "present truth" by those who would later become known as Seventh-day Adventists (SDAs) after it was confirmed and taught in visions received by Ellen G. White. The doctrine teaches that in the Holy of Holies in the Heavenly Sanctuary Christ is now conducting an investigation into the lives of all who have ever professed belief in Christ. He is judging all their works, by the standard of God's Law. All those whose lives fail to measure up to the standard of the Law are rejected and condemned as not having true faith. Those whose lives meet that standard and thus manifest the perfect character and righteousness of Christ are recognized as having true faith, and so their sins are "blotted out." SDAs say, "This judgment vindicates the justice of God in saving those who believe in Jesus. It declares that those who have remained loyal to God shall receive the kingdom." Evangelicals believe, and the Bible teaches (Rom. 3:21–26), that God's justice in saving sinners who trust Jesus to save them is vindicated by the blood of Jesus—His death in their place, in their behalf. Profile (on SDA) available.

Islam, Muhammad: Based on the teachings and life of Muhammad (570-632 AD) in Mecca and Medina, Saudi Arabia (then Persia). Islam is the second largest world religion, and has recently become the third largest religious body in America with over 6 million adherents. Muslim-based sects such as the Nation of Islam (which appeals especially to African-Americans) and Bahá'í (which proclaims the unity of the human race) have special appeal to many Americans. Islam is composed of two major divisions — the mainstream Sunni (the largest) and the more radical Shi'ites. The mystical tradition of Sufism includes many Sunnis and some Shi'ites. The Arabic word Islam means "submission to the will of God" and a person who submits is called a Muslim. The Qur'an (or, Koran), the Torah, the Psalms of the Old Testament, and the Gospel of the New Testament are regarded as holy books. However, only the Qur'an is considered uncorrupted. Islam rejects the Trinity doctrine, the deity of Christ and His Sonship, claiming that Jesus was only a great prophet. Muhammad is considered to be the greatest prophet, whose coming was allegedly predicted by Christ. Islam adheres fiercely to monotheism. In addition to good works, salvation is sought though observance of the Five Pillars: reciting "there is no God but Allah and Muhammad is His Messenger," praying five times per day, fasting, giving alms (donations to the poor), and a pilgrimage to Mecca. Historically, Islam experienced tremendous growth often by forced proselytism — unbelievers (infidels) were offered conversion or death. While many Muslims exhibit tolerance towards other faiths, even today Islamic fundamentalism promotes jihad (holy war), against those of other religious and political views.

Isthmus Institute, Dallas, TX: New Age, reincarnation, past-life experiences.

J

Jainism, Mahavira: A world religion begun as a reform movement of Hinduism. Mahavira (b. 599 BC) denied the existence or worship of a supreme deity and taught enlightenment through strict self-denial and non-violence. Later followers deified Mahavira himself, calling him the 24th Tirthankara (last great savior teacher) who descended from heaven without sin and with all knowledge.

Jamilian University of the Ordained, Gene Savoy, Reno, NV: Esoteric teachings; Jamil (Gene Savoy's son) was second coming of Christ; Jesus was a mystic.

Jehovah's Witnesses: Official name of the religion that accepts the authority of the Watchtower Bible and Tract Society.

Jesus: The founder and central figure of Christianity. Jesus of Nazareth lived in Palestine from about 5/4 BC until AD 33 (or possibly AD 30). The name "Jesus" corresponds with the Hebrew "Joshua" and means "Jehovah is salvation." Christianity was founded on the belief that Jesus is the Messiah, or Christ, promised in the Old Testament, and that he died to save human beings from the penalty of sin. Even ancient, non-Christian sources corroborate some historical facts about His life and ministry. By far, the oldest and fullest historical information is found in the New Testament Gospels. Attempts have been made by liberal Christianity, New Agers, cults, and other religions to present Jesus as a "great teacher" whose ministry or life was radically different from the biblical historical accounts. While these efforts often define a "Jesus" compatible with their world views, they lack early supporting historical documentation and are thus arbitrary and subjective. The sources support the historic, traditional Christian belief that Jesus is the second Person of the Trinity, that he was and is fully God and fully man, that he was born of a virgin, died on the cross as a substitutionary atonement for our sins, and rose bodily from the dead.

Jesus Only: Nickname for Oneness Pentecostalism. See Modalism.

Jihad: Literally, "struggle," more popularly, "holy war"; a term used to refer to the Muslim commitment to impose the teachings and law of Islam throughout the world, by force where that is considered necessary or appropriate.

Judaism: World religion that traces its origins to God's call to Abram (Abraham) to be the father of a great people who would inherit the land of Canaan and be the means of blessing to all mankind (Genesis 12). That people is identified as the children of Abraham's grandson Jacob, who was renamed Israel. The foundation of Judaism is the Torah (Genesis through Deuteronomy), which tells of the Israelites' bondage in Egypt, their miraculous deliverance in the Exodus, and the giving of the Law through Moses. The Israelites returned to the promised land of Canaan and became a small but powerful nation there under the rule of King David and his son Solomon. After Solomon's death the kingdom split into a northern kingdom called Israel and a southern kingdom called Judah (the name of David's tribe). The northern kingdom was conquered and decimated by the Assyrians in 722 BC, after which the term Judeans, or Jews, gradually came into use to refer to all Israelites. The Jews suffered conquests by a succession of foreign powers — the Babylonians, Persians, Greeks, and finally the Romans in the first century BC. Throughout this period the Jews developed a strong sense of national identity, identification with the Promised Land, and anticipation of a coming Messiah or Christ ("Anointed One"). These themes dominate the rest of the Jewish Bible, which is identical with the Protestant canon of the Old Testament. In the first century AD, Christianity originated with the belief that Jesus was that promised Messiah. The Jewish establishment at that time, however, rejected Jesus' claim to be the Messiah, and in fulfillment of his prophecy (Mark 13) the Jerusalem temple was destroyed and the Jewish nation scattered (AD 70). What is now known as the religion of Judaism originated after AD 70 as the rabbis, or teachers of the Torah, developed a system of laws and interpretations of the Torah that were eventually codified in the Talmud. Today Judaism can be identified as a cultural, ethnic, or religious concept. There are three main branches of modern Judaism: Orthodox (traditional, literal adherence to the Torah as interpreted by the Talmud), Conservative (a middle position advocating traditional beliefs and practices up to a point), and Reform (liberal, non-literal stance on the Torah and Talmud; often non-religious or secular with emphasis on Jewish culture).

K

Kabat-Sinn, Jon: New Age leader introducing Zen Buddhism into hospitals for stress reduction.

Kabbalah: (Various spellings) Mystical Jewish teachings intermingled with teachings of gnosticism, Neoplatonism, magic and the occult. The word Kabbalah means secret oral tradition and was coined by an eleventh century Spanish philosopher, Ibn Gabirol. The philosophy developed in Babylon during the middle ages from earlier Hebrew speculation and numerology. An early Kabbalist, Moses de Leon, developed and systematized the philosophy in his thirteenth century work, The Book of Zolar (sometimes spelled Zohar meaning "Splendor").

Lenz, Frederick: Guru who renamed himself Zen Master Rama.

Les 18 lumieres de l'EU (LEU18): See Spiritual Human Yoga.

Liberal Christianity: A movement that seeks to retain religious and spiritual values of Christianity while discounting the infallible authority of the Bible. Its origins are in the German Enlightenment, notably in the philosophy of Immanuel Kant and the religious views of Friedrich Schleiermacher. Liberals reject the stated authorship and historical accuracy of many books of the Bible. They are skeptical concerning many or all of the biblical miracles, preferring naturalistic explanations or viewing miracle accounts as legend or myth. They often deny or reinterpret in mythical terms such doctrines of orthodox Christianity as the virgin birth, atoning death, and even the resurrection of Jesus. Liberalism has been most influential in mainline Protestant denominations and is rejected in Evangelical and Fundamentalist Christianity.

Liberation Theology: A movement that attempts to unite theology with social and religious concerns about oppression. It finds expressions among blacks, feminists, Asians, Hispanics, and Native Americans, but it is most closely identified with the shift toward Marxism among Roman Catholic theologians and priests in Latin America. Most traditional doctrines of Christianity are de-emphasized or reinterpreted. Jesus and the Bible are defined and interpreted in light of a class struggle, with the gospel seen as a radical call to activism (or even revolution) promoting political and social answers usually in the form of classic Communism.

Life Enhancement Systems, Houston, TX: Yoga, meditation.

Lifton, Robert: Dr. Lifton studied Mao Tse-Tung's programs of "Thought Reform" or Chinese brainwashing while doing research for military intelligence. His study focused on radical change in personality and belief systems of certain prisoners-of-war who were held and tortured in Chinese camps. This research was later expanded in his 1961 work, Thought Reform and the Psychology of Totalism, in which he theorized that subtle elements of these brainwashing techniques could also be found in other environments. He outlined eight criteria for "thought reform," which he called: Milieu Control, Mystical Manipulation, Loading the Language, Doctrine over Person, Sacred Science, Cult of Confession, Demand for Purity, and Dispensing of Existence. While some elements of these criteria could be found in virtually any group, Lifton warned that an environment of mind control or thought reform exists when all eight are found implemented in the extreme.

Lion and Lamb Ministries, Monte W. Judah, Norman, OK: Messianic Jewish ministry. Holds that Jesus is the biblical Messiah. Legalistic tendencies, Sabbatarianism, practices Jewish holy days. Judah falsely predicted that the Abomination of Desolation prophesied in the Bible would occur by March of 1997 promising he would be "totally discredited" and would "shut down" the ministry if wrong. On March 23, 1997 he apologized for the false prophecy but reneged on his vow to disband the movement. [Note: this group should not be confused with the Texas-based Lamb & Lion Ministries, a reputable Christian organization led by David R. Reagan.]

Literary Criticism: The discipline that seeks to discover the underlying literary sources, stylistic features, type or genre of literature, authorship, unity, and date of a text, for their value in interpreting the text's meaning in its original historical context. The application of literary criticism to the Bible can be constructive, although in liberal Christianity the method is typically applied on the basis of antisupernatural and humanistic assumptions. See further Form Criticism.

Little Flock: (Anointed Class) In the teaching of the Watchtower Bible and Tract Society, this phrase (Luke 12:32) refers to the 144,000 Jehovah's Witnesses who will be allowed to go to heaven. All other worthy Jehovah's Witnesses (the "other sheep" cf. John 10:16) will live for eternity on a new paradise earth.

Llewellyn Worldwide, Ltd., St. Paul, MN: See "Spell." Influential publisher of occult, New Age, and Wiccan materials begun in 1901 as the Portland School of Astrology. The current president is Carl Weschcke who in 1988 acquired the magazine Fate, which now has 140,000 subscribers. Their popular catalog, New Worlds, is sold in newsstands nationwide and has a circulation of nearly 200,000.

Loading the Language: One of eight criteria of Mind Control according to Robert Lifton's theory of Thought Reform. Limiting or controlling the thought processes by regulating the language in such a way that communication constricts and limits rather than expands human understanding. This may include the use of thought-stopping clichés or artificially reducing complex issues to a false black/white dichotomy.

Local Church, The, Watchman Nee, Anaheim, CA: Controversial movement begun in China in the early 1920s by Ni To-sheng (Watchman Nee). Growth and controversy developed during the administration of their second leader, the late Witness Lee, who moved to America in 1962 founding Living Stream Ministry. Among issues drawing criticism from evangelical Christians is the Local Church's use of the term "mingling" to describe the relationship between God and believers (i.e., Christians become both divine and human like Jesus). Some evangelicals have also charged that the church compromises the Trinity doctrine by confusing the Persons of the Holy Spirit and the Son in a way similar to modalism. The organization's exclusivity has also comme under fire. According to Lee, each city can and should have only one church. Denominationalism is seen as of the Devil. According to critics, the effect is that Lee-led local churches, usually called by the name of their cities (e.g., the Church in Anaheim or the Church in Chicago), become the only true expressions of the Body of Christ. Thus, according to former members, all other churches or denominations are seen as being outside the will of God or not true churches at all. The Local Church has also gained a reputation for threatening legal action to prevent unfavorable public evaluation of its movement. Even Christian critics have been targeted, adding to the evidence that they do not consider believers outside their movement to be true or obedient Christians (1 Corinthians 6:1–8).

Magic: (Magick) Occult ceremonial use of amulets and talismans. May involve necromancy or divination, invocation of infernal deities or use of natural elements to gain supernatural power or knowledge. The word magic is also used to describe a type of stage performance involving legerdemain (slight of hand) or illusion with no alleged psychic or occult power. This type of stage magic is not inherently evil, although occultists have occasionally used stage magic in an attempt to claim supernatural abilities.

Magic—The Gathering: A fantasy role playing card game involving Satanism, witchcraft (see Wicca), and the occult.

Marxism/Leninism, Karl Marx, Frederick Engels, V.I. Lenin: Atheistic philosophy of communism based on the "class struggle" theory of socioeconomic evolution derived from dialectic materialism. Sometimes confused by the uninformed with biblical mandates to care for the poor, and the voluntary sharing of resources practiced by some primitive Christians. Marxism advocates establishment of a classless, stateless society by revolutionary force; it has always led, however, to totalitarian statism, and has never successfully eliminated any class but the bourgeoisie, the middle class, leaving the great majority of its subjects in poverty. It is militantly atheistic. Marx wrote, "The criticism of religion ends with the teaching that man is the highest being for man?" He contended that man "looked for a superhuman being in the fantastic reality of heaven and found nothing there but the reflection of himself." Wrote Engels, "?we have once and for all declared war on religion and religious ideas and care little whether we are called atheists or anything else." Citing Marx and Engels as his authorities, Lenin declared that "the philosophical basis of Marxism" is "a materialism which is absolutely atheistic and positively hostile to all religion." His hostility bordered on hysteria: "Every religious idea, every idea of God, even flirting with the idea of God, is unutterable vileness ? vileness of the most dangerous kind, ‘contagion' of the most abominable kind. Millions of sins, filthy deeds, acts of violence and physical contagions ? are far less dangerous than the subtle, spiritual idea of a God decked out in the smartest ‘ideological' customs?. Every defense or justification of the idea of God, even the most refined, the best intentioned, is a justification of reaction."

Menhir: "Long Stone." See Stonehenge.

Meridians: See Chi, Yin and Yang, Acupuncture.

Mesmer, Franz: Founder of Mesmerism.

Mesmerism: An 18th century movement begun in France by the Austrian doctor Franz Anton Mesmer, who believed that astrological influence on humans was conveyed through a force or substance similar to magnetism. He first began treating patients with magnets or charged fluids but quickly modified his position, theorizing that cures were actually coming from an energy or mysterious "magnetic fluid" coming from the hands, voice, or nervous system of the practitioner. This invisible substance or magnetism was thought to be similar to electro-magnetism and was dubbed "Animal Magnetism." Mesmer's pupils were later able to induce a "magnetic sleep" (trance state or hypnotic condition) in their patients. The term Mesmerism eventually became analogous with hypnosis and was linked with both Spiritualism and Mind Science religions. See Altered States of Consciousness.

Messianic Assemblies of Yahweh, North Warren, PA: Sacred Name group; publishes The Messianic Messenger newsletter.

Metaphysics: (Meta, "after" or "beyond"; physics "physical"). Originally any study or discussion of non-physical, spiritual, or non-material realities. Later, in modern usage, it usually means experimentation with, belief in, or practice of magic, psychic powers, or the occult.

Milieu Control: One of eight criteria of Mind Control according to Robert Lifton's theory of Thought Reform. Milieu control is the systematic, strict regulation of human communication, relationships, and access to outside information and alternative viewpoints.

Miller, Monte Kim: See "Concerned Christians."

Miller, William: Baptist lay minister from Low Hampton, New York who was excommunicated for teachings that Christ would return in 1844. Although Miller repented after his prediction failed and opposed further speculations, his teachings gave rise to Adventism.

Mind/Body Medical Institute, Herbert Benson, Cambridge, MA: Affiliated with Harvard Medical School, the Institute was founded by Dr. Herbert Benson, the Chief of Behavioral Medicine at Harvard, to research and train practitioners in holistic health.

Mind Control: (Thought Reform, brainwashing) While evangelicals are lack consensus on the nature, extent or, in some cases, even existence of Mind Control, the Bible does warns against seducers, deceivers, and exploiters who employ methods that can bring about spiritual harm and/or personal abuse. The Mind Control or Thought Reform model, as for instance developed by Robert Lifton, suggests that there are specific methods of deception that can be employed by abusive spiritual leaders that may result in a diminished capacity for critical thinking and suppression of autonomy in their followers. These methods are believed to involve an intense social influence conditioning program which may include a closed system of authoritarian control, manipulative, group dynamics, a system of punishment and rewards, induced dissociation or trance induction, information control, fraud, coercion, and double binds. Depending on the number and intensity of undue influence elements, and a person's own unique susceptibilities, one may experience a pseudo personality change and marked debilitation, compliance, and servitude. The Mind Control model should not be interpreted to mean that the subject is not responsible for the consequences of his or her decisions and actions. The Mind Control theory is not justification for holding individuals against their will or for conducting forcible, involuntary deprogramming.

Mind Power Technique: New Age process to read auras and balance chakras.

Mind Sciences: A generic, general classification of religious groups that hold to the belief that human beings are inherently divine and that mind or thoughts are energy forms that can create and/or alter reality. Most often used in reference to the American religions formed since the middle of the 19th century, especially Christian Science, New Thought, and Religious Science, that deny the actuality of sin, sickness, and/or death and promote health though mental practices.

Mitchell, Wayman: Founder of the Potter's House church movement.

Mo Letters: See The Family (Children of God).

Modalism: (Patripassianism, Modalistic Monarchianism, Sabellianism, Jesus Only, Oneness Pentecostalism) Originally, a second and third century heresy that denies the doctrine of the Trinity, teaching there is only one Person in the Godhead. While the Trinity doctrine teaches three distinct Persons, modalism maintains that one Person (usually the Father) has manifested Himself at different times under different names (Jesus/Spirit) or modes. Thus, Father, Son, and Holy Ghost are three names for the same Person. Originally taught in various forms by Noetus, Praxeas and Sabellius. Modified forms of this doctrine can be found in the teachings of William Branham, some Apostolic churches and the United Pentecostal Church.

Mother Ruth: See Science of Man.

Mohammed: Founder of the world religion of Islam.

Monarchianism: View found primarily in the third century that denied the Trinity, arguing that because God's nature is one He cannot exist eternally in three Persons. The two most popular forms of monarchianism were dynamic monarchianism and modalism.

Mystical Manipulation: One of eight criteria of Mind Control according to Robert Lifton's theory of Thought Reform. A group dynamic involving contrived, manipulated behavior designed to appear spontaneous which produces feelings and/or actions that are misinterpreted as spiritual phenomena.

Mysticism: The theory or belief that man can know God or religious truth through the inward perception of the mind, internal illumination, or special revelation, and that such knowledge is more immediate, direct, and reliable than that obtained by ordinary understanding or sense perception.

N

Narcanon, Los Angeles, CA: Promotes Scientology philosophy.
Nation of Islam, Elijah Muhammad: A sect of Islam originating in America composed of black Americans. Followers, sometimes called Black Muslims, believe that Allah (God) appeared in 1930 to the last great prophet Elijah Muhammad, in the person of Wallace D. Fard. Elijah Muhammad borrowed many beliefs from traditional Islam but introduced important differences. Most notable was the focus on black oppression and equating Satan and evil with the white race. Malcolm X became a notable leader of the movement in the 1960s and the focus on black supremacy and militancy escalated. Malcolm X later converted to traditional Islam and rejected radical black supremacy and was subsequently murdered. The current leader of the Nation is Islam is Louis Farrakhan. Profile available.

National Spiritualist Association of Churches, Cassadaga, FL: Occult, spiritualism, mediums.

Native American Spirituality: The religious beliefs, practices, and rituals associated Native Americans. Early Native American beliefs, though diverse, often shared common religious ideas. Many believed in a "Great Spirit," that nature in all of its forms possesses spirits (animism or spiritism), and that all life is interconnected. Seasons and moons often were viewed as marking times of evocation for spirits and prosperity. Some New Age believers promote revival of Native American spirituality, seeing obvious parallels with their own views.

Natural Law Party: Political party started by Maharishi Mahesh Yogi, the father of Transcendental Meditation (TM). Critics allege it exists to promote the Maharishi's religious movement at taxpayers' expense through campaign matching funds provided for political candidates in the United States.

Nature's Sunshine, Kristine Hughes, Spanish Fork, UT: Holistic health, especially iridology, reflexology, muscle testing; also visualization. Publishes the Natures Field newsletter.

Near-death experience (NDE): Any paranormal or supernatural experience had when a person is near death, including experiences when a person thinks he or she has died and returned from death. Reports of NDEs have become numerous in recent decades due to advances in medical technology that make it possible to revive people from comas and other critical conditions. Many patients report having out-of-body experiences (OBEs) while they were unconscious or comatose.

Necromancy: A form of divination in which a person attempts to discover the future or obtain other information through communication with the dead, typically using occult methods.

Nelson, Bernard, San Antonio, TX: Occult, talisman, charms, amulets, UFOs, alchemy. Publishes The Illustrated Cosmic Machine newsletter.

Neo-Orthodox Christianity: Development associated with the strong reaction of Swiss theologians Karl Barth and Emil Brunner against the barrenness of liberal Christianity. They felt that Scripture, although a flawed, fallible, human product, could still be used by God to accomplish His purposes. Thus the Bible becomes inspired in its proclamation when the Holy Spirit quickens faith and obedience in its hearers. Thus, like liberalism, this view results in a subjective, existential encounter, which denies absolute propositional truth in revelation.

Neo-Paganism: The modern revival of paganism, emphasizing witchcraft (see Wicca), goddess worship, and nature worship.

Neo-Pythagorean Gnostic Church: See Proclus Society and Neo-Pythagorean Gnostic Church.

Nettles, Bonnie Lou: See Heaven's Gate.

Neuro-Linguistic Programming (NLP): New Age. Techniques developed by Richard Bandler and Dr. John Grinder that allegedly enable practitioners to read random eye movements and other visual cues during conversation or counseling to "program" a client's behavior and restructure their core beliefs. Called "software for the brain," it is supposed to be faster and more powerful than traditional clinical counseling and can work without the subject's conscious knowledge. The co-founders have been heavily involved with other New Age practices. NLP failed scientific tests conducted by the U.S. Army.

New Age: See the Definitions section in the introduction. Profile available.

Ordo Templi Orientis: Occult, Satanism. See Crowley, Aleister.

Orr, Leonard: See Rebirthing International.

Orthodox Christianity: Generically the term orthodox refers to traditional, conservative forms of Christianity, upholding the traditional Christian beliefs about God as a Trinity and about Jesus Christ as taught in the church's early creeds. In this sense orthodox Christianity includes conservative Roman Catholics, and Protestant, evangelical Christianity, and is opposed both to liberal Christianity within Christian denominations and to the teachings of the cults. More specifically, the term Orthodox (with a capital O; or, Eastern Orthodox) refers to the state churches of Eastern Europe and the eastern Mediterranean who split with Roman Catholicism of the West largely over the issue of papal authority.

Ouija Board: Occult "game" using wooden board and pointer which spells out messages allegedly from the dead (a form of necromancy). Many such messages are derived from the subconscious of the operators; however, there is always potential for demonic influence.

Our Lady of Enchantment, Sabrina, Danville, CA: Paganism, witchcraft (see Wicca), "the craft," goddess worship, moon festivals, psychic powers.

Out-of-Body Experience (OBE): Any experience in which a person believes that his or her spirit has temporarily left the physical body and then returned to that same body. Some OBEs are associated with near-death experiences; others are induced through occult or mystical practices, especially in Astral Projection.

Peace Community Church, Washington, D.C.: Jesus the mystic, "crystal clear vibration" techniques, Christ-consciousness, mystical meditation.

Peace Mission Movement: Based on the teaching of founder Father Divine, which contains elements of New Thought, asceticism, perfectionism, utopian communalism, and denies existence of race and strictly prohibits discrimination among members. Requires all members to turn over all property and income, severing all ties to everything but the Peace Mission. Room, board, and a small allowance for incidentals are provided in exchange for otherwise unpaid labor in Peace Mission owned businesses or projects. Father Divine did not actually claim to be God, but he fostered the belief in his followers, and required loyalty and obedience from them due only to God. The group claims the biblical prophecies about the coming Jewish Messiah and Christ's second coming were all fulfilled by Father Divine.

Peace Pole: New Age / occult; poles or obelisks around which people sit in order to practice meditation or visualization of World Peace or other topics important to those meditating.

Peacevision, Houston, TX: Visualization; known for the blue and white bumper stickers that read "Visualize World Peace."

Peale, Norman Vincent: Was a popular writer, promoter of the belief in the power of positive thinking popularized through the interfaith magazine, Guideposts. Polytheism: The belief in the existence of a plurality of gods, in contrast to monotheism (one God) or atheism (no God or gods). Examples include Greek, Roman and Norse mythology; ancient Egyptian, Babylonian, and Assyrian religions; and some forms of neo-paganism, Wicca, and New Age belief. Some forms of Hinduism combine polytheism with pantheism (all is God). The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints teaches a form of Christianized polytheism, since it holds that the Father, Son, and Holy Ghost are three Gods and that human beings can become exalted to Godhood.

Positive Confession: Alternative name for the Word-Faith movement.

Potter's House, Wayman Mitchell, Prescott, AZ: Originally called Victory Chapel, churches affiliated with Mitchell go under the names Praise Chapel, The Door, Grace Chapel, The Christian Fellowship, La Capilla de la Victory, La Casa Del Alfarero, and La Puerta. Begun in 1970, Mitchell has over 1,000 churches in 73 countries including Mexico, South America, Australia, Europe, and the Philippines. Numerous former members have alleged mind control and authoritarian/abusive leadership, and the group was the focus of a CBS News 48 Hours investigative report. Mitchell's churches are not affiliated with the Potter's House in Dallas, TX, pastored by T. D. Jakes. Also, The Door is not affiliated with the religious satire magazine by the same name.

Power for Abundant Living: Older name for the main recruitment and initial indoctrination course (and book by the same title) for potential members of The Way International, as developed and taught by its founder Victor Paul Wierwille. His successor, Craig Martindale, produced a revised version of the course entitled The Way of Abundance and Power.

Process Church of the Final Judgement, Robert de Grimston: Occult, Three Great Gods who are Jehovah, Lucifer, and Satan. Dualism—unity of Christ and Satan, both are equally good and should be loved. Grimston who wrote, As It Is, was ousted in 1974. Several splinters formed. Charles Manson was reported to be a member at one time.

Process Theology: Built on the philosophy of Alfred North Whitehead, process theology is a heresy within liberal Christianity that holds that reality is becoming rather than being - in process rather than static. The Bible has a relative authority in that it concurs with one's own self-evident experiences, rather than having absolute authority over all human experiences and beliefs, as in evangelical Christianity. Process theology teaches panentheism (God is in all), which is to be distinguished from pantheism (God is all). Panentheism teaches that even though God is somehow transcendent, He also includes the world within Himself. Therefore, God is in "process," evolving along with creation into future possibilities. Some New Agers (e.g., Matthew Fox) and some Mormons have found value in process theology.

Proclus Society and Neo-Pythagorean Gnostic Church, Chicago, IL: Mixture of occult, Theosophy and Rosicrucianism; teaches yoga, and astrology.

Project X: See Jamilian University of the Ordained.

Prosveta U.S.A., Omraam Mikhael Aivanhov, Los Angeles, CA: Yoga, clairvoyance, esoteric Hinduism. Publishes the Circle of Light newsletter.

Protestantism: Often used generically of all Christian churches that are neither Roman Catholic nor Orthodox, the term more specifically refers to the movement that originated in the 16th century Reformation. Luther, Zwingli, Calvin and others led efforts to correct, reform or "protest" the errors in doctrine and practice that they saw in medieval Roman Catholicism. The 16th century Protestants saw their main doctrinal differences with Catholicism to include: Soli Deo Gloria ("only to God's glory," God's wisdom and glory as opposed to church/papal sovereignty); Sola Scriptura ("Scripture only," the authority of the Bible over official Papal interpretation and tradition), and Sola Gratia (salvation "by grace alone," eternal life received from God as a free gift by grace through faith in the imputed righteousness of Christ rather than by works, rituals, or sacraments).

PROUT, Northampton, MA: An acronym for Progressive Utilization Theory, a Hinduism-based spiritual program teaching meditation and yoga that claims to enable life forms to progress from animals to divinity. PROUT is promoted by Ananda Marga, who hopes to establish through practice of the Theory a single world government and religion. Proutist Universal, Ananda Marga's formal organization for promoting PROUT, publishes Prout Journal and Global Times.

Rastafarianism, (Ras Tafari, Rastas) Marcus Garvey: African/Jamaican religion. Teaches that the late king of Ethiopia, Haile Selassie, is God. Profile available.

Ray, Sondra: See Rebirthing International.

REACH, Inc. (a.k.a. Holyland), Bishop Luke Edwards, Meridian, MS; Emele, AL: Extreme Oneness Pentecostal group, formerly associated with Pentecostal Assemblies of the World. Both adults and children raise funds by going on the "route" (going on the road for weeks at a time to solicit funds). The most common approach is for children to solicit funds outside stores under the pretense of raising money for abused children.

Rebirthing: New Age. Participants rid themselves of negative karma (traumas/problems) by being regressed back to the womb and reenacting the trauma of their birth experience or previous births (reincarnation). Originally hot tubs or saunas were used but later practitioners developed "dry" rebirthing techniques.

Rebirthing International, Leonard Orr: Co-author of Rebirthing in the New Age with Sondra Ray; helped develop and popularize the New Age practice of rebirthing.

Recovery Version of the New Testament: Version used by the The Local Church.

Redaction criticism: A relatively new branch of biblical literary criticism that attempts to infer the theological purposes of the "redactors" (anonymous editors, compilers, or revisers) who are thought to have helped to rewrite or shape various books of the Bible (especially the Gospels) into their final form. Whereas form criticism focuses on discerning the literary form and origins of specific passages, redaction criticism focuses on the use of those passages to convey the message of the book as a whole. Redaction criticism assumes that the book in question was written using different sources that were selected and edited to emphasize or convey certain theological concepts. Scholars in liberal Christianity typically assume further that the books that draw on the same sources (notably the Gospels of Matthew, Mark, and Luke) use those sources to convey conflicting ideas. Scholars in evangelical Christianity are divided as to whether a mild form of redaction criticism can be legitimately employed without impugning the inerrancy of the Bible.

Redfield, James: New Age astrologer and author of the best-selling fiction, The Celestine Prophecy.

Reflexology: New Age, holistic health practice that purports to heal the body through massaging certain parts of the foot or hand that allegedly correspond to the major organs of the body. It is sometimes believed to work by opening blocked meridians in the body which will then allow the body's energy or chi to flow freely. The foot or hand is seen as a microcosm of the human body and/or the universe.

Reformation: The 16th century movement initiated by Martin Luther, initially intended to correct, protest, or reform the doctrines and practices of Roman Catholicism. Luther's efforts (later joined and expanded by Zwingli, Bucer, Calvin and others) quickly developed into a complete break with Catholicism. The reformers' major doctrinal issues included a rejection of: the authority of the following: the authority of the Pope, church control of Bible translation and interpretation, a distinction in value between laity and clergy, and salvation being a product of the church and its sacraments (salvation by works). A more thorough (and in some cases unorthodox) reform occurred with the Radical Reformation—the orthodox Anabaptist movement being an example. To various degrees, virtually all Protestant denominations today share a common heritage concerning the issues of the Reformation.

Reiki: New Age, metaphysical theory of holistic health involving the movement of the practitioner's hand over and near (but not on) the patient's body to allegedly balance or redirect energy chakras.

Reincarnation: Belief originating with religions of the East (e.g. Hinduism) that when a person dies he has the ability to come again to the earth, inhabit a new body, and live as many lives as needed to progress towards a religious goal. Whereas Hindus typically believe that reincarnation includes transmigration of souls between animal, plant, and even inanimate forms, New Age believers typically restrict reincarnation to human and celestial forms. Reincarnation generally assumes a doctrine of karma. The idea is the basis for the practice of attempting past life regression.

Religious Science, Ernest Holmes: One of the Mind Sciences, professes to represent the best thought of all religions. Similar to New Thought.

Remnant of YHWH, Mark Deacon, Abilene, TX: Sacred Name splinter group from House of Yahweh; teaches Sabbatarianism, British Israelism.

Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints (RLDS), Former name of largest Mormon splinter group. See, Community of Christ.

Restoration Branches: A conservative split from the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints [RLDS] (now known as, Community of Christ) that holds what they believe to be a more classical, historical RLDS understanding of basic doctrines, Joseph Smith, and the Book of Mormon. They generally view the institutionalized Community of Christ church as being too liberal in theology and perhaps on social issues as well.

Reverend Ike, a.k.a., Frederick Eikerenkoetter, II: Pantheism; general prosperity doctrine.

R I Research, New York, NY: New Age; selects people called Beyonders, claims to possess Superior Essence.

Rocky Mountain Spiritual Emergence Network, Boulder, CO: New Age, magic, mystic rituals, astrology, alchemy. Publishes the R.M.S.E.N. Times newsletter.

Roman Catholicism: Diverse worldwide religious tradition that officially looks to the Pope and his predecessors/successors as God's human leader of world Christianity. Because of its size and scope—both in membership (about a billion people worldwide) and geographically, the actual beliefs held by devout Catholics are widespread and eclectic. Catholicism has been influenced by liberation theology, especially in parts of South America. In Africa, the Caribbean, and elsewhere, attempts have been made to blend Catholicism with spiritism, creating a type of Catholicism with occult elements. In addition, since the 1960s there has been a small but significant element of charismatic Catholics who have been influenced by the larger charismatic movement. A small percentage of Catholics are doctrinally evangelical, and others (such as Matthew Fox) are part of the New Age movement. As a whole, however, the differences between Roman Catholicism and Protestantism are still seen most clearly in the issues of the Reformation. The 16th century reformers distinguished themselves from Catholicism in two key ways. First, they saw the Bible as the sole foundation for authority (sola scriptura) rather than the Pope, church dogma or tradition. Second, the reformers taught salvation by "grace alone" (sola gracia). They also insisted that sola gracia could be faithfully maintained only by understanding the gospel to be the message of a free pardon and righteous standing with God through "faith alone" (sola fide) in the imputed righteousness of Christ. The Roman Catholic Church claimed (and still claims) to affirm sola gracia, but anathematized sola fide, teaching instead that grace is received and maintained by a combination of faith plus works (religious rites, sacraments, or human endeavor).

Ro-Hun Therapy: Balancing the energy fields of the human body (see chi).

Rosicrucian Anthroposophic League, S.R. Parchment, New York, NY: Break-off of Rosicrucian Fellowship.

Rosicrucian Fellowship, Max Heindel, Oceanside, CA: Reincarnation, chakra, astrology. See Rosicrucianism.

Rosicrucian Order, a.k.a. Ancient and Mystical Order of the Rosae Crucis (AMORC), H. Spence Lewis, San Jose, CA: Most successful organization promoting Rosicrucianism in the US. Esoteric reinterpretation of Christianity; mixture of occult alchemy, astrology, Secret Wisdom of past Masters, secret society, magic.

Rosicrucianism, Christian Rosenkreutz: (Literally the "Rose cross") Occult secret society allegedly founded in 1407 in Germany by Christian Rosenkreutz, who was under the influence of Egyptian occultism. The movement has fragmented into a number of competing organizations promoting variations of the same general pantheistic, occult themes. Similar to Theosophy.

Rowan Tree, Paul Beyerlf, Minneapolis, MN: Paganism, Mother Earth, magic, astrology. Publishes The Littlest Unicorn newsletter.

Rune: A figure or character in the ancient Nordic magical alphabet of 24 symbols. They are used for divinination of the future, performing magic, or evoking Norse deities.

Russell, Charles Taze: Founder of the Watchtower Bible and Tract Society.

S

Sabbatarianism: Generally the view that the Old Testament Sabbath commandment is to be observed unchanged by the church. As used in this index, Sabbatarianism refers to an extreme form of the belief in which membership in the true church, or even salvation, is conditional upon keeping the Sabbath law. As such, Sabbatarianism is at the least a form of legalism and at most a denial of salvation by grace. In most cases, the Jewish Sabbath (Saturday) must be observed by refraining from work, sports, and travel from sundown Friday evening to sundown Saturday evening. The belief is often accompanied by the observance of Jewish dietary laws and/or other Old Testament feasts.

Sabellianism: Alternative name for Modalism.

Sabin, Robert: A well-known Oneness Pentecostal pastor, writer, and speaker.

Sabo, Sandra, Gloucester, MA: Channeler, crystal healing, spirit guides.

Sacred Cycles, Bette Barr-Glover, San Juan Capistrano, CA: Paganism, divine feminine in each person, numerology, astrology, guided meditation. Publishes the Sacred Cycles newsletter.

Sacred Mushroom and the Cross, The, John Allegro: Book and corresponding church by the late Dead Sea Scroll scholar, Dr. Allegro. "Jesus" is allegedly the New Testament code word for a mushroom to be used as a sacrament to induce hallucinations and altered states of consciousness.

Sacred Name movement: Although some Orthodox Jews and others believe that the name of God is too sacred to speak (and/or fully write), as used in this Index the Sacred Name movement refers to a modern movement that claims that God must be addressed by a form of the Divine Name in the Old Testament (Yahweh, Jehovah, Yah, Yahvah, or some other preferred form). Whichever one true name is chosen, all other terms or names for God are considered incorrect or references to false deities. Salvation, it is believed, depends on referring to God by His correct name. Most Sacred Name groups also teach Sabbatarianism and observe Old Testament dietary laws and feasts.

Sacred Order of Mystic Christianity, Mountain View, CA: New Age, mystic keys, Inner God, Christ within, higher self.

Sacred Science: One of eight criteria of Mind Control according to Robert Lifton's theory of Thought Reform. The group considers their doctrines and beliefs to be sacred and beyond question. Thus, no alternative viewpoint is allowed to exist and open consideration of alternative ideas and free discussion are quashed.

Sadhana Society Prescott, AZ: New Age, ESP, Astral Projection, telekinesis, levitation, clairvoyance.

Sage Woman, Point Arena, CA: Paganism, Egyptian rituals, goddess worship.

Saint Germain: See I AM Movement, Ascended Masters.

Saint Germain Foundation, Schaumburg, IL: Similar to the I AM Movement.

Salvation by Grace: The doctrine and message of the gospel that eternal life is not gained by or conditioned on works but is an undeserved and free gift from God received through faith in Jesus Christ as the Lord and Savior who died for our sins and rose from the dead. Contrasted with salvation by works.

Salvation by Works: Any doctrine that denies salvation by grace alone by teaching that eternal life is merited, earned, conditioned, or maintained through human effort, religious ritual, financial donations, obedience to laws/commandments, church membership, and/or moral behavior.

Samhain: (pronounced Sah-ween) Alternative name for Halloween.

Sanctuary of Gaia, Santa Cruz, CA:Gaia, paganism, Earth festivals.

Sanctuary of Revealing Light, Mildred Smith: Spiritualism; see also International General Assembly of Spiritualists.

Sankirtana: Religious chant or mantra repeated over and over to draw practitioners into an ever closer state of God-consciousness.

Santeria: Literally "worship of the saints," a syncretism of Roman Catholicism and traditional African polytheistic religions established when African slaves were introduced to the Caribbean. Elements include animal sacrifice and voodoo.

Satan, (The Devil, The Serpent): Lucifer, a high ranking angel who wanted to be exalted to the position of God. Through this sin, Lucifer fell and became Satan, the Devil, leading a large number of rebellious angels with him who became the demons. Satan and his host now seek to destroy the plan and people of God. He will ultimately fail and be eternally punished (Matthew 25:41, Revelation 20:10).

Satanic Bible: Scripture of the Church of Satan written by the late Anton LaVey.

Satanism: Represented by two separate groups, secular and traditional Satanists. The secularists do not believe in in a literal, personal, spiritual being called Satan, but rather consider Satan to be an archetype or symbol that represents the ideas of Satanic philosophy. Various satanic ideals include self-interest, indulgence, an anti-herd mentality, and an emphasis upon rational self-interest. Examples of modern Satanism include The Church of Satan founded by Anton LaVey and now led by Peter Gilmore as High Priest, Michael Aquino's Temple of Set, and Lord Egan's First Church of Satan. Traditional Satanism, which involves the worship of the Satan of the Bible through a perversion and parody of Roman Catholicism, appeared in the fifteenth century coming out of the Inquisition. Contemporary expressions of traditional Satanism are rare, and popular elements of it, including the testimonies of alleged former Satanists and Satanic Ritual Abuse have been discredited.

Seventh Day Adventist Church (SDA), Washington, DC: The largest Adventist church. Ellen G. White, who claimed to have "the spirit of prophecy," was an important early leader of the movement and taught a number of distinctive SDA doctrines, including the Investigative Judgment and Sabbatarianism. While the church's official theology now appears to be generally in the tradition of evangelical Christianity, certain SDA claims and unique doctrines continue to raise questions. These doctrines include the SDA belief that Sunday worship will result in the "Mark of the Beast," imbalanced teachings on keeping the commandments (baptism, Sabbath observance) that often implies a kind of salvation by works, the "Remnant Church" doctrine that implies that the SDA is or will be God's only true church, and the doctrine of the Investigative Judgment. Profile available.

Shared Heart Foundation, Joyce and Berry Vissell, Aptos, CA: New Age, promotes numerous mystical and esoteric writers.

Shenoa Retreat Center, Philo, CA: New Age, consciousness healing, uses A Course in Miracles, Hinduism, Buddhism.

Shepherding: Christian growth is allegedly facilitated by yielding personal freedoms to a discipler or "shepherd" who controls virtually every aspect of an individual's life. This is a form of spiritual abuse, a manipulative distortion of true biblical discipleship that can ultimately rob individuals of their liberty and autonomy that is to be found in Christ. Used by many traditional cults, as well as by some religious organizations that are not cultic in their basic doctrine.

Shepherd's Chapel, Arnold Murray Gravette, AR: Denies the Trinity, teaching instead a doctrine similar to Modalism. Also teaches that humans existed as "gods" in a pre-creation existence with God. Advocates British Israelism and a form of the serpent seed doctrine. Profile available.

Shintoism: (Shen-Tao "the way of the gods.") Ancient polytheistic religion of Japan that focuses more on Japanese Culture, traditions, attitudes and ideology rather than a system of doctrines or code of ethics. The roots of the movement are obscure, but it eventually developed into the idea that Japan, unlike other countries, was uniquely fathered by the god Izanami, whose consort, the goddess Izanagi, gave birth to the Japanese islands. Consequently the concept evolved that Japanese people are divine and superior to other humans. In one form of the religion, State Shintoism, the Japanese emperors were seen as infallible descendants of the gods. Today devotion centers around public shrines and home altars dedicated to ancestors and gods. The sun goddess Amaterasu is the chief deity worshipped, and a belief in kami, a form of spiritism, is also maintained.

Shiva: The "destroyer," third member of the triad of gods in Hinduism, the others being Brahma and Vishnu.

Shriners: See Freemasonry.

Shunning: (Disfellowshipping) An effective technique of control used by Jehovah's Witnesses and other groups to instill discipline, punish, or maintain idealistic purity. Members who do not maintain the group's behavioral expectations or who disagree on dogma are isolate the current, faithful members. This includes, in most cases, even family members or friends, who are not allowed to talk or share a meal with the shunned. The faithful, who violate the rule and communicate with the dissident, can themselves be shunned. The practice has been identified as a form of milieu control, one of the characteristic marks of cultic mind control.

Siddha Yoga Dham of America, Swami Muktananda Paramahansa, South Fallsburg, NY: Eastern mysticism, meditation, God-Realization.

Siegel, Bernie: New Age author/doctor promoting meditation, spiritism, visualization and holistic health.

Sikhism, Nanak: A religion, based mostly in the Punjab province of India, that attempts to blend Hinduism and Islam. The movement is based on a vision and subsequent teachings of founder Nanak in the 15th century AD. Disciples, called Sikhs, follow the one true God named Sat Nam ("True Name"). Their main scriptures are contained in the Granth Sahib ("The Lord's Book"), compiled by the guru Arjan, and salvation is viewed as a merging with the universal force (as in pantheism) .

Subud, Bapak Mohammad Subuh Sumohadiwidjojo [1901-1987]: Originated in Java, Indonesia, Subud has spread worldwide. Subud stands for three words, Susila, Budhi, and Dharma. The three words taken together mean, "to follow the Will of God with the help of the Divine Power that works both within us and without, by the way of surrendering oneself to the Will of Almighty God" (Internet; http://www.subud.org/english/english.Btalk.html). This surrendering of oneself occurs primarily in a spiritual exercise known as the latihan (sometimes, latihan kejiwaan), a trance like state that can produce anything from ecstatic movement and utterance to profound calm. Disengagement of the "passions, desires, and thinking" is essential for entrance into the latihan. "Only by surrendering himself completely to God, not making use of his mind, his heart or his desire, is it possible for man to come into contact with the Power of God" (Ibid.). Thus all the higher critical faculties that set man apart from beast must be suspended. Whatever the experience thus induced, it is simply to be surrendered to and "received." From a Christian point of view this is a perfect recipe for demonic possession. Regular practice of the latihan enables one to discern one's true self, which apparently turns out to be God. "So this Divine Power, which works in us during the exercise, will bring to each person what is already in himself?. Therefore, Bapak says that it is God Who will lead you toward Himself and what really happens in the latihan is that you will be introduced to your real inner self—to the real ‘I'. You must not be afraid and you must not be worried because whatever comes to you in your latihan is only what is in you, and it comes from your inner self. It is the real you that arises in the latihan,?" (Ibid.).

Sufi Order of the Sons of the Green Light, New York, NY: See Sufism.

Sufism: Mystical sect of Islam. Rather than focusing on the Five Pillars of Islam, Sufis seek ultimate religious experience through mystic trances or altered states of consciousness, often induced through twirling dances (the "whirling dervish"). Although the Qur'an is considered scripture, many practitioners have more in common with the New Age movement than with classic forms of Islam.

Also an ancient occult belief that certain objects or symbols contain supernatural magical powers, used for attraction of love, health, success and power to control nature or others. Closely aligned with witchcraft (see Wicca) and magic.

Tao, TaoTe Ching, Tao Tsang: See Taoism.

Taoism, Lao-tzu: Chinese philosophy teaching that there is no personal God—all is the impersonal Tao (similar to the impersonal God-force of pantheism in Hinduism). The Tao is composed of conflicting opposites (Yin and Yang) which should be balanced or harmonized through yoga, meditation, etc., to promote spiritual wholeness. According to legend, Taoism founder Lao-tzu wrote Tao Te Ching ("The Way and Its Power") about 550 BC. His teaching was developed and spread in the third century BC by Chuang-Tzu, whose writings inspired the Tao Tsang, 1200 volumes of Taoist scripture.

Unarius Academy of Science/Unarius Education Foundation, Ruth Norman/Ernest Norman, El Cajon, CA: UFOs, reincarnation, channeling, psychic communication.

Understanding Inc., Daniel Fry, Tonopah, AZ: UFOs, Atlantis, ESP.

Unidentified Flying Objects (UFOs): The term is used generally for all reported sightings of unidentified objects in the sky, most of which turn out to be natural phenomena (e.g., Venus) or man-made craft (e.g., weather balloons). More specifically, the term UFOs refers to allegedly sighted "flying saucers" or other alien spacecrafts. UFO beliefs can range between innocuous speculation that extraterrestrial beings may have visited Earth to quasi-religious devotion to the alleged presence and teachings of aliens. Often these beings are believed to be non-physical (spiritual) entities who are communicating telepathically (psychically) with contactees. Their messages are virtually always contrary to biblical beliefs.

Unification Church, Sun Myung Moon, New York, NY: Full name, Holy Spirit Association for the Unification of World Christianity. Jesus brought only spiritual salvation; another "savior" is needed to fulfill Jesus' mission. Moon is that Messiah (or Christ) and "Lord of the Second Advent." This group has over 200 front organizations. Moon's Divine Principle is scripture. See Serpent Seed. Profile available.

Unitarianism: Generically, the rejection of the doctrine of the Trinity in favor of the idea that God is exclusively one person. Unlike monarchianism or modalism, which view Jesus as a manifestation of the unipersonal God, or subordinationism, which views Jesus as a secondary divine being (e.g., the Watchtower Bible and Tract Society), Unitarianism views Jesus as a mere human being. Specifically, the term refers to the Unitarian movement that originated in late 18th-century New England and to the denominational body that merged with the Universalists in the 20th century to form the Unitarian-Universalist Association.

Unitarian Universalist Association: A denomination formed in 1961 by the merger of the American Unitarian Association (the principal religious body teaching Unitarianism) and the Universalist Church in America (which emphasized universalism). While the two parent denominations were rooted in liberal Christianity, the UUA does not even profess to be a specifically Christian body. Its churches exhibit an eclectic blend of liberal Christianity, humanism, atheism, and neo-paganism.

Universal Spiritualist Association, Chesterfield, IN: Spiritualism, occult, medium, reflexology, ritual magic, divine within.

Universal Temple of Divine Light, Don Slocum, Baton Rouge, LA: New Age, spirit entities, reincarnation, pantheism, Satan and Evil are illusions.

Universalism: Generically, the belief that all people will eventually receive salvation and eternal life. Many different groups hold to universalism from various perspectives and for diverse (and sometimes opposing) reasons. This doctrine is prevalent in liberal Christianity (among both Protestants and Roman Catholics), as well as in the New Age movement and in most non-monotheistic world religions. Specifically, universalism refers to a movement dating from the late 18th century that originally affirmed universalism on the basis that Jesus' redemptive death paid for the sins of all people. As universalism developed it came to affirm that people are acceptable as they are and that no atonement or redemption from sin is needed or provided.

Universariun Foundation, Inc., Portland, OR: New Age, Ascended Masters, channeling.

University of the Christ Light, Charlotte, NC: New Age; inner states of consciousness; man is the essence of God (cf. pantheism); Jesus was an Essene (i.e., a member of a first-century Jewish sect that New Agers theorize was more New Age than Jewish); Universal Mother.

Warren Bible Students: See Bible Students.

Watchman Nee: See The Local Church.

Watchtower: Magazine published by the Watchtower Bible and Tract Society; full name, The Watchtower Announcing Jehovah's Kingdom.

Watchtower Bible and Tract Society, Charles Taze Russell, Brooklyn, NY: Satan is the originator of the idea of the Trinity. The Father is the supreme God whose real name is Jehovah. Jesus is a created being known originally as Michael the Archangel; he is "a god," not Jehovah. Jesus only rose spiritually, not bodily, from the dead. The Holy Spirit is the impersonal active force of God. Only the anointed class (or little flock) numbering 144,000 will go to heaven, while faithful "other sheep" will live eternally on a paradise earth; the lost will cease to exist (annihilationism). Publishes the Watchtower and Awake! magazines, the New World Translation of the Holy Scriptures (their own version of the Bible), as well as numerous books. Originally called International Bible Students, followers today are called Jehovah's Witnesses. Profile available.

Way Corps, The: See The Way International.

Way International, The, Victor Paul Wierwille New Knoxville, OH: Jesus is not God or co-equal with God the Father, a Unitarian doctrine of God; latter-day verbal call from God to reestablish the true church. The group meets in small groups called Twigs, usually in members' homes. Main recruitment course is the Way of Abundance and Power, which replaced the old Power for Abundant Living (PFAL) . The American Christian Press is their publishing arm. Their annual concert/convention, the Rock of Ages, has been discontinued. Current leader is Rosalie F. Rivenbark, installed as third president after resignation of Craig Martindale, who was under accusation of sexual misconduct. The Way has experienced several splits in recent years. Profile available.

Wicca: The practice of witchcraft, nature worship, worship of the Gods and Goddess, paganism and neopaganism, various groups with assorted names. In modern form, it is a revival of pagan religions (neo-paganism) and the worship of "pre-Christian" Gods and Goddesses. A common creed is, "Do what you will, and harm none." Modern Wicca owes much to the influence of Gerald B. Gardner and has been further advanced by the writings of Patricia Monaghan, Silver Ravenwolf, the late Doreen Valiente, and the leading occult publisher Llewellyn World Wide Ltd. In popular culture, films and television programs such as The Craft, Practical Magic, Sabrina the Teenage Witch, and Charmed have helped attract teens and children to this growing religion. Womyn Healing, Sandra Boston de Sylvia, Greenfield, MA: Paganism, guided meditation, visions, Gaia festivals.

Word-Faith Movement: A movement based in large part on the teachings of E. W. Kenyon (1867-1948) that became a distinct movement under the teaching and leadership of Kenneth Hagin, a Pentecostal faith-healing evangelist. God himself is said to have created the world and to do all that he does by speaking words of faith. Man's creation in God's image is commonly understood to mean that human beings are "little gods" capable of speaking creative words of faith. The fall of Adam into sin is interpreted as having transformed Adam (and all unredeemed people) into Satan's nature and as having transferred Adam's godhood or dominion on earth to Satan. Jesus is believed to have become man in order to restore human beings to godhood as renewed "incarnations" of God. He is said to have done this by dying spiritually as well as physically on the cross, suffering in hell, and then while in hell becoming the first person to be "born again," before finally being raised from the dead. Those who believe in Jesus are supposedly empowered to speak words of faith again, especially in order to obtain bodily health and financial prosperity (both of which are supposedly guaranteed as present possessions in the Atonement). . In contrast, traditional Christian theology teaches that God and God alone can bring about whatever he chooses; that man was created to reflect God's character and to implement his will, not to be little gods; that man is fallen but not Satanic in nature; that God is still in control of this world; that Jesus Christ alone is God incarnate; that Jesus died physically, not spiritually, to redeem us; that Jesus therefore was not born again; and that health and prosperity are promised to believers in the future resurrection. In the meantime God heals and prospers people providentially and miraculously when and as he sees fit. Most of the followers of the Word-Faith teachers are Pentecostals and other evangelical Christians. Profile available.

Word Over the World (WOW): See The Way International.

World Community, J.E. Rash, Bedford, VI: New Age, mystic, teaches the "five ancient Orders."

World Council of Churches: An international agency promoting interfaith dialogue and ecumenical cooperation among churches. Most participants are mainline denominations dominated by the theological perspective of liberal Christianity.

World Tomorrow, The: The now defunct radio and television program begun by Herbert Armstrong. See Armstrongism.

Worldwide Church of God, Herbert W. Armstrong Pasadena, CA: Under the leadership of its founder, Herbert W. Armstrong, this church rejected the essential doctrines of evangelical Christianity, denying the doctrine of the Trinity, the full deity of Jesus Christ, and the personality of the Holy Spirit. The church epitomized the somewhat eclectic set of beliefs and practices that became known as Armstrongism. Beginning in the early 1990s under the leadership Armstrong's successors, Joseph W. Tkach and his son Joe Tkach, this group has undergone remarkable doctrinal transformation. They now hold to a traditional evangelical position on the nature of God and the gospel, teaching the Trinity and salvation by grace alone, through faith alone. Large numbers of its membership have left to join splinter groups that still teach classic Armstrongism. Publishes The Plain Truth magazine. Profile available.

Yang: See Yin and Yang.

Yes Education Society, Washington, D.C.: New Age, yoga, palm reading, astrology, iridology.

Yi King: Alternative form of the term I Ching.

Yin and Yang: Taoist concept, used in the New Age movement, holding that the universe consists of two opposite energy forces (positive/negative; male/female, etc.). Both are necessary and both must be harmonized for proper function. This Yin and Yang also flow through the human body so that a balance is required to maintain health.

Many New Age holistic health techniques, such as acupuncture, are based on attempts to balance this alleged energy or chi. When all is balanced, the Yin and Yang harmonize and the body works properly.

Yoga: Exercises (physical, mental or spiritual) based on Eastern metaphysical assumptions designed to aid in enlightenment or self-realization. Goals sometimes include altered states of consciousness or uniting the practitioner with the impersonal pantheistic God. Types of Yoga include: Karma Yoga (spiritual union through correct conduct), Bhakti Yoga (spiritual union through devotion to a Guru), Juana Yoga (spiritual union through hidden knowledge), Raja Yoga (spiritual union through mental control), Hatha Yoga (spiritual union through body control/meditation), Kundalini Yoga (spiritual union through focusing inner energy) and Tantra Yoga (spiritual union through sexual practices). Yoga philosophy is based on the concept of reincarnation and is drawn from the Upanishads and other Hindu scriptures.

Zen Buddhism: A branch of Mahayana Buddhism believed to have originated in India from the teachings of a Buddhist master, Bodhidharma, about 600 BC, but traced back by advocates to the Buddha himself. Practitioners seek satori (sudden illumination enabling bliss and harmony), which cannot be explained but only experienced. Techniques include zazen (sitting meditation techniques) and koans, which are short riddles or sayings. The koans (which number about 1,700) are not designed to have cognitive answers but to promote the experience of Zen.

Zerubbabel, Inc., Hopkinsville, KY: God is All (pantheism), man is Christ in true essence. Publishes The Intercessor newsletter.

Zodiac: See Astrology.

Zohar/Zolar: See Kabbalah.

Zoroastrianism, Zoroaster: Religion thought to be founded about 600 BC in Persia (present day Iran). According to legend, Zoroaster received enlightenment by the Daitya river when, at age 30, he received a vision of Vohu Manah ("Good Thought") who took him into the presence of lord Ahura-Mazda. Lord Mazda taught Zoroaster the "true religion," rejecting magic and idol worship and promoting belief in heaven, hell, a devil (Angra-Mainyu) and one true god. Later followers, however, worshipped Zoroaster in addition to Mazda. Good Lord Mazda and evil Angra Mainyu are seen as equal in power. Teaches enlightenment and salvation by works, including fire worship and partaking of the hallucinogenic haoma (soma in India).

Astral Projection in 30 Days or Less [Requires committed meditation]
AP / OBE Guide
Important Disclaimer:
Much like our world, the astral realm hold both good and bad entities. As an astral traveler it is important to remember that your soul is eternal and made of love and light; Should you find yourself in a frightful situation while exploring, you can call upon Jesus, with love in your heart, at any time, and be safely protected from any negative entities. [If you are resistant to the idea of Jesus then simply call upon any higher being that inspires love within you. It would be wise to have this established before venturing into the astrals.]

ASTRAL AWAKENING 30

Awaken your Astral Body in just 30 days!

_Begin a 30-day adventure to learn astral travel through meditation and uncover the amazing mysteries that exist beyond our normal perceptions.

Realize that you're much more than just your physical body; you have an Astral Body that lives much longer and can travel through different worlds and lifetimes, while still living your regular life in your physical body!

“whatever is mine cannot be me”

Discovering the Astral Realm shows us that all the magical and terrible places we've dreamed of as humans, are as real as you are while reading these words;

The Astral can teach us so much about life, our spiritual growth, and what comes after we die.

To start the 30-Day Astral Awakening Challenge, you'll need to set aside about 60 hours total for committed meditation. I suggest eating vegetarian and avoiding morally and sexually unethical behavior, as well as staying away from drugs to ease the spiritual process and keep your meditation time effective and focused.

FIRST, invent your own mantra that you will use for these 30 days. It can be anything as long as it doesn’t have a specific meaning to your mind and doesn’t refer to anything worldly or external.

Examples [Abrakadabra, Waheguru, Radhasoami, Yeshua hu Alaha, La Illaha Ilallah, etc.]

DAILY PROGRAM

MEDITATE for 2 total hours each day. You can break it into parts if you need to.

Start with Calming breath: Either 12 or 24 repetitions, Breathing in for about 4 seconds and out for about 8 seconds.

Next, mentally chant your chosen mantra while keeping all your awareness and listening focus in the space behind your eyes. If your attention wanders then bring it back to that point. If other voices or images arise during the meditation make them join in with the chanting. Make your mind speak the mantra steadily and repeatedly and listen to it with all your focus.

“The mind speaks, the soul only listens”

Eventually your awareness of your physical body will become less and less, and your consciousness will turn inwards. You body will first become tingly and eventually feel absent altogether. Your eyes will still see and your ears will still hear but it will become background interference and easy to ignore.

Once you begin hearing astral sounds within the space inside your head, listen out for a special sound which is like a ringing bell, similar to 285hz tone. Once you hear this continue chanting your mental mantra but place your listening focus onto this sound. This sound comes from the center or center-right, inside your head.

This is the sound of your soul. if you can focus on it deeply enough it will pull you up out of your body and you will awaken into your astral body.

At first the transition can be daunting and even scary but try your best to stay calm and practice often to make it easy. There are also many other sounds, and lights which will appear during this process but following the sound which pulls your awareness up is the easiest way to the next level of consciousness.

MENTAL CLEANUP
>>> Try to control wandering thoughts and unhelpful emotions by thinking of your mantra throughout your daily life as needed. This helps you keep the tool of the mind in check by neutralizing unwanted thoughts and emotions at their source, which is your center of awareness, behind the eyes.
Use the same mantra as for your meditation and mentally speak the word or phrase in the space behind the eyes for a few moments. The more often you do this the more clean and ready your consciousness will be at all times, making waking astral experiences increasingly possible.
This whole program is made to wake up your Astral Body, making it possible for you to experience astral travel and exploration, after some dedication on your part.
This journey is all about discovering the vastness of your own consciousness and the multiple levels of consciousness and creation.
The astral awakening is only the beginning of the inner journey; anyone can, and should take this step towards their own awakening.

In my experience, 60 total hours of meditating in this way should be sufficient for any person to activate their astral body -- it does not have to be within one single 30-day period. But daily consistency will make progress much easier.
Once you can listen to the sound with unwavering concentration you can go as far as you wish on the spiritual path. For more detailed reading on the matters discussed here I would recommend the following two sources. It can be helpful.

Can you not just expell them yourself without calling on some higher power? From what I understand, we can't get hurt in the astral realm. Isn't it just believing you have the power to do it and just do it? Only had an OBE 2 times, and have not encountered any entity yet, so I have not been able to try this myself. Also are these negative entities not manifestations of our own fears?

If your own awareness is such that you have the ability to completely banish all fear and doubt from your consciousness at a moments notice then by all means do that. Alternatively follow the silver cord back to your body.

However in a true moment of panic and confusion and heavy emotional manipulation which is the preferred method of the lower astral entities (demons, djins etc..) Calling upon a trusted higher entity can simply the process of protection and escape from the situation.

If you follow your consciousness all the way up theres no difference between your soul and the soul of Jesus. But until that is your conscious experience of the many realms its good to have a friend you can call, even if it is just your higher self.

Yeah, I agree. Beginners get frustrated quite easily meditating 30 minutes, imagine 2 hours.

They should split it up as needed if they actually want results in 30 day. Its not a lot to ask to make profound spiritual progress; going from zero to astral traveler in one month.

Plus practicing the mental cleanup exercise throughout the day makes it much easier to slip into productive meditation at a moments notice.

Can you elaborate on creating a mantra that doesn’t refer to anything specific or attachments to anything worldly? The examples you provided do seem to have preconceived ideas for me. Is one supposed to create something entirely original for just themselves?

The mantra should be selected or formulated in such a way that it does not point the mind towards anything in the external world, it is ok if it points towards something that can be experienced in the internal worlds such as heavenly abodes or deities.

For example the mantra given at Sant Mat initiation are the 5 names of the 5 rulers at each internal level of consciousness. These are repeated over and over and have the effect of drawing the consciousness inwards towards the astral body, once the sound current is always audible, you no longer need any mantra, simply latch your attention to the current and go up.

Doesn't matter, the mind will produce all matter of visuals to try and break your concentration efforts. If they are benevolent people, that could be a there to help you, then chanting your mantra will not make them disappear - if on the other hand you can make them chant your mantra along with you, after which they disappear, they are only mind formations;

Either way you should continue chanting mantra at the eye center, eventually these visions will cease and you will be able to ride a sound current upward and out of your body once concentration is sufficiently gathered behind the eyes. Feel free to ask me about anything else you might encounter internally while on this process, or a similar meditation method.

Thanks a lot for sharing this, I will follow this in early morning, and because im unexperienced with meditation and my practices have led to varied but small results, i need to ask, is this needed to be done lying on the back? because if so even after 8 hours of rest I fear i will fall asleep, so i was wondering if this can work while sitting making it easier to stay awake

This is very helpful but I think theres something missing.

If mantra meditation was enough then all serious meditators and those who do transcendental meditation would be APing.

Do you think this could be split into many small meditation sessions? Ie: Would 12x 10minute meditations be as effective as 2x 1 hour meditations

Never meditated a day in my life. I succeeded purely by learning from listening to interviews of people who talked about their own experiences and understanding the biological processes involved and succeeding at the beginning of the 3th week. I used nothing of that new age stuff; meditation, opening chakra's etc. If it works for you then do whatever works for you and makes you feel good about it. But for people new to this; you do not need these convoluted ways to get an OBE. Also; eating vegetarian? What is this based on? I know someone who is on a meat only diet and has very frequent OBE's

There are multiple ways to get to Rome I guess (so to speak). For me personally it is more intuitive. In the end it is willpower that makes you succeed. Focussing your Intention, discipline, determination and knowledge about the biological processes involved. Also binaural beat helped me very much in the beginning. 4-7 hertz should be your aim for this. I only used 7 hertz so far. And had my first vibrational experience within the first week.

I do agree with you on that there are no specific technique just intention but calling meditation and opening chakras as new age stuff is hilarious lol.

Different things work for different people and that's fine. I only wanted to say that neither meditation nor opening chakras are new age. It's a millennia old concept mentioned in our scriptures and practiced widely in this part of the world. It doesn't become 'new age' just because the west adopted it recently.

Its a bit of a trick this post, because while it will undoubtedly take a complete novice to the point where they can leave their body at will purely by practicing whats outlined for enough time...

It has the added benefit of teaching people the technique of listening to the inner sound current. Which if followed at all levels of experience can and will bring an individual soul all the way home to unity consciousness beyond the realms of the mind.

Its basically like eating all your veggies first before you can enjoy desert, except in this case the veggies are a few months of focused meditation and the desert is infinite non dual love and bliss beyond the confines of the wheel of reincarnation.

But if eating meat and listening to 7hz will do that for you then please start a religion with detailed practices so I can be your first follower 🙏

So you’re stating that because he enjoys meat and uses binaural beats to help him successfully obe, he should start his own religion?

What Is The Inner Sonic Key
Virtually every civilization in the world has had some type of creation myth that involved sound, usually sound that was equated with consciousness and that this celestial sound was the first creation, so that everything else created came from such ‘otherworldly’ sound in the ether. A number of spiritual, mystical and religious texts have spoken of this metaphysical equation of sound as an element of their most honored traditions.

IN the foregoing sections of this study, we have seen how it I has been taught since time immemorial by the Indian sages that behind the apparent self of which we are conscious in everyday existence, the self that shirks pain and seeks pleasure, that changes from moment to moment and is subject to the effect of time and space, there is the permanent “Self,” the Atman.

Most readers would be aware of the different forms of popular yoga, namely: Hatha yoga, Jnana yoga, Bhakti yoga, Karma yoga, Raja yoga, Mantra yoga and Laya yoga. Regardless of the differing emphasis one tradition of yoga places over another, all should have the same goal. That goal, put simply, is to separate the individualized soul from mind and matter, and unify it with the universal Soul (God or Brahma).

NAAM is easier said than known and practiced. It is only an adept in the mysteries of Naam who knows its true significance and the great power that lies hidden in it. Apparently it is just a syllable, but what it connotes is beyond understanding even by the most learned in book knowledge; though it may be possible to apprehend it through the grace of one well versed not only in the theory but in the practice as well of the Word.
